498 BODIES FOUND

Panic Adds to Horror of Situation and Helps to Swell Awful Death List.

NEW YORK HOSPITALS FILLED

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU.
Herald Building, Herald Square.
NEW YORK, June 15.

At least 498 members and friends of the St. Mark's German Evangelical Lutheran church congregation and Sunday school of Sixth street lost their lives shortly after 10 o'clock this morning in the swirling waters of Hell Gate or on the fire-swept decks of the mammoth excursion steamer General Slocum. Nearly all the dead are women and children. Two hundred more persons are missing and 300 are on the police dockets as being injured. Not all of these are at the hospitals, but all the water front institutions are crowded.

North Brother island is now like a city of the dead. In row after row nearly 300 burned or water-bloated corpses line the beach. Eighty dead bodies have been transferred from the floating wreckage near the sunken steamer and are now at the morgue at the foot of East Twenty-sixth street. Sixty bodies have been taken to the general morgue. Forty bodies have been taken ashore from the tossing eddies at Rikers island. Thirty-seven bodies are at the Alexander street police station. And still tonight countless bodies toss in the tormented waters of New York harbor's most frequently disaster-ridden ship passage. Many heart-rending scenes have been witnessed in the burning of the General Slocum at the city morgues and other temporary dead houses.

Gaily Go to Death.

No gayer decked excursion craft ever swept through Hell Gate and none ever carried a lighter-hearted throng than did the General Slocum, as, with band playing and streamers fluttering in the soft June wind, the big vessel made her way through that channel this afternoon.

Five minutes later and there was no note of human anguish which was not vibrating from her flame-wreathed hulk. One hour before and 1,200 voices had clamored glad goodbys to those on shore. An hour later and five times 1,200 and even more were storming Harlem hospitals, and there was a sound of women weeping.

At 9 o'clock the merrymakers scampered up and down the wide decks of the excursion steamer. At 11 their bodies lay in rows on the green sward, busy surgeons bending over the prone figures and assistants holding merciful sponges to the faces of the sufferers.

It was the seventh annual excursion of the Sunday school of St. Mark's. The pastor, the Rev. George C. Haas, had worked to make this more enjoyable than any of the other outings, and parents and guardians were only too willing to let their children and wards go.

No Thought of Danger.

Locust grove, on the sound, had been selected as the picnic ground. All had lunch baskets with them and all looked forward to a day of innocent pleasure and healthful recreation. A big and finely appointed steamboat and a sail through sheltered water to a land-locked bay! Could anything be safer?

In the pilot house stood Capt. William Van Shaick, the veteran master of the vessel, and two pilots of the craft. The Slocum had swung safely through Hell Gate and had straightened out for her run up the sound, when up came the cry of "Fire!" A moment later and the whole forward part of the vessel was a smother of smoke.

The tale runs clear enough to this point. The remainder will fill the blood-red pages of the chronicles of this nation's great disasters, and is picked out from the disjointed sentences and incoherent utterances of those involved in the horror—from sufferers who had wrenched themselves from pain a moment to tell how it had been with them; from those, who, between sobs for lost ones, let some side light shine upon a grief-stricken home.

PASTOR SEES HIS PEOPLE DYING BY FIRE AND WATER

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU.
Herald Building, Herald Square.
NEW YORK, June 15.

One of the best narratives of the disaster was that of the Rev. George C. F. Haas, pastor of the St. Marks German Evangelical Lutheran church, at No. 323 Sixth street. His wife, Gertrude, and daughter Anna are among the dead. He said:

"The fire started in the kitchen in the forward part when we were off One Hundred and Thirty-fourth street. I understand that some fat that boiled over started the blaze, and that the men in the kitchen ran for their lives. At that time most of the women and children were jammed in the rear of the boat, where the band was playing. Why the captain did not point the boat for the meadows I do not understand.

"He kept on, and the fresh wind from the sound drove the fire back through the different decks with lightning rapidity. In three minutes from the time the fire started all the decks were ablaze.

"I was in the rear of the boat with my wife and daughter. Women were shrieking and clasping their children in their arms. Some mothers had as many as three or four with them. Death from fire was to be escaped only to die in the water. When the fire shot up to the top deck and drove the crowd back the panic was terrible to witness. The crush from the forward part of the boat swept those in the rear along. The women and children clung to the railings and stanchions, but could not keep their holds.

"I with my wife and daughter,, was swept along with the rest. I believe that the first that fell into the water were crushed over. When they went in there seemed to be a general inclination to jump. The women and children kept going over the railing constantly.

"In the great crush many women fainted and fell to the deck to be trampled upon. Little children were knocked down. Mothers with their little boys and girls in their arms would give wild screams, then leap into the water. We could see boats putting out from the shore by this time, and a faint ray of hope came to us. With my wife and daughter I had been swept over to the rail.

"The fire then looked as if it would get us the next instant. I got my wife and daughter out on the rail and then we went overboard. I was in such an excited state of mind that I don't remember whether we were pushed over or jumped. When I struck the water I sank and when I rose there were scores about me fighting to keep afloat.

"One by one I saw them sink around me, but I was powerless to do anything. I looked for my wife and daughter, but could not see them anywhere. They probably sank as soon as they struck the water. With a great effort I managed to keep afloat, but my strength was about gone when a man on one of the tugs picked me up."

FIRE BOATS ARE SENT TO BURNING VESSEL

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, June 15.—On the sounding of an alarm of fire from the box at the corner of One Hundred and Thirty-eighth street and Locust avenue, three engines were sent to the foot of One Hundred and Eighty-third street, but these were powerless to aid those on the burning steamer. The fireboat Zophar Mills, at the foot of Ninety-ninth street, was ordered to the scene.

When the Mills got to the General Slocum the sight as described by the firemen was one never to be forgotten. Fire headquarters was notified of the extent of the disaster and the fireboat, William L. Strong, and the Abram S. Hewitt, the Brooklyn fireboat, were ordered to proceed to the foot of West Seventieth street. The Hewitt was met there by Deputy Fire Commissioner Thomas W. Churchill, Chief Croker and Commissioner Hayes' secretary, Mr. Volgenau, who boarded the Hewitt and were hurried to the scene of the disaster.

When the fireboat Mills got powerful streams on the General Slocum the remainder of the passengers were putting up a last struggle against the flames. They were grouped on the forward part of the boat, moving back from the onward course of the flames.

Men, women and children were huddled together on the bow, while those nearest to the flames struggled toward those on the bow. Each instant a human being was pushed into the water by the backward sweep of the maddened hundreds.

The crew of the fireboat Mills reported to Chief Croker that the scene when the General Slocum careened and went down was replete with deadly details. Men and

BAND CONTINUES TO PLAY WHILE STEAMER BURNS

NEW YORK, June 15.—While the panic on board the Slocum was at its worst the members of the band, seated on the upper deck, kept on playing. The bandmaster cautioned his men and asked that they stick to their posts. When the passengers on the upper deck, in their frenzy, rushed to that part of the deck occupied by the musicians, the members of the band arose to their feet to keep from being trampled and crushed.

Finally the jamb became so great that they could not use their instruments, and the men gave their attention to trying to quiet the men, women and children.

August Snyder, a cornet player, had his wife and three children on the boat. He had told them not to go far from the bandstand, and while the excitement was at is worst, they stood near. When playing was impossible, Snyder rushed to his family and took up his arms their little girl, three years old.

In a few moments the deck upon which they stood collapsed, Snyder says, and he saw his wife and two children disappear, being carried down with the debris. It as only a few moments later that that part of the deck upon which he stood gave way. He fell in the water, the child still clasped in his arms, and they were rescued by the crew of a tug.

KEPT FROM SHORE BY LUMBER YARD

HIS STORY OF THE DISASTER

New York, June 15.—A detailed account of the fire, from its origin to the time he had to leap from the upper deck of the burning vessel, was given by Capt. William H. Van Schaick of the General Slocum to The Gazette correspondent while under detention in the Alexander avenue police station:

"When we left the pier at Third street," he said, "we had aboard about 1,500 persons. Nearly 1,000 of these were adults, while the rest were children. When the cry of fire was raised we were passing One Hundred and Thirty-first street. I heard the cry and instantly looked for the safest place to beach the boat and save the passengers. I picked out the north shore of North Brother island, intending to beach the boat on her port side, knowing that if I got her lying broadside along the shore we would have a better chance of saving the passengers.

"I did not see the flames before this. All I knew was that I had heard the cry of fire and the screams. When I did see the flames they were coming up through the decks as though shooting from a blazing furnace. The fire was the wildest and fiercest I ever saw.

"It was then that I called for the fire drill, and my crew of 23 men, led by Mate Edward Flannagan, put two streams on the flames and did noble work. But it was of no avail. The blaze was so great that the streams of water did about as much to extinguish them as if we had formed a bucket brigade.

"The fire burned as though the boat was of tinder. The flames quickly spread and soon the pilot house was enveloped in smoke, the flames licking up on the outside.

"I had first started to beach the vessel at the foot of One Hundred and Thirty-fourth street. Some passing boatmen told me there were a number of oil tanks and lumber yards there and I would not be allowed to land. So I decided to make for North Brother island. I still had the boat headed toward North Brother island.

"The shrieks of the passengers were terrible. I could see my men doing everything in their power to quiet the maddened excursionists, but their words were unheeded.

"About 25 feet off shore, and just as I was about to hear the sound of the Slo-

LIFE PRESERVERS ROTTEN, RAFTS SECURED BY WIRE

Many Victims Might Have Escaped but for These Facts, According to Two Survivors, Who Tell Stories of Battle for Life.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU.
Herald Building, Herald Square.
NEW YORK, June 15.

Jacob Miller, an official of St. Mark's Sunday school, one of the passengers who was saved, declared this afternoon at North Brother island that at least a part of the great loss of life was due to rotten and defective life preservers.

"I tried to put on seven life preservers," Mr. Miller said, "and every one of them was so rotten that it fell apart as soon as I began to handle it. Undoubtedly, many more persons would have been saved if the life preservers had been in proper condition.

"It is reasonable to believe that a large number of persons, when they learned that the vessel was on fire, rushed to the life preservers, and many of these persons, in fact a large part of them, would probably have been rescued but for the fact that the life preservers were practically useless."

The statement of Mr. Miller was borne out by an examination of several life preservers which were washed upon the shore of North Brother island. The canvas covering was found to be so rotten that the slightest handling caused it to tear and allow the cork inside to fall out.

According to Nicholas Balzer, one of the survivors, who was on the top deck when the fire broke out, the life rafts were secured by wire and it was impossible to release them in the emergency. Balzer says he hacked and cut at them with his knife, but succeeded in cutting through only one strand, when the flames drove him back. There were no means at hand to free the rafts, he says, and for all practical purposes they were useless.

The government inspectors, whose duty it is to look after the condition of the life preservers, say that they were inspected on May 5 and found to be in perfect condition, and in quantity more than the legal requirement.

Mr. Lundburg, inspector of hulls, said today that he had made a careful inspection of the hull and upper works of the General Slocum on May 5. He found 3,000 life preservers on board, which was 500 more than the law requires. Several of them were new. All the life preservers, he said, with the exception of a few near the paddle boxes, were fastened to the roofs of the decks in the manner required, that is, by thin wooden slats, which could be easily pulled down.

An average-sized man could reach one of these slats without trouble and with one pull could release a hundred life preservers. The few life preservers near the paddle boxes in the middle of the boat were the only ones tied with wire, and here the wire was fastened to the woodwork with small brads and could have been easily detached.

The inspector said that he found all the preservers in good condition and did not condemn a single one. He said, also, that he was informed that the General Slocum had a weekly fire drill, although this is not demanded by law.

INVESTIGATION BEGUN BY DISTRICT ATTORNEY

NEW YORK, June 15.—District Attorney Jerome, when he heard of the Gen. Slocum disaster, went at once to the room of Assistant District Attorney Garvan, who is at the head of the homicide bureau. He at once ordered Garvan to the scene to get a general idea of what had happened, to listen to the stories of the captain and other officials of the Gen. Slocum, and to hear what was said by the survivors.

"Mr. Garvan is making a general investigation into the matter," said the district attorney later in the day. "Of course, there is nothing to show us as yet that there was any degree of criminal negligense attaching to anyone, and I will not be able to tell until Mr. Garvan reports more fully to me.

"As far as can be ascertained it seems to be established that there was no overcrowding on the steamer, so that, in this respect, at least, the federal laws were complied with. As for the location of the accident, it is clearly within the jurisdiction of this county, and this office has to take cognizance of it. We will do everything that is possible to see if the disaster was the result of criminal negligence on the part of of anyone."

SAYS LIFE PRESERVERS WERE MADE OF STRAW

NEW YORK, June 15.—According to a man who called on Inspector Albertson, the life preservers packed under the seats and on the ceiling of the decks of the General Slocum were absolutely rotten.

"This man said to me," said Inspector Albertson to The Gazette correspondent, "that he could have saved at least 10 lives if the life preservers had been of any use. Even if the canvas that covered them had not been so old and rotten that they broke and ripped to pieces at the touch, they would have been useless. Instead of being fitted up with cork, they were packed with straw. Had they been absolutely new they would not have floated an infant.

"This man was seated in the rear of the boat at the time the fire broke out. His first warning came when several women and children rushed to the rear and shouted that there was a fire in the middle of the boat. He quickly pulled down several life preservers, but when he was about to fasten them to several persons they burst and fell away as though they had been made of tissue paper.

"As a result of this information I have communicated with the inspector of steamboats and have caused an investigation to be started at once."

RUSSIANS FLEE FROM VICTORS

1,000 MEN ARE LOST

MAY HAVE SUNK TRANSPORTS

[ASSOCIATED PRESS CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

LONDON, June 16.—A dispatch to the Daily Express from Tokyo, dated June 15, says news has been received there, but has not yet been officially published, of a great Japanese victory near Fu-Chou, on the railway, 70 miles north of Port Arthur. The Russians, it is added, were overwhelmed, lost 1,000 men, left all their guns on the field and retreated in disorder.

The Daily Chronicle's correspondent at Tokyo cables the same news, adding that the Russians to the number of 7,000 men are now in full flight toward Tashi-Chau and Kai-Chau.

St. Petersburg, June 15.—(Special Cable.)—The war is on in earnest now and the capital is quivering with excitement waiting for more definite news from three points in the orient on which all eyes are now focused.

The dispatches received from Gen. Kuropatkin today indicate that a general engagement is in progress in the vicinity of Vafangow, about 55 miles north of Port Arthur. The fighting there between the Russian forces under Gen. Baron Stakelberg and a Japanese force believed to be the army of Gen. Nozu, continued all day yesterday, was renewed again today and is still proceeding.

Casualties Were Heavy.

The Russian casualties in the fighting yesterday were 308 men killed or wounded. The losses today are not given, and the Japanese casualties are also unknown.

Another report, confirmed from various sources, that has stirred the Russian capital is to the effect that the Vladivostok squadron under Vice Admiral Skrydloff has left the northern port and has been sighted by the Japanese in the Straits of Korea. A naval engagement is believed to be imminent. The vessels which left Vladivostok are the armored cruisers Gromoboi, Rossia and Rurik and some torpedo craft.

At Port Arthur, the fact that the harbor entrance is still safe for the entrance and exit of Russian ships, is substantiated by the report that the Russian cruiser Novik and 10 torpedo craft left the harbor and encountered some of the Japanese fleet and again regained their berths in the inner harbor in safety.

The engagement at Vafangow has assumed considerable proportions, as 20,000 Japanese are known to be engaged in an effort to work round the Russian flank, but the Russians by a timely change of front avoided a disaster.

Early Russian Successes.

Latest accounts state that the engagement is continuing. The Russians opened a heavy artillery fire. Gen. Kuropatkin says the losses are unknown, which sounds ominous. There are persistent rumors that the Russians destroyed three squadrons of cavalry and took 60 prisoners.

Later a section of Russian cavalry marching in the direction of Tafan-Chow and Lun-Koo discovered on its right flank a great force of Japanese cavalry. An engagement ensued and, according to the latest dispatches, fighting is proceeding all along the line, the Japanese having obtained reinforcements from Vafangow, consisting of three infantry divisions with artillery and cavalry.

There is apprehension that Stakelberg may be unable to get together a sufficient force to successfully oppose the enemy. The authorities here have successfully concealed up to this time the number of Russian troops on the peninsula. It now develops that Stakelberg's whole corps has been centered at Kai-Chou, about 20 miles south of Niuchwang.

Vladivostok Fleet Active.

SEOUL, June 15.—(Special Herald Copyright.)—The Russian Vladivostok fleet fired at 5 o'clock this morning on a merchant vessel close to a small island, three hours distant from Shimonoseki.

It is feared the ship fired on may be an American vessel, the Ohio, which left Fusan last night for Nagasaki. The Japanese minister to Korea is on the boat, en route to Japan.

It is thought the Vladivostok fleet is trying to effect a junction with the Port Arthur fleet. This will be almost impossible on account of the difficulty of passing the Perkai straits.

TOKYO, June 15.—It is reported here that the Japanese protected cruiser Niitaka engaged the Russian Vladivostok squadron off Taushima island in the strait between Korea and Japan. This report, however, lacks confirmation.

The Japanese transports Ugo and Fuyo, homeward bound, met the Russian vessels near Oki island. The Russians pursued them and fired 16 shots at the Japanese ships. The transports escaped and reached Katsumoto.

Three Japanese transports, outward bound from Shimonoseki, met the Russian warships this morning outside the straits of Korea. The Russians fired 18 shots at the Japanese ships. One transport escaped. The fate of the other two is not known.

GOOD WORK OF TUG BOATS

Herald Building, Herald Square.
NEW YORK, June 15.

Capt. Allie Van Etten of the tugboat D. S. Arnott and his crew worked hard in saving life and rescuing bodies while the Slocum was burning. Interviewed at his home, 111 Sussex street, Jersey City, tonight, he said:

"While bringing the Arnott down the sound, and when a short distance from Rivers island, I saw, about a mile ahead, a cloud of black smoke belching from a large steamer. Ringing for full speed ahead, I grasped the whistle cord and blew an alarm which attracted the attention of the crew of the tugboat Massasoit, which was tied up at Rivers island. The Massasoit was quickly headed for the burning steamer. Then the James Hughes, which was going up the sound with two barges in tow, dropped her hawsers and also started toward the Slocum. The Arnott ploughed through the water faster than she ever went before and we soon got to the Slocum. Coming up on the port side, the Arnott stood within 100 yards of the blazing steamer.

Swimmers to the Rescue.

"One man got out the hose, for the intense heat was already scorching the paint off the Arnott, and two of the crew, John Olsen and Gunter Andersen, peeled off their outer clothing, jumped into the water, which was filled with floating persons, some dead, others unconscious and some begging to be saved. Olsen and Andersen seized and brought to the side of the tugboat eight persons, six women and two children. Three of the women were unconscious. Then the two brave fellows recovered 15 bodies, one being that of a big man, who was expensively dressed. A large diamond glistened in the bosom of his shirt.

"Olsen saw three children, not more than 6 years of age, floating near the shore. Jumping overboard he rescued two. Holding their heads out of the water with his left arm, he used the right in swimming to the shore, where they were lifted to the bank by willing hands. Returning to the other child floating in the water, Olsen swam with it to the island. Although greatly exhausted, Olsen returned to the Arnott and was pulled aboard.

"Three times the tugboat caught fire from the flames from the Slocum, and the man who was in charge of the hose was kept busy wetting down the sides of the Arnott.

Launch Brings Physician.

"A launch from North Brothers island brought a physician, who revived the three unconscious women. One of them became panic-stricken and attempted to commit suicide by jumping overboard. A 9-year-old boy also became temporarily insane. He declared his mother had been drowned, and he fought desperately and attempted to jump into the water.

"I am positive there were at least 200 bodies floating around the Arnott. Women and children, and an occasional man, jumped from the burning vessel, and nearly all were drowned. Both the dead and living, with the exception of a young woman, were taken off the Arnott by launches. The woman, Miss Martha Work, 21 years old, of 341 East Fifty-fifth street, was landed at the East Fifty-third street pier. I summoned a physician, who took her home in a cab.

"The Slocum burned like kindling wood. In less than 20 minutes from the time I first saw her she was a complete ruin. One especially pathetic scene will be remembered by me until I die. I saw a woman being dragged aboard the charities department boat Franklin Edson. She was unconscious, yet she clung tenaciously to the body of an infant, which was pressed to her breast. I had to put my hand over my eyes to shut out the heartbreaking scene."

women who had been crowded together on the bow were dropped into the water, struggling to catch hold of one another, and children could be seen floating away from the burned boat, to sink a short distance away.

Steaming as close to the Slocum as was practicable, the Mills picked up such as it could. Boat hooks were used, and ropes were swung to the drowning. Firemen dived from the Mills to rescue women and children, and not a few of the rescued were landed by the Mills on North Brothers island.

Three persons were taken out of the water alive by the firemen of the Mills and 17 bodies were recovered.

LIKE LARGE FAMILY IS GERMAN DISTRICT

Close Association Makes Grief Because of Loss of Friends More Poignant.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, June 15.—In a district six blocks long by four blocks wide from First street on the south to Seventh street on the north, from Avenue B on the east to Third avenue on the west, a happy, peaceable, prosperous community, by the tragedy of an hour, became a community of deepest mourning.

In the territory, which includes the remnant of the once powerful German colony of the East Side, in a thousand homes, until late this afternoon there was the deepest grief and the most poignant anxiety. Nightfall saw little change. Where the scant records of hospitals or the slow return of survivors had lessened one grief their stories only intensified the woe in another direction. Hardly a home that did not know of the loss of some loved one; not a home that did not mourn some dearly loved friend.

In the years that have seen the German colony grow and in turn dwindle to its present size, the relationships have become very close among the members. Families have married and intermarried until the kinship is sometimes past all comprehension of the outsider. There have been clubs, societies, associations, favorite meeting places and favorite breathing spots, until it was like some great big family rather than the citizens of a community.

HEROIC WORK OF RESCUERS

ALSO CATCHES FIRE

BABES CAUGHT FLOATING BY

NEW YORK, June 15.—This description of the scene aboard the burning Slocum is given by Capt. Flannery of the tug Walter Tracey, who lashed his vessel to the burning steamship and took off 200 passengers.

"Until my dying day I will hear anguished cries that went up as I cut loose from the burning boat," he said. "I stuck until my pilot house was afire. Then I cast loose and followed my men, leaning over the gunwales and grabbing at the children as they floated by in the river."

Capt. Flannery and his men worked aboard the Slocum until the heat burned their shoes. His description of the panic and the work of rescue and the manifold horrors of death by fire and drowning is the most complete and graphic of the actual participants in the disaster. After landing his 200 passengers at Port Morris he said:

"The Slocum was going through Hell Gate when I found that she was in distress and steered for her. I reached her side before any other craft and found that she was on fire. I ordered my men to lash us alongside and then we began the work of taking off the frantic children.

"It was terrible work and my heart fails me now as I think of it. The little ones seemed to have lost all reason and their cries and screams will echo in my mind for years to come.

"I stayed alongside just as long as I could. It was getting hotter and hotter every moment, until the deck boards burned through the leather of our shoes. We didn't think of that at the time, however, and it wasn't until flames burst from our pilot house that I gave the order to sheer off.

Cries of Despair and Horror.

"The cries that went up from the Slocum as we backed away were beyond expression of utter despair and horror.

"We extinguished the flames which had attacked the pilot house and continued through the gate after the Slocum.

"As the children began to leap into the water I ordered all hands to catch them as they floated past.

"Every man on the boat that could be spared helped in this work of rescue. We could make only one grab for each body, for the reason that there were so many jumping that we could not devote our time to any particular one.

"To see the faces of those little ones who drifted by struggling against death, but just out of our reach, was agony to every one of us. It was almost as great suffering for us as it was for them.

"We followed until the Slocum ran into water that was too shallow for our depth. I then ordered away several small boats and they succeeded in taking off loads of children. All those recovered by us were unhurt, as far as I could see.

"The scenes on board the Slocum as I came alongside were too horrifying for description. The little ones were running hither and thither, uttering heartrending cries and appeals for aid. We could only do our best at helping the unfortunate, although it made a man feel like a criminal to think that he could not save every innocent life on board."

Rescued Many Injured.

Rescue work of a courageous nature was done by Henry Rock, captain of the tugboat Franklin Edson, which is used to transfer patients to North Brother island, and by Charles Johnson, the mate. The tugboat was lying at the foot of East One Hundred and Thirty-sixth street when Capt. Rock saw the blazing steamboat pass by.

Quickly throwing off the lines which held the Edson to the pier, the captain rang for full speed and started for the Slocum. Running close alongside the blazing vessel, the crew of the Edson succeeded in rescuing 50 women and children, all more or less burned, and also recovered the bodies of nine women and one child.

So intense was the heat as the tug lay alongside the Slocum that her paint was blistered and her woodwork caught fire sveeral times. Anticipating the danger before them, the crew of the Edson had unpcoiled the firehose of the boat ready for an emergency, and as fast as the woodwork caught fire it was extinguished by deckhands, who kept a stream playing continuously from the hose.

The heat was almost unbearable, but Capt. Rock and his crew worked with desperate haste until they were forced to draw away or lose their lives and those of the passengers they had rescued. The members of the tug's crew expressed surprise that the captain of the General Slocum had not beached the steamboat long before he did. They declared he could have run the vessel ashore on Manhattan island, but instead proceeded farther up toward the sound.

Another tug which steamed up to the burning vessel and succeeded in recovering nine bodies was the Margaret. All were those of women.

SEXTON DECLARES CREW LACKING IN DISCIPLINE

Also Says Fire Hose Could Do No Good Because of Leaks at Joints.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, June 15.—Scathing arraignment of the alleged lack of discipline of the crew of the General Slocum and the bad condition of the emergency fire hose and life preservers was made today by John Holthusen, the venerable sexton of St. Mark's church.

Mr. Holthusen was a passenger and, owing to the fact that he kept his head under trying circumstances, he saved not only his own life but those of his two daughters.

"Our first intimation that there was trouble," said he, "was so slight that we paid little attention to it. A light vapor was seen issuing from the kitchen, and I was at first of the opinion that some steam connection had been broken. The vapor became a smoke and I realized that there was serious trouble. The crew tore down the duck fire hose from brackets and from reels and they acted without any sense of discipline or self-control. No stream could be directed against the fire, for the water leaked out through the joints. The crew threw down the hose and ran excitedly about the vessel.

"There were few of the passengers who were able to obtain life preservers, for those articles were secured so firmly overhead by means of wires, which passed through staples and were drawn taut, that they could not be drawn out.

"In some cases the passengers were able to get hold of cork belts, and they found them in such bad condition that they could not tie the cords about their waists. ALEXANDER DODDS.

HUNDREDS OF PEOPLE ARE DROWNED

river. They did not wait for life preservers, but in a mad dash to escape the flames shoved others against the frail railing of the decks, which gave way. They were drowned.

The fire started in the forward part of the General Slocum, which is a craft about 250 feet long. It spread with such rapidity that the efforts of the crew were utterly inadequate to cope with the flames and in a few moments the fire had been communicated to all parts of the boat.

Mr. Barnaby, president of the Knickerbocker Steamship Company, owners of the Slocum, says the fire started in a bunch of beach grass which the excursionists had taken aboard. He declares the panic-stricken passengers impeded the efforts of the crew to launch the boats.

Some of the survivors declared that the life preservers were rotten and proved utterly useless when the passengers tried to use them.

The police have placed the captain of the General Slocum and two other officers of the steamboat under arrest.

UPSET POT OF GREASE AND DISASTER FOLLOWS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, June 15.—The fire on the General Slocum is said to have broken out in a lunch room on the forward deck through the overturning of a pot of grease. The wind was high and all efforts to subdue the fire was futile.

At One Hundred and Thirty-fourth street there are several lumber yards and oil tanks, and as Captain William Van Schaick, in command of the General Slocum, started to turn his vessel towards the shore there he was warned that it would set fire to the lumber and oil, and so he changed his course for North Brother island, one of twin islands near the entrance to the sound, some half mile away, where the boat, partially burned, was beached. She sank near this place at 12:25 o'clock this afternoon, two hours and 25 minutes after the fire was first discovered.

In the meantime the passengers had become panic-stricken, and those who were not caught up by the flames rushed to the rear of the vessel and hundreds jumped overboard into the swiftly running waters. It is alleged that the life preservers were too securely fastened to their holdings to be available, and stories are told of frantic efforts made by strong men to cut them loose; but even if they could have been torn down they were too high up for the children to reach. It is also alleged that no attempt was made to get out the fire apparatus at the first cry of "fire," though Captain Van Schaick says that he immediately rang the bells for getting out the apparatus. According to several statements no attempt was made to lower boats or life rafts.

The race to North Brother island was horribly dramatic. It was made while the flames, which had been fanned into a fury by the strong head wind, were consuming hundreds of persons, old and young. The scene was one of frightful panic, with men, women and children jumping overboard and being lashed by the channel whirlpools against the vessel's sides. Women and children were crowded together on the hurricane deck, which soon burned away and fell, and it is believed that most of those on this deck were burned.

The after rail gave way and the passengers who had crowded against it were pushed into the river. Mothers and children became separated and frantically sought each other, while in several cases fathers and mothers gathering their children together jumped with them into the water. Little children, holding each other by the hand, jumped together and were afterward found clasped in each other's arms. It is alleged that men fought with women to escape, resulting in the trampling under foot of scores of children.

During her flame-enveloped run to North Brother island, the Gen. Slocum's whistles kept blowing for assistance, but before the whistles began to blow several tugs, the captains of which had seen the outbreak of the fire, started after the vessel. They were joined by a yacht, while rowboats put out from the shore. The number of these craft constantly grew, and not the least dramatic incidents of the catastrophe were the efforts of the people on these boats to rescue those who had jumped overboard from the burning vessel. Men crowded to the rails of the tugs and caught up the drowning persons as they were borne by the current. There were many thrilling rescues by this means.

North Brother island, where the vessel was beached, contains a scarlet fever ward. The patients who witnessed the disaster were ordered indoors, and the doctors hastened to the rescue of those who had been washed ashore, but some scores of persons died while they were being attended.

HOSPITALS SEARCHED FOR MISSING FRIENDS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, June 15.—Many pathetic scenes were witnessed at the various hospitals, where the relatives sought their loved ones. Wild-eyed men, tremulous women and frightened children begged to know if any of their family were in the hospitals. Eagerly they seized upon survivors. Most of the interrogations were in German. "Have you seen my wife? my children? I have lost all."

"I had five childre,n," said a distracted woman at the Lincoln hospital, "the eldest 19 and the youngest 5 years of age. They were all on this excursion. Let me pass."

The men on guard stepped back and she ran panting up the stairs. The nurses helped her and presently she came upon a girl in a bed in one of the wards, so bandaged that none but a mother would have recognized her. The girl was burned about the head and limbs, but she leaped from the bed at the sight of her mother, and the two descended to the lower hall, where they sat side by side in a tearful embrace.

"My name is Mrs. Iden, and I had five children this morning, now I have only this one, my dear love," said the woman, holding the girl as if she feared she might yet be taken from her.

In the same hospital were little boys. "My mother gave me a life preserver, that's how I got saved," said one whose name was Muller. "I guess she didn't have none for herself; 'cause they can't find her."

"I didn't have no live preserver at all," said his bed-fellow, Henry Fernweiser. "I went down twice and I swallowed a whole lot of water, but pretty soon I caught hold of a dead woman and then somebody grabbed me with a hook. If it hadn't been for that dead woman I'd a drowned sure."

Up and down the wards and corridors trampled a little lad two years of age. He had yellow hair and was neatly dressed in white. He could talk little, and that little was German, so he and the nurses took each other on faith. He spoke of his mother and it was understood that he had been with her on the excursion. After he had been in the hospital for several hours, his father came, sad of face, and kissed the little boy and took him away.

"I cannot find her," said he, when asked about the boy's mother, but the little chap smiled, waved his hands in farewell and went away hugging a toy.

SAVES SWEETHEART, LOSES HIS SISTERS.

NEW YORK, June 15.—(Special.)—With his arms about the sweetheart he had saved, Henry Iden, aged 19, of 100 East Fourth street, came ashore with the last load of survivors. His four sisters, he reported, were lost. His sweetheart, Amelia Swartz, 18 years old, was broken-hearted at the loss of her mother, her grandmother, her aunt, Mrs. Christina Burkhardt, and the latter's three-months-old daughter.

PILOTS OF TWO BIG TUGS REFUSE TO GO TO RESCUE

NEW YORK, June 15.—Rev. Father Boyle of St. Luke's church, at 138th street and Alexander avenue, was standing at the foot of 138th street when the fire was discovered. He asserts that more might have been rescued had the pilots of two big New York Central tugs, that were tied up there, responded to his call for help. He asserts that both of them flatly refused to go to the rescue of the burning boat.

Father Boyle was extremely caustic in censuring Capt. Van Schaick for not beaching the steamboat at least 15 minutes earlier. Agreeing with him are Dr. Darlington, health commissioner, and Coroner Scholer.

"The ship was seen on fire at 132nd street," said Father Doyle, "and there were a number of places on the New York shore where the captain could have run in. Had he done so, many lives would have been saved."

CHARRED BODIES FILL PADDLE BOX

ONE BOY HERO IS KILLED

NEW YORK, June 15.—One of the rescuing fleet put in under the off shore paddle box of the Slocum and discovered several dead bodies of women and children lying on the blades of the paddle wheels. In removing one of the bodies several other corpses dropped into the water.

On top of the pile of dead the rescuing party discovered a little girl crying and calling for "Mamma." She, with the others, had managed to reach the interior of the paddle box as a means of escape. She was the only one of the unfortunate lot that survived, the rest being burned to death.

Out of the peril from fire and water came 4-year-old Lizzie Krieger, without a smudge on her red gown, without a stain on her face. She was taken to the Alexander avenue station, where she sat for two hours in a room in which dead women and children were laid out in three long rows.

Her big brown eyes swept over the crowd as it surged in and out seeking to identify the dead. To all inquirers she had but one reply:

"My mamma is all burned up. I saw her burn."

Little Willie Elcotz, aged 14, is supposed to have been drowned, but before he gave up his own life he saved the lives of four other children. The boy, according to those who saw his work, was one of those remarkable little heroes which such great tragedies sometimes bring forth.

The boy, an expert swimmer, had saved lives along the water front before. As soon as he saw the water full of little children he leaped overboard and began the work of rescue. He held two children's heads above the water until a boat came along and picked them up, then swam to another child and saved that.

A fourth child he just managed to hold up until help came, and he was swimming for a fifth when a gasoline launch with an excited pilot came along at great speed. The pilot of the launch evidently did not see the little fellow, for he crashed into him, and the boy was not seen again. He was probably drowned.

Edward Kiefel of 266 Avenue A was taken to Harlem by Ambulance Surgeon Burns. With Kiefel were his wife, Fanny, and their son, Edward, aged about 7 years. A daughter, Lillian, is missing and believed to be among the dead. The doctors say the boy's recovery is not looked for.

Kiefel says he was standing on the upper deck when the fire started. He says the fire broke out opposite Astoria. He stayed on the boat until he could no longer remain, then, with those members of his family whom he could find, he jumped into the water.

The missing girl, Lillian, is about 6 years of age. The mother is frantic with grief.

PULLED CHILD ABOARD THEN SAT DOWN ON HER

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, June 15.—George Gray, aged 13, tells the following story of his experience:

"I was sitting on the rear of the upper deck with my two friends, Otto Hans and Albert Greenwall. The boat was just passing out of Hell Gate and going toward an island when I smelled fire.

"I said to Otto and Albert: 'There, boys, there's fire,' and we jumped up on a seat and tried to pull down some life preservers.

"A lot of them were rotten and all the cork came out of them. While we were pulling at the life preservers a big cloud of smoke and flame came right up out of the center of the boat. Then the boat seemed to stop, and the women began jumping overboard, and I saw some of them throw their babies into the water and jump after them.

"After the fire came all up around the deck the boat got started again, but the people kept jumping over. There wasn't any tugboats near us then, but soon I saw a lot coming to us. I was afraid to jump over and got Otto and Albert to stay with me.

"We all had got life preservers for ourselves and for three little girls who we held on to when they tried to jump.

"The first tug that came to us was the Director. It was a big boat and came right up near us as we were going toward the island.

"I jumped on to the boat, and then a whole crowd of people jumped on top of me. Half of them that jumped fell into the water between the side of the tug and the steamer.

"Pretty soon there were so many on her that her rear end was way down in the water and her bow way up in the air, but they kept on jumping and slipping into the river and going down. I got hold a a little girl's leg, who was falling over, pulled her up and sat on her, so as to keep her from being pushed over.

"As I was on the boat I saw a man on the upper deck take a baby and throw it into the water. The baby's hair was all on fire and she fell in the water near the tug and a man jumped over and got her and brought her on to the Director."

NO PRESERVERS AGAINST PANICS

CAPT. VAN SCHAIK'S BRAVERY

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU.
Herald Building, Herald Square.
NEW YORK, June 15.

Some mishap, unforeseen, and unavoidable, is the only cause which F. A. Barnaby, president of the Knickerbocker Steamboat Company, owners of the General Slocum, is willing to attribute the origin of the fire which destroyed that vessel.

If the fire or the subsequent loss of life were due in any part to defective apparatus Mr. Barnaby declares that the fault lies, not with the steamboat company, but with the government inspectors, to whom the boat was delivered three weeks ago. Their report on what was needed to make the vessel safe and seaworthy in every respect was fulfilled to the letter, he says, and in many instances the company voluntarily exceeded the requirements imposed by the inspectors.

He expressed himself as very proud of the conduct of the crew of the General Slocum, especially of Capt. Van Shaick, who stood to his post in the pilot house until his hat and hair were burning and the roof of the pilot house fell about him.

"Panic evidently caused the awful loss of life," said Mr. Barnaby, late this afternoon, "and against panic there are no preservers, especially in a crowd of women and children.

"We had provided against even that. Officers of the boat constantly patrolled every deck and there were two members of the police force on board to aid in preserving order and preventing panic in case of accident.

"The crew was perfectly drilled in fire fighting and the apparatus for drowning out flames was in perfect shape and adequate. Within 30 seconds after the fire was discovered there was a stream of water on it.

"The captain did what every commander of a vessel is expected to do in such cases. He went under his own steam to the nearest port.

"What started the fire I do not know. I have four men at work investigating, and when they make their reports I may be able to say. There was nothing on the boat to burn except its woodwork. It is lined with sheet iron. When men wiped off the oiled parts with cotton waste they were not permited to throw the waste in a pile for further use. They were compelled to throw any waste that had touched oil overboard.

"Every man of the officers and crew except the deckhands had been with this company and on this boat from six to 13 years; most of them, including Capt. Van Shaick, the only commander the General Slocum has ever had, for 13 years.

"This spring the General Slocum was overhauled.

"Members of the crew who have visited my office agree that the fire originated on the deck among a mass of beach grass which was brought aboard by the excursionists, and on which a quantity of bananas was lying. When the passengers saw the flames shoot up from this they fled panic-stricken to the upper deck and greatly interfered with the efforts of the crew to attack the flames."

Of a report that life preservers, said to have been found in the river near the wreck and which bore the stamp "Edwin Forrest," a steamboat which plied on the Delaware 40 years ago, had fallen from the General Slocum, Mr. Barnaby said it was "a damn, infernal lie."

KEPT FROM THE SHORE BY A LUMBER YARD

cum scraping the bottom of the river, the pilot house caught fire. I was driven out. There was no place for me to turn, there was nothing else for me to do. I had done my duty as best I could and had I stayed there two minutes longer I would have been roasted.

"In the frightful mass of panic-stricken people on decks there was nothing one could do. It was a heart-rending sight and one I will never forget.

"I jumped overboard and swam ashore. I was so exhausted that I lay down under a tree. I was slowly losing my senses when someone picked me up and I was then taken care of.

Captain's Hat on Fire.

"The fierceness of the blaze in the pilot house can be imagined when I found that my hat was a mass of flames. My back was sprained by the jumping from the upper deck.

"There was absolutely no chance for the crew to man the lifeboats. The rapidity with which the flames spread prevented the men getting anywhere near them.

"I don't know how the fire started, but to my best belief I think it began under the boilers. I know there was no smouldering fire, as the steamer was inspected thoroughly last night and again this morning before we took on the excursionists."

Edward Van Wert, pilot of the General Slocum, who was in the cabin with Capt. Van Schaick at the time the fire started, corroborated in every detail the story told by the captain.

"When the alarm started I was in the pilot house with Capt. Van Schaick," he said. "Mate Flannagan, who sounded the alarm, called his men and jumped to the fire apparatus. The two large streams played on the blaze had no apparent effect.

"We headed for North Brother island at full speed. The fire spread faster than any other blaze I ever saw. The excursionists were in frightful panic on the upper deck and would not listen to reason. Despite the warnings of the men and their efforts to prevent a panic, the women and children would not listen.

"Like Capt. Van Schaick, I was driven from the pilot house. I tried every means in my power to gain the shore in an effort to beach the boat. My duty was at the wheel. That was all I could do. I could not help anyone."

WOMAN NURSE SWIMS OUT AND SAVES SEVEN LIVES

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, June 15.—It was through the heroic work of persons employed on North Brother island, including physicians, nurses and orderlies, that many of the passengers on the General Slocum were saved. Even the patients in the Tuberculosis hospital, though weakened by disease, rushed down to the beach as the victims were struggling in the water and aided in the rescue.

One of the bravest feats accomplished was that of Miss Florence Denning, a nurse in the tuberculosis hospital, who, aided by the other nurses, rescued seven women whose lives would have been lost but for her courage and the fact that she was a strong swimmer.

Miss Denning was standing on the east shore of the island when she saw the General Slocum, with flames shooting from her on all sides, pass by. Passengers were then jumping overboard in large numbers.

Without a moment's hesitation, Miss Denning, realizing that many persons were losing their lives out there in the water, plunged in and swam with all her strength toward them. Though hampered by her clothing, the young woman did not cease her work, swimming to the shore and back again until seven women had been saved by her. She then sank exhausted on the beach, unable to do anything more.

Though the other nurses could not swim, they boldly waded into the water to receive the unconscious victims brought to them by Miss Denning.

OTHER DISASTERS OF RECENT YEARS

DEATH IN GHASTLY FORM

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, June 15.—The worst previous disaster of the description which cast all New York in gloom was the burning of the Seawanhaka very near the same place where the Slocum and her hundreds of passengers met a fiery death. This was on June 28, 1880. Within sight of the city's docks the boat was burned to the water's edge, but run ashore in time to save the most of her passengers. She had left her pier early that afternoon bound for Glen Cove, Roslyn and other stopping places along the sound. There were 300 persons on board, most of them business men bound for their summer homes. When the Seawanhaka was opposite Blackwells Island a column of smoke suddenly issued from the engine room, and in an indescribably short time the whole craft was aflame. The excitement among the passengers was great. Scores at once jumped overboard, and many were drowned.

A pyramid of flame shot up into the air, and men, women and children began to plunge into the water. Land was almost within reach, and yet the fire spread so rapidly that all chance of escape was cut off.

Capt. Smith of the Seawanhaka stood bravely at his post until the heat became unbearable. Soon hundreds of tugs and local boatmen came to the rescue; but, despite this fact, there were 23 drowned and many were missing. The cause of the fire remained a mystery.

Perhaps the worst steamboat disaster in the history of New York was the terrible explosion on the Staten Island ferryboat Westfield, which occurred at the Battery on Sunday, July 30, 1871. The boat was jammed with excursionists bent on a Sunday outing, and without a minute's warning there was a terrific explosion, killing 50 persons and injuring hundreds more.

This occurred just as the boat was about to start for her pier. The upper deck of the boat was shattered into a thousand fragments. The boiler had exploded. Crushed and mangled bodies were hurled many feet. The scene was one of heartrending horror. Shrieks rent the air upon all sides. Everything was done to relieve the suffering of the injured, who were brought ashore and laid upon the wharves, but many of them succumbed.

On November 27, 1877, three lives were lost by the burning of the big steamboat C. H. Northam at her pier, Seventh street and East river. The fire completely destroyed the palatial vessel, but most of the crew managed to escape.

Ten persons lost their lives and as many more were injured by the burning of the Bridgeport line steamboat Nutmeg State off Sands Point, L. I., on Saturday, October 14, 1899.

CLEAR VIEW OF DISASTER FROM HIGH BUILDINGS

NEW YORK, June 15.—The flames from the burning steamer attracted the attention of occupants of offices on the upper floors of office buildings in the lower part of the city. From the upper floors of the Park row building a clear view of the East river up to its juncture with the sound is obtainable. J. E. Rhoades, an engineer in the employ of the Subway Construction Company, which has offices on the twenty-seventh floor of the building, said:

"We could see the flames devouring the Slocum, and at the same time we could see children jumping from the steamer into the water. I saw at least a score of children jump overboard. We used field glasses in watching the burning of the vessel. I saw women throw children overboard and I saw at least four women jump from the burning vessel before she was beached."

SLOCUM VICTIM OF MANY MISHAPS

THOUSANDS WERE IN DANGER

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU.
Herald Building, Herald Square.
NEW YORK, June 15.

The Gen. Slocum was built of wood by Devine F. Burtis in 1891, the hull being constructed by the W. A. Fletcher Company. She was of 1,284 tons gross measurement and 1,013 tons net. She was licensed to carry 2,500 persons. Her measurements were: Length, 235 feet; beam, 37 feet 6 inches; draught, 12 feet 4 inches.

She carried a crew of 18 deckhands and five others. This number was irresepctive of waiters and those employed at the soda fountain and by other concessionaires. These employes are said to have numbered about 50. Since May 22 the Gen. Slocum has been making trips with Sunday School children.

Officers of the Knickerbocker Steamboat Company say the vessel was well provided with fire-fighting apparatus, and the board of steamboat inspectors in a report filed today, say that she was certified as "A1."

The certificate shows that the Gen. Slocum had one steam double-acting fire pump and two hand fire pumps and the requisite length of hose, fire buckets, life preservers, boats and other life-saving apparatus.

The Gen. Slocum was a sister to the Grand Republic, but slightly smaller. She was to have gone on the Rockaway route July 1. To prevent her from sinking, she was provided with three water tight bulkheads, two forward and one aft.

Her Speed 15 Knots.

The craft's speed was 15 knots. The cabins and interior work were of hard wood. The upper salon was 100 feet long. The women's cabin, where many are supposed to have burned to death, was located aft, and had dimensions of 65 by [illegible] feet.

On August 14, 1891, four months after launching, the Gen. Slocum ran aground on a mud bank at Rockaway beach. Two days later, on August 16, she ran into the Monmouth off Pier 6, North river, and was slightly injured. On July 29, 1894, while returning from Rockaway beach, crowded with passengers, she ran aground at Rockaway inlet, and those on board were thrown into a panic.

On August 15, 1894, the Gen. Slocum went aground in a storm off Manhattan beach with a load of excursionists, and the frightened passengers were taken off by the steamboat Angler.

On September 1, 1894, the Gen. Slocum backed into the tug Robert Sayre and was disabled. She drifted helplessly with 400 passengers aboard until taken in tow by two tugs.

Passengers in Panic.

On July 8, 1898, the Gen. Slocupm, on her way to Rockaway beach with 250 passengers, was in collision with the steam lighter Amelia, off Pier 12, East river, cutting a big hole in that vessel's side. Passengers on the Gen. Slocum were thrown from their feet and a small panic followed. She was only slightly damaged.

On July 14, 1901, the Gen. Slocum, with 750 passengers aboard, went aground on a bar about five miles off Barren island while on her way back to the city from a short trip at sea. The passengers were badly frightened and somewhat shaken up.

On June 15, 1902, 2,000 excursionists were held prisoners for two hours on the Gen. Slocum after she had struck hard and fast on a bar in Jamaica bay. The passengers were finally taken off in small boats and put ashore.

On July 6, 1902, the Gen. Slocum and the Thomas Patten, while racing to a pier, crashed together off the Battery. Neither boat was seriously damaged.

F. A. Barnaby is president and James K. Atkinson is secretary of the Knickerbocker Steamboat Company. The offices are at 49 Broadway.

HERO FUND MANAGER WILL INVESTIGATE THE RESCUES

Carnegie Commission Becomes Interested Immediately Upon Hearing of the Disaster in New York and Will Look Into the Affair.

The instances of heroism that glorified the disaster in the East river, New York, yesterday, will not go unremembered. Yesterday afternoon officers of the Carnegie Hero Fund commission which was recently established with headquarters in this city, talked over the affair, and F. M. Wilmot, secretary and manager of the commission, was instructed to make an investigation of the affair and report. The fund is composed of $5,000,000 of United States Steel bonds, bringing an income of $250,000 annually.

No promise is made or implied in this action of the officers. They have been placed in that position by Mr. Carnegie for the purpose of carrying out his wishes for the reward of living heroes and the support of those whom heroes leave desolate in case their brave efforts bring them death.

Even the early telegrams to the evening papers yesterday showed that there had been exhibited in the work of rescue much of the spirit that Mr. Carnegie wishes to encourage, and it was perceived by those officers of the commission who were in the city and in close touch with the news, that it was possible that the commission would find in the accident an opportunity to do the work for which it was designed.

In just what manner this will be performed remains to be determined. The idea is so novel and without precedent that a great deal of labor has attended the completion of the details of the commission's workings. Charles L. Taylor, the president, has been engaged on these for some time past, and it is understood has pretty well formulated the plans. He could not be reached last evening, but others on the commission told of the steps that had been taken.

INSPECTORS DECLARE EVERY LAW OBEYED

Slocum Reported to Be in Good Condition at Opening of Excursion Season.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, June 15.—At the office of the United States steamboat inspection bureau in the White Hall building, it was said the General Slocum was inspected on May 5, 1904, and was reported to be in a thoroughly good condition and ready for the excursion season. Aboard the steamer was all the life-saving apparatus required by law for steamers of her capacity, 2,500. These appliances included buckets, hose, life preservers, boats and fire extinguishers.

The General Slocum's commander, Capt. W. H. Van Schaick, one of the oldest excursion captains in the New York waters, has always had the reputation of being capable, careful and reliable, and has had more experience than most commanders of excursion craft in the handling of side wheelers. He has been with the Knickerbocker Steamboat Company, which owns the General Slocum, for several years.

ELEMENTS OF DANGER LACKING ON OUR RIVERS

Excursion Steamers Can Be Run Ashore Anywhere, and Passengers Can Walk Off.

Theodore A. Miller, general manager of the Francis J. Torrance, one of the most experienced river excursion men in Pittsburgh, said last evening:

"The ocean excursion boats draw about 12 and 15 feet of water, while those on our rivers draw only about three and a half feet. This makes a big difference when it comes to beaching a boat in a hurry. It is possible to make a landing in the rivers here inside of a few minutes. We can run in anywhere. Besides, Pittsburgh's excursion steamers take extraordinary precaution against fire or panics from any cause. Our boat carries 1,800 life preservers and has six life boats in readiness all the time, aside from plenty of fire extinguishers and other paraphernalia.

"A short time ago our steamer had a load of 2,000 people, but I arrived at the conclusion that it was entirely too many to carry at one trip; accordingly we have just limited the number to 1,200, and will allow no more to ride at one time. No doubt much more could have been done toward saving the people on the Slocum had there been fewer of them and more chance to keep them orderly."

Capt. John F. Klein, owner of the Mayflower, who has been running excursion steamers here many years, said:

"There is far less possibility of accidents on river excursion steamers. Aside from the many precautions taken and the limit placed on the number of passengers, we can get ashore very quickly. It is somewhat remarkable how few accidents have occurred in the many years of excursion business on the local rivers. A barge went down off McKeesport a year ago and the old Annie Roberts went down off Braddock about two years ago, but in each case the water was low and people just walked out."

About 15 years ago he went on board the General Slocum, and has been there ever since.

SERVICES WILL NOTE DISASTER

Ministers of Seven Churches Belonging to General Council Shocked by Disaster.

ALL KNEW PASTOR HAAS

The news of the New York disaster was received with sorrow all over the two cities, but by no person was the shock felt worse than by the ministers of the Pittsburgh synod of the general council of the Evangelical Lutheran church of North America, to which the New York church belongs. The general council is one of the half-dozen bodies into which the Evangelical Lutheran church in this country is divided. The Rev. Dr. D. H. Geissinger is president of the Pittsburgh synod of the general council. He and the Rev. Dr. J. L. Smith of Christ Lutheran church, East End, are well acquainted with the Rev. George C. F. Haas, the pastor of St. Mark's church, who lost his wife and daughter in the accident. The Sunday services at the churches of the Pittsburgh synod will bear special reference to the accident.

Dr. Geissinger said he did not remember having seen Mr. Haas here in Pittsburgh, but his brother, the Rev. Dr. John A. W. Haas preached in Dr. Geissinger's church some weeks ago. Dr. John Haas was recently elected president of Muhlenberg college.

"I know both brothers well," said Dr. Smith. "Both are men in early middle age, brilliant and brainy. They have for years been a power for good in New York and Brooklyn. It is surely a dreadful shock to the pastor of St. Mark's church to lose his wife and daughter and so many hundreds of his congregation. It is too early yet to decide on a time for holding memorial services, but I will take note of the disaster in the morning services at my church."

Several ministers of churches of the general council were spoken to regarding the holding of memorial services, but under the terrible shock none of them had made up his mind concerning what action to take, although all of them, like Dr. Smith, said they would take note of the disaster at the services next Sunday. It is very probable that regular memorial services will be held on the Sunday following, and the various ministers expect to consult with Dr. Geissinger, the president of the synod, regarding the general nature of the services.

The Evangelical Lutheran pastors who belong to the general council in Pittsburgh and vicinity are the Rev. D. H. Geissinger of the First English church, the Rev. Dr. Thomas S. Brown of the Mt. Zion church, Perrysville avenue, Allegheny; the Rev. Dr. J. L. Smith of Christ church, the Rev. Dr. C. K. Fegley of Allegheny; the Rev. Robert Durst of McKees Rocks, the Rev. Dr. George Lenker of Spring Garden avenue, Allegheny, and the Rev. Dr. E. Belfour of the Memorial church, East street, Allegheny.

Lutheran ministers of the other bodies were greatly shocked at the magnitude of the accident. The Rev. Dr. Alonzo Turkle of Trinity Lutheran church, Allegheny, will refer to it at the services on Sunday.

The First of the Season.

SOUTH SIDE IS READY TO HELP

BIG SANGERFEST SUGGESTED

Members of the German organizations on the South Side were greatly shocked at the terrible fate which overtook the excursionists on the steamer General Slocum. There is a deep bond of friendship between members of the South Side and New York organizations, and last night much sympathy and anxiety was expressed by local Germans, as it is feared that many members of families known to South Side Germans may have been on the steamer and perished in the fire or river.

Almost as soon as the news of the disaster reached Pittsburgh members of the Odd Fellows liedertafel, whose hall is at South Eighteenth street and Larkins alley, prepared for a call from those in New York who will be given charge of the survivors and the recovery of the dead. Henry Lissfelt, an officer and leading member of the organization, last night stated that the Odd Fellows liedertafel will be among the first to send relief to New York if a call is sent out. A meeting of the organization has been called for Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock to pass appropriate resolutions on the disaster and the great loss of life. Preparations will also be made at the meeting, so that if a call for aid is made the organization will be able to respond without delay.

Mr. Lissfelt said his society has always been ready to extend aid to those who need it, and the awful disaster of yesterday afternoon has aroused the sympathy of the members.

"We have many friends in New York, and our best hope and wish now is that none of them was on the ill-fated steamer. The Germans in this country are always ready to respond with substantial aid when it is asked. If any of our friends or their relatives were lost in the accident it is not likely that we will know about it for a few days."

Among the members of the German singing societies of this section plans were suggested for holding a big saengerfest in Pittsburgh in order to raise a fund for the New York survivors. This was suggested as the most practical manner to raise a large sum and at the same time to give all local Germans, as well as others, an opportunity to contribute toward a general fund. Among the prominent South Side organizations which it was stated would take part in such a movement is the Odd Fellows liedertafel, the Germania saengerbund, the German Beneficial union, the German-Hungarian Singing society and the Mt. Washington mannerchoir.

By this means a great fund could be gathered together and with the contributions which will go direct from the German organizations in this section Western Pennsylvania could make a very gratifying and sympathetic showing.

Members of the South Side turnverein, probably the largest and most representative organization of turners in Western Pennsylvania, are preparing to take active steps to lend aid to the survivors.

William Kaiser, president of the South Side turnverein, last evening stated that a special meeting of the South Side turners will be called to take appropriate action and extend the sympathy of the German turners of this section. The members of the organization will instruct the officers to communicate with the German organizations in New York to learn if aid is needed.

Molders to Hold Reunion.

The locals of the Iron Molders' union of the Pittsburgh district will hold their annual reunion on Saturday at Rock Springs, W. Va. Over 3,000 people are expected. Two special trains will be required to accommodate the crowds, the first leaving here at 7:45 and the second at 8:15 a. m.

Millinery in a Quiver of Excitement.

How could it remain tranquil when such rush-along prices are quoted? Some of the prices are almost too ridiculous to print. We'd rather not tell you that we've sailor hats for women—and they're just as smart as can be—for 15c. Yet we have them a-plenty, former prices up to $1.00. But you'll get more on this millinery bargain further along.

We're making a quick clean-up of various lots of millinery, both for women and girls, and if ever sightly hats and turbans and toques were literally sacrificed these are, in the fullest meaning of the word.

At 15c we're selling women's Untrimmed Straw Hats, worth 50c to $1.00.
At 25c we're selling women's Untrimmed Sailors, worth 50c.
At 15c a bunch reduced from 50c, and 25c reduced from $1.00, we are selling different varieties of Artificial Flowers for trimming the foregoing hats.
At 15c we're selling women's ready-to-wear Sailors, worth 50c to $1.00.
At $1.00 we're selling $3.50 and $5.00 Trimmed Hats for Women. These hats are a bit mussed.
At $1.50 we're selling Golf Hats, Toques and Turbans, worth $3.50. And we'll charge you $2.50 for the $5.00 styles, $3.00 for the $7.50 styles, $5.00 for the $10.00 styles, and so on up to the $25.00 styles for $12.50.
At $1.00 we're selling $2.50 Trimmed Tuscan Hats for big and little girls. The $3.00 Hats we'll sell for $1.50, the $3.50 for $1.75 and the $5.00 Hats for $2.50.

The foregoing simply points to very many more like underpriced conceits, each and all as full of Summer style as any woman or girl could wish to wear.

Among the Laces Today.

Despite the fact that all-over Laces and nets are the most fashionable fabric of the day for separate waists, we are offering a lot of various kinds today at one-half of regular prices.

Black 45-inch Dress Nets, Point d'Esprit and Chantilly, short lengths, but enough for a waist, at 50c, $1.00 and $1.50 a yard, from $1.00, $2.00 and $3.00 respectively.

Fancy Tucked Chiffon—18 inches wide—in the color most used, that is white, at $1.00, $1.50 and $2.50 a yard from twice those figures.

A New Line of Beltings Ready Today.

First, there is black corded taffeta belting, 4 inches wide, which is the width employed for the very popular girdle belts. This will cost anyone 65c a yard.

Then there is black stitched taffeta Belting, 1¼ inches wide, at 35c and 45c a yard.

All the above at the Trimming Counter.

Wash Motifs, 10c Each.

If you would like to have a summer gown trimmed with dainty white wash motifs, stop at the Trimming Counter today and pay 10c, instead of the usual 25c each.

We found we had too many and take this means of lessening their number.

Summer Jewelry for Low Prices.

The Roman fop was wont to change his jewelry between seasons because he wore so much and that much was so heavy in the Winter time that it was a burden to carry around when the weather grew hot.

We use the term in a different sense today. By Summer Jewelry we mean the pretty ornaments of feminine wear that go so well with shirt waist dresses and summery frocks. Every piece in the following worth double the price asked.

Drapery Materials to Brighten the Home.

Nothing like new drapery to bring about a metamorphosis in the house. Some new curtains here, new door draperies there, with different cushions and, lo and hehold, the house has changed its Winter dress to that for Summer.

Colored Drapery Swisses, 36-inch goods, can be used for over drapery or curtains, for pillows, etc. 18c a yard.

Tambour Muslin Sash Goods, regular width goods, new designs, 12½c, 15c, 18c, 22c and up to 35c a yard.

Embroidered Swisses in different widths, made to suit any size windows, 35c, 45c and up to $1.20 a yard.

Figured Madrases in ecru, 36-inch goods, at 25c a yard, 52-inch goods at 35c and 45c and up to $1.00 a yard.

Since Travis Won the International Am. Champ.

Since Travis won the championship of the United States and England the club that helped to make him famous and which bears his name will be more thought of than ever.

Travis Drivers and Brassies, $3.00.

Cann & Taylor's Iron Clubs, regular $1.50, today $1.00.

This is the Ribbon Season.

And a ribbon season with a vengeance. Last summer, to use the trade technicality, "Ribbons were sick." But, oh, how they have revived for the present Summer. A Summer dress is not complete without a touch of it. The smartest hats are trimmed with millinery originalities of ribbon formation, it is turned into girdles and neck garniture any many another use that deft fingers and an ingenious head devise.

Fancy Ribbons, 4½ and 5 inches, 18c and 20c a yard.

Fancy Ribbons, 5½ and 6 inches, 25c a yard.

Satin Taffeta, 4½ and 5 inches, 18c, 20c and 25c a yard.

Thursday, June 16, 1904.

The Gazette desires to call the attention of those of its readers who contemplate summer trips to the announcements of the many summer resort hotels published on page 16 of this issue.

Though the Wabash brought a train of special official cars through to Pittsburgh yesterday from St. Louis, the formal opening of the road is yet in the future. Yesterday's train is evidence that the connections have been made and that the great work is practically complete. For the remainder it will require some years of observation to determine the exact value to Pittsburgh of the new interest. In advance it was well known it would supply an addition to much needed transportation facilities.

Controller Larkin has made a statement of his position in the matter of disputing the payrolls of the bureau of health that puts him in a somewhat more favorable light. He says he is not trying to hamper the bureau in the matter of funds and has made no objection to it securing all it may need. His objection is to the manner of keeping the accounts of the bureau, he says, and in that case he is strictly within his rights. The controller is the city accountant and auditor and The Gazette has always given Mr. Larkin credit for efficiency when he confines himself to that line. It is his duty to examine all accounts, and he will be excused even for an excess of zeal in that direction. Our objections have been to his going outside his legitimate "sphere of influence."

United States Senator P. C. Knox has his commission and needs but to take the oath of office to be admitted to full membership. He cannot take the oath until the senate convenes in regular or special session. Meantime he may resign the office of attorney general at his pleasure. He need not do so at once unless that course best suits him and best meets the wishes of President Roosevelt. He may remain attorney general until late in November if he can thereby best serve public inerests. When Col. Quay was first elected United States senator in January, 1887, he did not qualify at once, or resign the office of state treasurer. He remained in the treasury until the following autumn, simply covering his salary as senator into the treasury of the United States. Senator Knox has a less difficult problem to face, as there is no session of congress to avoid.

Bandit Raisuli's latest demands are, as the Washington authorities say, simply impossible. He has increased his ambition to four provinces and accompanies his demand for them by his previous stipulation that the concession must be guaranteed by at least three powers, the United States, Great Britain and one other. The United States cannot make any such guarantee, no matter what the consequences may be to Mr. Perdicaris. That would be encouragement of banditti on the one hand and an interference in the internal affairs of Morocco on the other, both contrary to American traditions. The United States government will hold Morocco strictly to account for any harm that may befall its citizens within the sultan's jurisdiction and will be no party to the limitation or extension of that jurisdiction. If Mr. Perdicaris is killed the United States may demand the capture and punishment of his abductors and may lend assistance in the pursuit, but it cannot accede to the territorial proposition of the bandit chief.

A peculiar situation has been created by the Illinois Democratic state convention. Control of the convention and party machinery was given into the hands of Hopkins, but the delegates to the national convention were instructed for William R. Hearst, whose cause was espoused by the opposition to Hopkins. It is assumed that the instructions will not be held to be binding after the first ballot and Mr. Hearst, it is quite certain, will not be nominated on that ballot. Including the Illinois delegation, Mr. Hearst now has 203 delegates instructed to vote for him. Judge Parker has 234. Mr. Hearst cannot get enough from the states yet to be heard from to put him ahead of Judge Parker, nor can Judge Parker get enough to nominate him. The uninstructed delegates will hold the balance of power and after the first ballot the instructed delegations may be expected to hunt for available "dark horses."

Cut rates on the trans-Atlantic steamships have added to the flood of immigration pouring into this country at an inconvenient time. The Finns and others who are headed for the farms in the northwest are welcome at any time, but the hordes from southeastern Europe, which always find lodgement in the big cities, the mining regions and wherever common labor may be had, are simply adding to an already embarrassing glut of that labor market. Railroads and other large employers have been laying off men and reducing hours of employment. These new immigrants will probably be wholly unable to find the work they are looking for and many of them will not be able to subsist on the capital they bring with them until the resumption of industrial activity makes demand for their services. There ought to be a way to penalize encouragement to immigration by the steamship companies at such a time.

An Appalling Disaster.

More appalling even than the terrible Iroquois theater fire in Chicago is the excursion steamer disaster of yesterday at New York. Language is utterly inadequate to portray the horror of the situation and the heart sinks in contemplation of the sorrow that has fallen upon parents deprived of their children and of children orphaned. It may be some days before an approximate list of the dead can be made, but it now appears that more than one-half of the more than 1,600 persons who were on the boat have perished, by fire, drowning and crushing.

While the responsibility for the awful disaster has not been legally placed, it is evident there was negligence and bad management. The steamer General Slocum was an old one in the excursion trade. It was ripe for the flames when they started. It was without special apparatus for fighting fire and the discipline on board cannot be commended. The life preservers were kept aloft where the children could not reach them, and before any distribution was attempted the fire had communicated to them and rendered them a new source of danger.

There will be a general inspection of excursion steamers now and many precautions will be adopted that should have been enforced before. It will be found that laws have been disregarded and equipment allowed to degenerate to uselessness. It is probable the Slocum should never have been allowed to take out the fatal excursion, but this was not thought of before. The boat had made hundreds of trips without serious accident, and those in charge had come to regard its good fortune as a matter of course and had ceased to think or plan for the possible moment of danger. These things should not be, we all know. There ought to be an official prod at work to prevent a sinking into monotonous cocksureness on the part of those who are entrusted with precious human lives, but the system that has grown in our government is not favorable to alertness in the public interest.

Whether the captain of the vessel erred in judgment in steering for the island will be determined. But in any case that was not his most serious error. He should never have taken out his boat with that sort of a load without having small boats ready to lower and an abundance of life preservers in easy reach of all. Then with effective discipline nearly all of the passengers could have been rescued. Some might have jumped to death in their panic, but at least none would have been compelled to seek a watery grave to escape a fiery death. That is the pity of it, that the sacrifice of the innocents could have been prevented by an application of good common sense at the right time.

Silent Candidacy.

The Washington Post thinks that if Judge Parker had "given himself as much rope as he gives one of his bawling calves he would now be within measurable distance of the nomination." It points to the example of President Roosevelt, who has "lifted his resonant and authoritative voice in many quarters into which only a brave and fearless man would have ventured." As a result he has "by his counsel and advice gained complete ascendancy over his party." All this is quite true as regards Mr. President Roosevelt, but it is hardly fair to Judge Parker. Mr. Roosevelt is president, an office which carries with it a hortative function. It is his constitutional duty to advise and recommend. Judge Parker is a judge, and it is his duty to expound the law upon issues brought before him. Volunteer opinions from the bench upon political issues are not liked by the people or regarded as consonant with judicial propriety. Judge Parker's ability to hold his tongue under present circumstances does not strike us as a sign of weakness but of strength. He seems to us to be occupying an attitude of proper dignity, and if it does him harm with his party, as it really seems to be doing, the more credit to him for his inflexible determination.

To nominate such a man against President Roosevelt the Washington Post thinks would be arranging a collision between an irresistible body of sound and an irresistible body of silence. The facts have been sacrificed for the sage of the antithesis. Both candidates have their letters of acceptance to write, and both will be expected to be full and explicit in the expression of their views. If Judge Parker should be nominated it will be a critical occasion for him, for his present silence will loudly emphasize what he may say then. It may be said that this confronts the Democracy with the risk of nominating a candidate and learning his views afterward. It is rather awkward, but the way to avoid such a dilemma is to avoid going to the bench for a candidate or else be willing to take him altogether on the strength of his judicial record. After having Bryan's oratory dinned into their ears for over eight years, the Democratic masses may positively enjoy Parker's quiet candidacy applying to it the lines of Oliver Wendell Holmes:

"And silence comes like a poultice

The Anderson Memorial.

In Allegheny yesterday homage was paid to the memory of a pioneer who proved that the good men do lives after them. Col. James Anderson was a good citizen, patriotic, enterprising and thoughtful of posterity. While his own affairs were considerable, they did not engross his attention to the exclusion of the affairs of his neighbors or the culture his wealth sufficed to secure. Col. Anderson was fond of good books; he read them, studied them, and in the goodness of his heart gave others access to them. He did good with them—just how much good may never be known, but the unveiling of his monument recalls the fact that he did more than he could ever have hoped for.

Col. Anderson's administration of his library was the germ that has grown into the splendid Carnegie Allegheny library, opposite City hall; Carnegie Institute of Pittsburgh, and hundreds of other fine public libraries on both sides of the Atlantic. It had some influence in bringing to Allegheny county the world supremacy in iron and steel manufacture and much beside. Mr. Andrew Carnegie, who provided the beautiful monument that has just been unveiled with imposing civic ceremonies, proclaims to the world that Col. Anderson made his career possible and that the opening of the world of books to him by the former Alleghenian created the determination in his mind to put in the reach of every ambitious boy the means of obtaining good books to read. Thus the Carnegie libraries are traced directly to Col. Anderson's culture and his willingness to give of it to others. Mr. Carnegie was not the only beneficiary of the Anderson library. There were other boys who read those books who have attained to distinction in the world of affairs. No one knows what that kindness has moved them to do, and no man can venture to say to what all this will lead in the future.

The law of reproduction in the spiritual world has been justified of its products. There is a statement of this law which, in its quoting, has been given a sinister implication. But just as truly it has its beautiful side. "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap."

Saved by the Missionaries.

Great credit is due to American missionaries for directing the attention of the world to the condition of affairs in the Kongo Free State. The first definite accounts of the misrule in that country came from the missionaries. The comment and agitation resulting from their disclosures caused the British government to instruct their resident consul, Mr. Casement, to make a detailed report upon the situation, and so strong an indictment has been framed that the necessity of radical reforms is now admitted by the heads of the Kongo administration.

When Stanley laid the foundations of the Kongo Free State he expected that it would become a great confederation of negro peoples under some kind of international control. The fact is well established that so long as Stanley was in control the numerous Belgian officers under him were deserving of great praise for tact, skill and kindness in managing the Kongo natives. There is also evidence that parts of the great expanse of territory are still conscientiously administered by Belgian and Swedish officials. The cruel oppressions to which natives have been subjected are the work of commercial companies to whom have been handed over the northern portions of the Kongo state. These companies have no interest in the natives save for what may be made out of them, and there is abundant evidence that they resort to unscrupulous methods. Tribes that do not collect and hand over the produce demanded of them are raided and punished. The natives are thus reduced to a state worse than slavery, for the slave owner has an interest in the welfare of the slaves as his property. The Kongo companies do not care what becomes of the native so long as they can skin the country of its wealth. Refractory tribes have been attacked without mercy and natives have been killed or wounded to terrorize the rest into compliance with the demands made upon them.

The only complete remedy for such a condition of affairs is to wipe out altogether the system of commercial exploitation. The administration should be wholly in the hands of officials having no interest in the profits of trading companies and responsible for the welfare of the peoples in their charge. Until this is done there will be always a possibility of the recurrence of the outrageous abuses of authority which have been exposed. Some useful reforms of administration have been made, but they are inadequate so long as concessions are granted to corporations and individuals to squeeze native resources the result of which must be the impoverishment of the natives and the exhaustion of the country.

The Russian general, Gerngross, the dispatches say, was struck by a shrapnel bullet, but remained on the field. One had always supposed that this was the customary thing to do after being hit by shrapnel.

The friendship felt by Mr. Perdicaris for Raisuli will not go so far as their playing a friendly game of "show down" for the gate receipts.

Chicago hasn't any "pike," but the chances are there will be some political piking going on in that city during the next few days.

The majority of Princeton's graduating class smoke and prefer the name of Helen. Sort of Helen-blazes combination, as it were.

Babies and topers will hail with satisfaction the announcement that the bottle plants are not to close.

Talked of in Gotham

By GEORGE C. JENKS.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, June 15.—The whole railroad system in Manhattan will be greatly changed when the Pennsylvania railroad, the subway and the New York Central all finish the improvements they contemplate. So far as the Pennsylvania railroad is concerned its plans are pretty well understood. The great terminal to be erected between Seventh and Ninth avenues above Thirtieth street can be defined by the area of demolished houses within the board fences, and unless the company should make a radical change, its intentions can be seen practically in full. The subway, too, is progressing comfortably toward the distant time when it will be open to the public.

As a sop to the impatience of New Yorkers, a subway station is thrown open for inspection now and then, and as the stations are all handsome and commodious, the inspection is always a pleasant one. In September—or December—or sometime, the subway may be working. There is a general belief that it will be eventually part of the city's system of public conveniences, so little complaint is heard over the delay.

Interest centers mainly in the chaotic state of things around the Grand Central station, for no one seems to know what the New York Central is driving at. Almost daily the report goes forth that the company has annexed another city block or two, and moving wagons are always backing up to houses in Lexington avenue and the side streets, or rumbling along the avenue with loads of household furniture from some brownstone front which has been immune from the attacks of progress for generations. That the Forty-second street station will be a worthy rival, in massiveness and extent, of the Pennsylvania depot of the future, seems to be fairly well established. There is only one thing in connection with it all that is more sensational than the operations of the New York Central, and that is the reticence of its officials as to what they really intend to do.

Warship Practice Not Relished.

Down in Fulton market you may hear criticisms of the United States navy that are evidently heartfelt, even if not exactly patriotic. They are aimed by fish dealers at the battleship Illinois, which has been frightening the fish by its target practice off No Man's Land, and thus hoisting the prices in market. The big guns not only scare the fish, but give palpitation of the heart to some of the merry fishermen who find themselves in range of the 13-pounders now and then, when they think they are safe.

Tammany Will Invade St. Louis.

Tammany will go to St. Louis in force indeed next month. The double attraction of a Democratic convention and a world's fair has made all the braves look hastily over their resources to see whether they can possibly afford the expense and time for a week's junket, and the outcome of it all is that there will be more than 3,000 men wearing Tammany badges on the road to St. Louis on the 3rd of July. Senator George W. Plunkitt, who occupied a bootblack stand in the court house, and who is in charge of the arrangements, is reckless now and says that he does not care how many men want to go.

There will be seven special trains, and they will accommodate 2,000 passengers, with considerable squeezing. The other 1,000 will have to get to the convention the best way they can. Of course, the railroad will find means to carry all who pay for tickets, and there is a general impression that Senator Plunkitt may as well take it easy. He cannot fight all "the boys," you know.

No Relief in Small Coal.

When the Lehigh Valley cut the price of pea and buckwheat coal 50 cents a ton, there was a thrill of hope in the bosoms of consumers that the other companies might meet the cut. The hope died before it became real. The explanation is that the Lehigh has a lot of small size coal on hand, and wants to get rid of it. So far as can be seen now, coal will be as expensive next winter as it was last.

Hard Blow to Sport.

With the great thoroughbred, Waterboy, lame in New York, and Jeffries, the heavyweight champion, suffering from "housemaid's knee" in California, sport has suffered a blow that might easily become a knockout were there not so many other champions, both equine and human, to take their places at the drop of the hat. Waterboy will not be in the Suburban handicap, but the race probably will be run tomorrow on schedule time, notwithstanding.

Horror Is a Personal Loss.

New York is breathless with horror tonight. The disaster to the steamboat General Slocum was of a kind fortunately uncommon in these waters, but it was all the more impressive when it did come. There was not another excursion boat in New York harbor better known than the Rockaway steamer, General Slocum, and everybody here reading the story of the disaster feels that it is personal, just as he would if his house were to be burned down while he chanced to be absent, and some of his loved ones were to be killed.

Poor Place for the Unemployed.

Beggars are swarming all over New York city. It is significant that many of them say they were discharged from employment by railroads in the west, and have come here in the hope of finding something to do. There is hardly a worse place in the country for an unemployed man than New York, although laborers are always in demand on the farms of New Jersey and Long Island—a 5-cent ride away from the city. Fifty-two men were arrested for begging last week, which breaks the record for this city. Twenty is considered the large number for a week, usually. Six months on Randalls island is the panacea of the courts for these unfortunates.

Women Successful as Detectives.

Women detectives are a new institution in the Tenderloin. Their business mainly is to run down pool rooms, and it is said they have been more successful than men. It is difficult for a policeman to hide his calling, no matter how he may be dressed. It may not be always his big feet and heavy shoes that betray him, but the general cut of him is familiar to lawbreakers. Most of the crooks and toughs of the Tenderloin can distinguish a policeman a quarter of a mile away by the swing of his gait. Women are different. The hard crowd don't know what to make of them, as detectives. Neither do the police, for that matter.

The Quiet Observer

By ERASMUS WILSON.

Whoever makes two ears of corn, or two blades of grass, to grow upon a spot of ground where only one grew before, deserves better of mankind and does more essential service to his country, than the whole race of politicians put together.—Dean Swift.

What shall we say of the man who makes it possible for boys and girls and for men and women to develop talents which would otherwise remain dormant, or for lack of proper stimulus become deformed or perverted?

It is a great thing to double the yield of field and meadow, but how much greater to double the intelligence of a community, or even of the few who are inclined to higher mental and intellectual development?

In those days when Col. Anderson concluded to open his library to the boys and girls who were earnest in their desires to acquire knowledge there were no laws compelling children to attend school and no libraries open to all who might care to read, either for instruction or for entertainment.

And he found that those who most gladly accepted his offer, and who profited most by reading and study, were those who could not have gotten books elsewhere.

* * * * *

Some must be great. Great offices will have Great talents. And God gives to every man
The virtue, temper, understanding, taste,
That lifts him into life, and lets him fall
—Cowper.

Those must be great, and those alone, who possess necessary talent and who, possessing it, diligently strive to develop it by proper culture.

God does not give both talent and culture, thus relieving the individual from the necessity of making earnest and persistent effort to improve and develop that which has been given him.

No school, nor teacher, can give talent to anyone. The best these can do is to assist in the development of that which has already been given. This is education—leading, or bringing out that which is within, and not driving or forcing in that which is without.

Therefore, those who offer to those having talent the opportunity to develop it so that it may be profitably employed are real educators, whether they are scholars or not.

The owner of a brickyard who allows boys to play with mud may be the unconscious educator of great artists, particularly if he encourages those boys who make things in mud. It is one thing to merely play with mud, but quite another to make things.

* * * * *

As some tall cliff that lifts its awful form,
Swells from the vale, and midway leaves the storm—
Though round its breast the rolling clouds are spread,
Eternal sunshine settles on his head.
—Goldsmith.

This, from Goldsmith's tribute to the school master, in the Deserted Village, is not in the least exaggerated or overdrawn.

"Even children follow'd with endearing wile,
And plucked his gown, to share the good man's smile."

This couplet contains the secret of his success and of his influence for good upon the lives of all those inclined to respect him because of his learning. Nor was his influence confined to innocent children, nor to those who had been well-bred.

And fools that came to scoff remain'd to pray."

Thus did the earnest teacher mold and shape the lives of those possessed of talent or even blessed with the simple desire to learn concerning the many things with which he was familiar. Nor was he merely the possessor of great knowledge, but he could use it to good advantage.

"In arguing, too, the parson own'd his skill,
For e'en though vanquished he could argue still;
While words of learned length and thundering sound
Amaz'd the wondering rustics rang'd around;
And still they gaz'd, and still the wonder grew
That one small head could carry all he knew."

* * * * *

Nor is a school house with a regular attendance of scholars essential to the success, and to the influence, of a teacher. He may be a toiler in field or shop, employed in an office or engaged in any business or profession. Indeed, these prove to be the very best teachers, and the results of their efforts are more in evidence than of any other class.

The reason for this is that their pupils seek them because they are interested in some particular line of work, or specially desirous of securing information that will make them proficient in that which they have chosen or may choose for their life work.

As you well know yourself, when a child or a grown person really wants to know the why and wherefore of anything they are not slow in discovering it. Nor do they find much difficulty in mastering rules in mathematics or in science if a knowledge of these is essential to success in that which they have undertaken.

It is because they need it in their business that men become proficient in higher mathematics. Only the mathematical genius delights in this as a mere pastime or entertainment.

Col. Anderson took special delight in helping those who were willing to help themselves. And while he took great delight in his books, it was a greater delight to be able, by their aid, to help fit young men to make their lives successful.

* * * * *

The very truth is that those who are employed as teachers at so much a month only prepare us so that we may more readily learn that which will make us great or whatever we may become.

Col. Anderson did not see in Andrew Carnegie, the lively, persistent little Scotch boy, the great iron master and the master of great industries and the possesser of great wealth.

But he did see in him the elements of success in life, if only he was started aright. In order that he might cope with the world he must know the ways of the world, and much of this knowledge can only be obtained through reading books containing a great variety of facts pertaining to the world and its ways.

Not only was the Scotch lad welcome to use his library, and to study his large collection of specimens and curiosities, but all others who showed a desire to learn. Many called through curosity, but few remained to study, and search, and learn. These were the real pupils of this earnest and efficient teacher.

It is not strange, therefore, that his memory should be cherished by all whom he aided at the beginning of their lives, or that his most interested and interesting pupil should erect a lasting monument in his honor, nor that he should establish it close beside the fine library provided for all who desire knowledge or prefer entertaining reading to idleness or unprofitable amusements.

* * * * *

Libraries will not make Andrew Carnegies of all boys, even though they read much and study hard.

There must be something to develop before any development can take place. This something will make itself known in time to secure proper attention if it is watched for and carefully noted when it appears.

This something is the gift of God through the parents of the child. If they have been well mated, and have made reasonable effort to intelligently fulfill their mission on earth, this gift above price may be given to their offspring. Unwise and ill-considered marriages are not productive of talent, nor even of fine human qualities in children.

As has been wisely and curtly said: "You cannot make a tin whistle of a pig's tail; no more can you make a silk purse of a sow's ear."

The monument erected to the memory of Col. Anderson by his earnest, diligent pupil, will tend to perpetuate the names of both, but it is the work the one has done, and that which the other is doing, and may do, that will determine their final values as factors in the great problems of life.

Pigmies are pigmies still, though percht on Alps;
And pyramids are pyramids in vales.
Virtue alone outbuilds the Pyramids;
Her monuments shall last when Egypt's fall.
—Young's Night Thoughts.

A woman in Kansas has become the mother of five children in eleven months. Howling Kansas!—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Political Drift

It is a source of congratulation for both of the old parties that the Populistic influence will be hardly felt in the national contest. The old Bryanite Populists will have less than 200 votes in the Democratic convention in St. Louis, and it is very doubtful now if these are still sufficiently loyal to the vagaries they championed in the last two campaigns to bolt the Democratic convention and affiliate with the straightout Populists who will meet at Springfield. They will not be in sufficient numbers, in any event, to prevent the Democratic party from reasserting its principles and regaining its self-respect, which will be a distinct gain for the country. The platform adopted by the Nebraska Democrats, under the direction of Mr. Bryan, would certainly suit the convention which is to be held at Springfield. There is no earthly prospect that it will be in any favor with the St. Louis convention. It will be a good thing for the Democratic party and for the nation if the result of the St. Louis convention forces the Populists who have been masquerading as Democrats to show their hands and either come out frankly and accept the Democratic platform or retire to Springfield and unite with the Populists, who have at least been honest enough to organize on their own account, and act independently of the Democratic organization.—Washington Post (Ind.).

The selection of candidates for the vice presidency is at present made a subject of merriment by the cartoonist and the comic papers, and pictures are being drawn with prominent statesmen of both parties in the act of flying to cyclone cellars to escape nominations for this office. Comment of this kind not only tenders to injure the dignity of this important office, but it is an exaggeration of the facts. It is true that men now holding such offices as speaker of the house of representatives or the chairmanships of important committees in the United States senate, are unwilling to vacate them for a brief term of four years in the vice presidential office, but the fact is that for a number of years the office of vice president has been occupied by a line of able men, and whenever the office of president has been vacant, the vice president has proven equal to the duties of the higher position, with the single exception, perhaps, of Andrew Johnson.—Louisville Post (Ind.-Dem.).

The probabilities that Joseph Choate will be appointed attorney general to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Philander C. Knox will put a quietus to the Democratic insinuations that Mr. Knox was transferred to the senate at the behest of the trusts. Mr. Choate is now ambassador at the court of St. James, where he has made a record as a diplomat of rare judgment, splendid tact and subtle finesse. There is no need to dwell upon his capabilities as a lawyer, for he ranks with the ablest of the world. But the important consideration, and the one that will silence the croakings of the opposition, is the fact that he is absolutely fearless and independent. He will perform the duties of his office with an eye single to the welfare of the government and with a firm determination to enforce the law. The trusts found in Philander C. Knox an obstacle in the way of encroaching on the rights of the people and they will find in Joseph Choate no less an obstacle. It will be found that President Roosevelt has not budged by so much as the fraction of a hair from his position bearing on the relations between the trusts and the people.—Toledo Blade (Rep.).

The Republican papers are doing their level best to make it appear that Mr. Bryan, if he does not get everything he contends for in the St. Louis convention, will bolt. It is all nonsense. Mr. Bryan knows how to give and take blows. As a delegate to the national convention he will be respected and influential, and will abide by its results.—Indianapolis Sentinel (Dem.).

Every day it becomes more and more evident that the south will actually control the national convention. It is the only section of the republic that has any Democrats in congress. The Democracy controls the south and the south furnishes the Democracy with its only assured vote. Consequently there is no reason why the south should not control the Democracy. A few months ago it was shrieked abroad over the land: Whoever New York wants is acceptable to the south. This has turned out to be a false prophecy. The south is acting on its own motion, and while it may vote for Judge Parker, there is no proof that it will. Only two states in this section have instructed for him, another has indorsed him and seven neither instructed nor mentioned his name.—Memphis Commercial-Appeal (Dem.).

The Federal Constitution is altogether sufficient authority for the appointment of Senator Knox by Gov. Pennypacker. It is as plain as daylight. The appointment has been made strictly in accordance with its provisions, and that appointment will hold until the legislature shall elect Knox in the regular way in January. The appointive term does not end at the moment when the legislature shall assemble, but when the election has been held. There is no hiatus. Theorizing may be interesting enough for those who have the time for it, but the practices of the senate are worth a good deal more than mere theories. Mr. Knox will become senator of the United States when he shall take the oath of office, and, shall the legislature elect him, he will continue to be a senator without an interregnum of a single second.—Philadelphia Inquirer (Rep.).

Apart from any qualifications the president may believe Secretary Cortelyou to possess for the chairmanship of the Republican national committee, his retirement from the cabinet is recommended by the fact that it would create a first-class vacancy to be disposed of where it would do the most good. It is understood that the largest amount of political advantage can be obtained by giving the place to the Pacific coast, and Representative V. H. Metcalf of California is the prospective secretary of labor and commerce.—Philadelphia Record (Dem.).

Leader Murphy of Tammany hall is quoted as denying that "overtures" have been made to him by Mr. Hill or anyone else in the interest of Judge Parker. The denial was hardly necessary. There is no issue in this state over the Democratic candidate for president. That question was settled in the state convention held in April. By a vote of two to one the Democrats charged with that duty elected a delegation to St. Louis instructed to vote as a unit for Judge Parker. The delegates voting for instructions represented 424,782 Democratic votes in the election of 1900, while those opposed to instructions represented only 253,654. The Tammany delegates are thus not only instructed to vote for the nomination of Judge Parker by a two-thirds majority of the state convention, representing almost an equal preponderance of Democratic voters in the state, but are in honor bound by their own words in the convention not to oppose him. It is quite safe to say that any organization Democrat who shall directly or indirectly seek to prevent the nomination of Judge Parker at St. Louis will invite for himself the fate of the man who went through the threshing machine: "He won't be so handsome, but he will know more."—New York World (Dem.).

IT IS TO LAUGH.

"What would you do if you saw a ghost?" said the man who tries to make sport of people.

"Dat am de question," answered Mr. Erastus Pinkley. "What bothers me is what dat ghos' is gwine to do if he sees me."—Washington Star.

"He's killed his chances of election," said the first citizen. "That speech he made to us queered him."

"How was that?" asked the other.

"He started off by saying 'A word to the wise is sufficient,' and then he gave us about 5,000 words."—Philadelphia Ledger.

"'Tis a great ambition Oi hov," said Cassidy. "To work so ye'll hov lots o' money, Oi suppose," said Casey.

"No; to hov lots o' money so Oi won't hov to work."—Philadelphia Ledger.

"I'm not going to sell this picture," said D'Auber, gazing at his work proudly.

"Oh, come! Don't be discouraged so soon. You'll find some fool willing to give you $5 or $10 for it."—Philadelphia Press.

PERSONALS

Maj.-Gen. Nelson A. Miles spent a short time in Pittsburgh last evening on his way from Washington to Waynesburg, where he will deliver an address at the commencement of the Waynesburg college this evening. The general was asked for an opinion on the war between Japan and Russia. He said that until a battle of grave importance had taken place he could not add anything to what he had already said regarding the war. He was asked for his opinion on the political situation, but he refused blandly to discuss any subject of that nature.

Gen. W. J. Henderson passed through the city last night on the Pennsylvania limited on his way to his home in Illinois. "I was having a friendly chat with President Theodore Roosevelt yesterday," he said, "and during our conversation he told me that he would not only be satisfied but pleased to have 'Uncle Joe' Cannon, speaker of the house, nominated as his running mate, if the convention was so disposed to honor him. But, the president said, as Mr. Cannon prefers the speakership, and he has made an efficient speaker, it would hardly be justifiable to ask him to leave the house." Speaking of Democratic politics, Mr. Henderson said: "The Democratic convention promises some surprising developments. Hearst will undoubtedly make a stubborn fight for the honor of being nominated for president, but it will require a dark horse to harmonize the party."

Congressman George Shiras left for Marquette, Mich., last night. He will spend the summer in the same district he has visited for 36 consecutive years. Mr. Shiras' father, the ex-justice of the United States supreme court, has been going to Michigan for 48 years, and his father began to go there more than 50 years ago.

Claude Smith of Jamestown, N. Y., assumed the duties of chief clerk at the Lincoln yesterday.

L. DeBrouckere of Belgium passed through the city last evening on his way to St. Louis. He was appointed by the government to represent the Belgium exhibit at the fair. "The strike of the glass workers in our country has affected business in general," he said. "In view of the poor demands for the product I think the men made a mistake in demanding better wages and conditions."

NAVAL BATTLE IN KOREAN STRAITS

Vladivostok Squadron Hemmed in and Defeated by Japanese Warships.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

NAGASAKI, June 15.—News has been received here today of a terrific battle raging in the Korean straits off Tsushima. Several different versions of the engagement have come from various sources but the story that finds the most credence is that three Russian cruisers, thought to be the Vladivostockers, Rossia, Gromboi and Rurik, were racing through the Korean straits, bound north, pursued by four Japanese cruisers of Togo's fleet, when their escape was cut off by three other Japanese vessels coming from the north.

The Russians at once opened fire on the vessels which barred their way but, although their fire was accurate, that of the Japanese was the more destructive and worked havoc with the upper works of the Russian ships. Still the latter stuck doggedly to the intention of breaking through the barrier and evading their pursuers. One of them did succeed in breaking through the Japanese line, but, seeing her sister ships hemmed in by the enemy, gallantly returned to the attack.

Between Two Fires.

By this time, the pursuing fleet had come upon the scene and joined in the attack upon the Russians. The latter, however, in spite of the overwhelming odds against them kept up a steady fire, taking advantage of the fact that the Japanese vessels, owing to the rough seaway, were unable to maintain a simultaneous fire, the opposing squadrons being so close together that the crossfire of the Japanese endangered their own vessels.

According to the story of an eye witness, just before the smoke of the cannonading became so dense that it was impossible to distinguish any objects at a distance, one of the Russian ships slipped through the line in the direction from which she had come, but her movements were so slow that she was speedily overtaken and surrounded.

News reached here today from Tokyo that Admiral Kamimura, when the Vladivostok fleet was found to have escaped, dispatched three of his fastest vessels in pursuit and notified Admiral Togo to be on the lookout for an attempt of the two Russian fleets to effect a junction.

Kamimura on Hand.

At the same time he is reported to have started south with his slower and heavier vessels, keeping several scouts on the alert to intercept the Russian squadron should it attempt to return.

The news of the fight was received here with the greatest enthusiasm and the fast Russian cruisers which have so long terrorized and menaced the Japanese coasts are now believed to have been completely destroyed and Russia deprived of her last hope of regaining her lost sea power.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 15.—(Special Cable.)—A rumor which has been traced to highly authentic sources and has been freely circulated in this city today carries the startling news that the Vladivostok fleet has eluded Admiral Kamimura's blockaders and joined Witsoeft's fleet at Port Arthur, which had been notified by wireless telegraphy that Admiral Skrydloff had left Vladivostok with the Rurik, Rossia and Gromoboi.

The report goes on to say that Witsoeft was instructed to make every effort to get out of the harbor even at the risk of losing some of his vessels and join Skrydloff at the appointed time.

Rumors in St. Petersburg.

These orders, it is said, were carried out under cover of darkness and the two fleets met at the entrance of the Korean straits. They are now said to be on their way to the Red sea in accordance with the orders given Admiral Skrydloff, which direct the latter to lead the two squadrons to the Red sea where they may take advantage of the secret coaling station established at the beginning of the war, on the island of Djibutil and there await the arrival of the Baltic fleet, which is said to have started and was reported to have been sighted off the coast of Norway.

The object of this movement of the fleets is said to be the carrying out by the navy of the same plan that Kuropatkin has advocated in land operations, that is, withdrawing his forces to some safe point and there awaiting reinforcements and strengthening and reorganizing his forces, finally moving against the enemy in such overwhelming force as to preclude any possibility of successful resistance.

PORT ARTHUR CONDITIONS.

Russian Merchant Declares That Oku's Army Is 12 Miles from Fortress.

CHEFOO, June 15.—(Special Cable.)—According to the story of a Russian merchant who has just arrived here in a junk from Port Arthur, the Japanese army was 12 miles from the fortress when he arrived there. He declares that the Russians have trenches and earthworks at intervals of two miles throughout this distance.

The Japanese fleet, he declares, is no longer able to support the army, the water along the coast being too shallow to permit the vessels to approach.

Port Arthur is well provisioned. There are 9,000 head of cattle there, and the firm of which this merchant is a member has just turned over to the authorities 92,000 pounds of salt beef. Other firms also have supplied the authorities at Port Arthur with provisions.

This merchant estimates the number of men at Port Arthur at 50,000. This exceeds the Chinese estimates by 20,000.

AMES IS DYING.

Former Mayor of Minneapolis, Several Times Indicted, Now on Deathbed.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 15.—Dr. A. A. Ames, former mayor of this city, was reported to be dying late this afternoon. Physicians were hastily summoned and expressed the opinion that he could not live more than a day or two.

Dr. Ames had recently been reindicted by the grand jury on a charge of having accepted money and after having had one trial, which resulted in a disagreement, was about to be tried again when illness prevented his appearance in court. He had been convicted on a similar charge but the supreme court set the indictment aside on a technicality, practically freeing him and making another indictment necessary.

BURGLARS IN CARNEGIE.

While the Family Was Absent Thieves Looted the McGee Home.

The home of John McGee, No. 210 Fifth avenue, Carnegie, was entered by burglars Tuesday night. They secured $8.

Mr. McGee is a conductor on the Panhandle railroad, and went home about 1 o'clock in the morning. Mrs. McGee had been absent from home during the evening, and it is thought the robbery was committed in her absence, although it was not discovered until yesterday morning. Cigars were also taken from the sideboard.

MARINE STRIKE IS DECLARED OFF

CLEVELAND, June 15.—District Captain Paul Howell of the Masters and Pilots' association this afternoon sent the following telegram to all harbors: "Harbors nearly all in favor of going to work. Strike is therefore officially declared off." This applies to both the captains and mates and finally ends the strike of all members of the organization.

Alumni Announces College Trustees.

GREENVILLE, PA., June 15.—(Special.)—The annual meeting of the Alumni association of Thiel college was held in Trinity Lutheran church this afternoon. Officers were elected as follows: President, W. C. Pettit; secretary, T. C. Whiteman; treasurer, C. E. White. The alumni adopted strong resolutions denouncing the trustees of Thiel college for suspending the [illegible]ation of the college for one year.

FIDELITY'S FLAG IS HALF MASTED

BABES IN MOTHERS' ARMS

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU.
Herald Building, Herald Square.
NEW YORK, June 15.

Even those hardened to scenes of death and suffering were almost overcome by the pitiful sights at the morgue. At the department of charities dock at the foot of East Twenty-sixth street, the tugs Fidelity and Massasoit landed with the bodies of 122 victims of the Gen. Slocum disaster.

A thousand weeping friends and relatives of the dead or missing gathered at the foot of the street and were only kept from rushing on the piers where lay the burned or drowned bodies by the reserves of the East Thirty-fifth street police station.

The Fidelity, which was the first to arrive, carried the bodies of 32 women and eight children, all of whom had been burned beyond recognition, and these lay under a hasty cover of blankets on the stern of the boat. Relatives and friends, many of whom were weeping and struggling to get into the morgue, were not allowed to pass the lines and would call frantically to policemen and those who were inside.

"Oh, tell me! tell me my boy is not there," one woman kept crying, and to quiet her she was told that he was not, and she seemed satisfied, not thinking that no one in the crowd had any idea of who her boy was.

In Rude Pine Coffins.

Rude wooden boxes were lined up outside the morgue, and as rapidly as the bodies could be unloaded they were placed therein and lined up in the morgue. The grewsome sight of the rough pine board coffins, which were brought in truck loads, did not add to the composure of those who were searching for lost ones.

The Fidelity, with its flag at half-mast and the crew standing up in the bow as far from the place where the bodies were as they could get, pulled into the dock, and not a voice was heard as the morgue keepers hustled the rude wooden boxes aboard and began to remove the blankets from the dead.

In many cases the little ones, of whom there were eight, were still half clapsed in the arms of their mothers, who had died trying to save them. As these bodies were uncovered several of the men who were carrying them out had to quit their work. The sight was too much for even the strongest, and not a few of those who were admitted inside the lines were obliged to leave.

A man rushed wildly up to the crowd and pushing his way through cried loudly for information regarding his wife and children, who were on the boat at the time of the disaster. The man was Mengus Hartung, a tailor, of No. 342 East Twenty-first street, and he was finally taken in charge by the doctors of Bellevue hospital, who feared for his reason. His wife, Mrs. Louisa Hartung, with his six children, was on board.

Corps of Doctors on Duty.

Mr. Tully, charities commissioner, early took charge of the situation and endeavored to quiet the fear of the waiting throng, who would not be convinced that no one could tell them whether or not their loved ones were among the saved, or whether they had come to the morgue on the Fidelity.

Every now and then a little girl, who had been brought down to the dock by its mother who expected to find another son and daughter among the dead, would creep out from under the ropes and run wildly to some of the reporters or policemen and ask if "Johnnie" had been found.

Long before the bodies of the victims arrived at the dock preparations were under way to make the work of identification as easy as possible, and as the bodies were taken from the decks of the ship they were lined up with an interval of about six feet between each body, so that lines of people could pass in and out and view the remains.

A corps of doctors, under orders from Coroner Scholer, had assembled and death certificates in blank were waiting ready for the signature of the physician to permit the speedy removal of the bodies. ALEXANDER DODDS.

NEGROES FIGHT FATAL DUEL AT HIGH BRIDGE

Quarrel Over Rent Started the Trouble in Jacks Run, Allegheny.

Jacks run, under the High bridge in Allegheny, notorious because of the recent robberies and shootings that have occurred there, was the scene last night of a duel between two negroes that will perhaps end in murder. David Lee, aged 53, is in St. John's General hospital with a load of buckshot from a shot gun in his breast and left arm. His assailant, William Davis, escaped. The shooting occurred in Lee's home about 9 o'clock, and was the outcome of a quarrel started, it is said, by Mrs. Mary Stannard, from whom Lee and his wife rented three rooms.

While Lee and his wife were sitting in their kitchen, Mrs. Stannard went down stairs from the part of the house she occupies, and asked Lee for the rent, as it was due yesterday. When told that she could not collect the money until Saturday, a dispute started and Lee put her out of the room.

Davis, who was upstairs, went down and, knocking the elder man to the floor, started to choke him. Getting to his feet, Lee drew a gun from a bureau drawer and fired once at Davis as the latter left the house. Going upstairs through the read door, Davis returned with a shotgun, and as Lee stood in his doorway, fired. The shot shattered Lee's arm and a number of the small shot penetrated his chest near the heart.

Dr. J. C. Welsh of Bellevue was called and dressed the man's injuries. He was later taken to the hospital and will likely die.

Davis was arrested at 1:30 this morning in Park way, Allegheny, by Policeman Fred Miller when he attempted to enter the house of a friend.

BABES TRAMPLED UPON.

Little Girl Picks Up Three Still Alive and Carries Them to Her Mother.

NEW YORK, June 15.—(Special.)—Lucy Hencken, 15 years old, who lost her mother and brother in the disaster, tell the following story of her experience:

"When the fire started I was sitting with my mother in the rear of the boat. My brother was on one of the lower decks. As soon as we saw the smoke and heard the cries of 'fire' my mother asked me to go below and find my brother.

"When I got down the stairway I found the crushed bodies of three little babies, who had been trampled upon in the terrible scramble. They were all still living, and I carried them up to my mother and put them on her lap. Then I went below again to find my brother. I saw him for a moment and then he was swept away from me in the surge of men and women who were rushing from the flames.

"I succeeded in getting back to the upper deck, but when I went to look for my mother and the three babies they were gone. With my mother and brother gone from me I didn't want to live any longer so I jumped in. As I was going down a man on the tugboat Theo caught me with a boathook and dragged me on the deck of the boat."

Dr. H. J. Powers Is Dead.

Dr. H. J. Power, aged 50, a prominent retired physician of McKeesport, died last night at 10:30 o'clock of heart failure and asthma, from which he had suffered a long time. He was born in McKeesport and lived there all his life. He graduated at Princeton and the Western University of Pennsylvania. He is survived by his widow and three children, all at home. He was a member of McKeesport Elks lodge 136. He retired from practice about 15 years ago.

MOTHERS PLEAD FOR THEIR BABES

HEROISM OF WOMEN NURSES

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU.
Herald Building, Herald Square.
NEW YORK, June 15.

Among the first of the physicians to reach North Brother island in response to the call for ambulances, was Dr. Henry Krauskopf, house surgeon of the Harlem hospital. In less than 20 minutes after the call was received, he, with Drs. Jacobs and Burns and six trained nurses, was on the pier at the foot of East One Hundred and Thirty-eighth street, two miles away. It was a record run.

"It was the most dreadful spectacle I ever saw," said Dr. Krauskopf. "I was at the Windsor hotel fire, and at other disasters where there was a great loss of life, but I never was so affected as I was when I gazed upon the scene on the beach and on the grass of North Brother island. My fellow surgeons and the nurses, who are accustomed to suffering and anguish, shared my emotions. Lying about in various postures were hundreds, so it seemed, of women, and a few children. I might liken the scene to a battlefield, where the victims were all women. They lay in rows on the beach, helpless, some crying for help; others were mute.

"In an instant we got to work. Quickly the nurses arranged the bandages, dressing and instruments, and we began to relieve as much as possible the sufferings of the unfortunate ones. All seemed to be appealing for help at one time, the most touching appeals being from mothers for their children. It was their uppermost thought. 'Please, in the name of God, give me my children—my little ones,' cried a dying woman. We looked about, for the women's plea was so pitiful, but we were powerless. There were children all about us, lying dead on the grass, but we could do nothing to relieve the frenzy of this mother. This is only an instance. Dr. Burns and Dr. Jacobs were each appealed to in the same way. Nearly every woman whom we attended cried for her little ones.

"When I told one middle-aged woman that her children were near, she insisted that I was not telling the truth. 'They are drowned, and I shall never see them again,' she exclaimed. Probably she was right, for I had no way of finding out.

"We worked with a will, for there was plenty to do. It seemed to us that the poor creatures were scattered all over the island. Many of them died while we tried to revive them. In the three hours that we were on the island, I think we must have treated fully 150 persons. The majority were women, although there were several children. Some were badly burned, while others were suffering from submersion. When we could do no more we returned to the Harlem hospital, worn out by our exertions.

"I want to say that those nurses on North Brother island did heroic work. I saw women nurses wade into the water up to their shoulders and drag drowning women to the shore. In words this may not seem much of a task, but to see it done is another thing. The nurses seemed to care nothing for themselves. They were absorbed in their work and performed deeds that ought not to go unmentioned.

"As soon as a victim was revived she was carried into the Riverside hospital on the island, where doctors labored unceasingly for the unfortunates.

"I saw one of the paddle wheel houses literally packed with bodies. They had apparently been picked up while the wheels were in motion and carried up into the wheel house." ALEXANDER DODDS.

SCHOOL BONDS BOUGHT.

Allegheny Board Awards Contract for Enlargement of Two Buildings.

For the purpose of enlarging the two school buildings of the Eleventh ward, Allegheny, the school board of that ward at a meeting held last night authorized the sale of $48,000 worth of 4 per cent 30-year bonds. The entire issue was bought by N. Holmes & Co., the highest bidders, at $102 56.

Owing to the increase in population of the ward and the consequent demand for more school facilities, the present buildings will be enlarged. Between the two structures 30 additional rooms will be added, giving accommodation for 1,200 more pupils.

The contract for the work was awarded by the board last night to Rose & Fisher.

SAVED BY COAL BARGE.

Marie Krender Slipped Into the Water Soon After Hearing First Cry of Fire.

NEW YORK, June 15.—(Special.)—Miss Marie Kreuder, who was rescued and taken to the Harlem hospital, said:

"I was sitting on the upper deck when there was a cry of fire. Men came among us and told us to be quiet. The women and children were panic stricken. I slid down a pole to the water and held on by a rope on the side of the boat.

"The flames began to shoot out of the portholes and I had to let go. A little boy was near me holding to a life preserver. A coal barge was near and a deckhand threw us a rope, which we got and were pulled aboard the coal barge."

OVER 3,000 ARMENIANS KILLED BY THE TURKS

LONDON, June 16.—A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Constantinople says the consular reports confirm the destruction of many Armenian villages in the Sassoun district. The number of killed is estimated to exceed 3,000 persons.

ceived here from various points, such as Chi-Kuzen province, Oki island and Tsuzhima, but the exact nature of the operations of the Russian Vladivostok squadron is not disclosed. The Japanese warships in the vicinity are hurrying to the scene. Sasebo is being closed. There is a strong possibility that a naval engagement will take place soon. No Southern city in Japan is exposed to attack, but this Russian raid may prove expensive to shipping. Private advices have been received here from Katsumoto, a town at the north end of Oki island in Krusenstern strait, to the effect that an engagement was in progress between Japanese and Russian warships.

Anxiety in Tokyo.

A dispatch just received from Moji says the cannonading at sea stopped at 1 p. m. There was a heavy sea in the straits all day. Ten Japanese merchant steamers are known to have left various ports for Moji and there is much anxiety about their fate. It is rumored tonight that the Russian warships have gone eastward.

A flotilla of torpedo boats and torpedo boat destroyers under the command of Capt. Tsuchiya and co-operating with the army, made a reconnaisance in force near Shao Ping island, 12 miles west of Port Arthur yesterday, and bombarded the Russian outposts on the coast to the west of the island.

At noon the Russian cruiser Novik, convoying 10 torpedo boat destroyers, steamed out from Port Arthur. The Russian shore batteries protected these vessels with a heavy cannonade. The Japanese flotilla retreated slowly, firing as it went for the purpose of decoying the enemy to sea. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon the Russian ships returned to the entrance of Port Arthur. The fact that the Novik came out of Port Arthur makes it certain that the Russians have succeeded in blasting a channel through the cement-laden merchantmen sunk by the Japanese in the entrance to the harbor.

Freedom Too Late.

This freedom of egress comes too late to permit of any effect on the operations of the Japanese army, for men, guns and stores have practically all been landed, and Admiral Togo is capable of keeping the remnants of the Russian fleet imprisoned in Port Arthur.

Last Monday night Japanese vidette boats, protected by torpedo boats and torpedo boat destroyers, succeeded in reaching the entrance to Port Arthur and planted a series of mines. The darkness of midnight favored the operation. The Japanese vessels were not observed and they returned to the rest of the squadron without having sustained any damage.

GEN. KUROKI'S HEADQUARTERS IN THE FIELD, VIA FUSAN, June 15.—It was announced here today that the enemy in front of the second Japanese army is increasing and the two forces are coming closer together. A battle is expected. There has been no fighting in front of the first Japanese army since June 12, when two companies of Russians were driven from Wu-Tai-Ho with a loss of 20 men.

The Russians have reoccupied Tong-Yeng-Pu, on the Liao-Yang road; Siming-Tsu on the Lien-Shang-Kwan road and Sanehai-Tau on the Hai-Cheng road, with small forces.

Fatal Draught of Carbolic Acid.

James Sweeney, aged 27 and married, committed suicide shortly before midnight at his home, 3711 Mulberry alley, by drinking carbolic acid. He took the poison in his room, where he was found by his wife, but he died before medical aid could be summoned. Sweeney was a strong, hearty man, and had a family. No cause can be assigned for the deed.

U. S. SENATOR FROM SOUTH CAROLINA
Recommends Pe-ru-na
For Dyspepsia and Stomach Trouble.

Ex-Senator M. C. Butler.

Hence, Pepsin, Pancreatin and a Host of Other Digestive Remedies Have Been Invented.

These Remedies Do Not Reach the Seat of the Difficulty, Which is Really Catarrh.

Ex-U. S. Senator M. C. Butler from South Carolina, was Senator from that state for two terms. In a recent letter to The Peruna Medicine Co., from Washington, D. C., he says:

"I can recommend Peruna for dyspepsia and stomach trouble. I have been using your medicine for a short period and I feel very much relieved. It is indeed a wonderful medicine besides a good tonic."—M. C. Butler.

The only rational way to cure dyspepsia is to remove the catarrh. Peruna cures catarrh. Peruna does not produce artificial digestion. It cures catarrh and leaves the stomach to perform digestion in a natural way. This is vastly better and safer than resorting to artificial methods.

Peruna has cured more cases of dyspepsia than all other remedies combined, simply because it cures catarrh wherever located. If catarrh is located in the head, Peruna cures it. If catrrh has fastened itself in the throat or bronchial tubes, Peruna cures it. When catarrh becomes settled in the stomach, Peruna cures it, as well in this location as in any other.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

MACHINERY OF CONVENTION PUT IN MOTION AT CHICAGO

CHAIRMAN PAYNE ILL

Senator Scott Presides and He Starts Elkins Boom for Vice President.

TRIBUTES TO QUAY AND HANNA

By CHESTER D. POTTER
(Staff Correspondent.)
[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

CHICAGO, June 15.—As a tribute to the memory of its distinguished chairmen, Matthew Stanley Quay and Marcus A. Hanna, the Republican national committee today, after adopting appropriate resolutions, adjourned until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania took quite an active part in the proceedings brief as they were, and it is manifest that the senior senator from the Keystone state will take rank as an important factor in the determination of the problems to be passed upon by the national committee. Like his illustrious colleague, he will keep Pennsylvania's influence always in the foreground.

Postmaster General Henry C. Payne, vice chairman of the Republican national committee, collapsed at the Auditorium annex this afternoon. His illness was such as to preclude the possibility of his taking much active part in the preliminary work of the coming Republican national convention at least. News of his prostration spread rapidly in Republican circles. Great regret was expressed by all at the occurrence and the news was immediately telegraphed to Washington.

Senator Scott Presided.

Chairman Payne requested Senator N. B. Scott to preside at this afternoon's meeting. It was 2:30 when Senator Scott ordered the roll called. There were but few absentees. After announcing the sudden indisposition of Chairman Payne, Senator Scott said:

"I am informed that Chairman Payne had prepared an address in which he would have reviewed the events since our last meeting and have outlined the duties which now confront you. I am not prepared to discharge this duty, having had no time for preparations.

"It is with much regret that I am obliged to refer to the recent death of our colleagues and chairmen, Senators Hanna and Quay. No greater political generals ever lived. You all know of my close association and warm personal friendship for Senator Hanna. He was a great leader, in touch with every point of the compass; a man always fair and who had the faculty of putting himself in the other fellow's place in the adjustment of important differences.

"Senator Quay was chairman when I became a member of the national committee in 1888. All know of the magnificent triumph he then achieved in the face of overwhelming odds. His work since has been of the same masterful and aggressively successful standard. Both Quay and Hanna were men loyal to their friends. They kept their promises. Loyalty to their friends was their watchword. In their death the Republican party has suffered an irreparable loss."

Tribute to Senator Quay.

Chairman Scott then appointed subcommittees to draft appropriate resolutions. Senator Penrose, J. Edward Addicks of Delaware, Graeme Stewart of Illinois, George V. L. Meyer of Massachusetts and Timothy E. Byrne of Minnesota, were appointed to draft the Quay memorial, and Gov. Myron T. Herrick of Ohio, Ernest E. Hart of Iowa, R. C. Kerens of Missouri, Harry S. New of Indiana and Franklin Murphy of New Jersey prepared that of Senator Hanna.

Senator McComas of Maryland, John W. Yerkes of Kentucky and D. W. Mulvane of Kansas were appointed a committee on rules of procedure governing contests and the convention. The sub-committees reported promptly. Senator Penrose offered the following, which was adopted by a rising vote:

Resolved, That the members of the Republican national committee have learned with profound sorrow of the death of our late colleague, Matthew Stanley Quay. For many years he represented the great state of Pennsylvania in this committee. In several campaigns he served as member of the national executive committee. As chairman of the Republican national committee he achieved, by his skill, sagacity, courage and ability, one of the most brilliant victories in the splendid history of the Republican party.

He was ever found to be a genial friend and a sagacious counsellor. His ripe experience, mature and well-balanced judgment and extraordinary knowledge concerning political affairs will be greatly missed in the councils of the party.

In his death the country has lost one of the ablest and best equipped statesmen of his time. He was one of the most influential, trusted and forceful members of the senate of the United States. His many and great public services to his party and his country are recognized and admitted by all.

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be sent to his family and to the governor of Pennsylvania, and that they be printed in the proceedings of the convention.

Eulogized Senator Hanna.

Gov. Herrick reported the following:

The members of this Republican national committee bow their heads in profound sorrow over the loss of Marcus A. Hanna, distinguished throughout his active and honorable life by his devotion to principle, his personality, his splendid courage, his sound judgment, his quick sympathy and spirit of helpfulness, his masterful power of organization and his noble qualities of mind and heart.

He touched society and government, labor and capital at every point. His success was won by industry, consistent purpose, economy and sacrifice; by loyalty to friends and consideration of the rights of his fellowman. In his great work in this committee we learned to lean and rely on him, to trust him with great labors and responsibility, and he proved equal to every demand upon him.

In the senate, in the ranks of labor, in the conferences of the matters of commerce, in the councils of political leaders of his county he was wise, just and patriotic. He was a statesman in the true sense, an honorable man of affairs, a helper in the world's work, and we mourn his death at the very summit of his power and influence with a depth beyond the strength of any ordinary words of ours to express.

Resolved, That a copy of this tribue be sent to his family, to the governor of the state of Ohio and be printed in the official proceedings of the convention.

This also was adopted by a rising vote.

Meeting Will Be Private.

Mr. Gallinger of Vermont asked for the sense of the committee relative to whether future sessions should be open or executive. Senator McComas thought it best to adhere to precedents. Senator Penrose indorsed Mr. McComas' views, declaring that, at the previous meetings, when he held the proxy of Senator Quay, all sessions had been executive. He thought this plan the best, especially so in the determination of contests. Mr. Penrose called attention to the fact that some very warm exchanges were to be expected in the contest hearings, and he did not think it fair to either side, nor of particular interest to the public that statements of this character be published. He moved that all future meetings be executive, and the motion prevailed unanimously. After the committee had been photographed it adjourned.

Interest now centers in the questions of the national chairmanship and vice presidency. Senator Scott of West Virginia has started a decided boom for his colleague, Senator Stephen B. Elkins. Mr. Scott says Elkins would accept the vice presidency nomination, that the Virginias and Texas are for him openly and that he is very favorably regarded by Illinois, Minnesota and several other states. It looks as though Elkins is really anxious for the honor, also that he will have plenty of company.

Not Easy for Fairbanks.

While Senator Fairbanks has been regarded as practically slated for the nomination, his apparent indifference, reinforced by the apathy of those who were expected to promote his candidacy, cooled the enthusiasm so far as he is concerned. Those who are in a position to know say that Fairbanks is by no means assured of the honor, that he must hustle to get it, in the face of a strong field of really receptive candidates.

It is announced that Senator H. C. Lodge and Secretary George B. Cortelyou will arrive Friday. Both are expected to voice the personal desires of President Roosevelt. If the national committee were to decide the question as to whom shall be national chairman, Mr. Cortelyou would have no chance whatever. The committee is solidly arrayed against his selection. Many are outspoken against what they term the unwisdom of his selection, while others personally associated with the administration are more guarded in their expressions.

There is nothing personal in the national leader's opposition to Mr. Cortelyou. They have a very high regard for his abilities, especially in the line of his present work, but they are a unit in the declaration that he is not fitted either by temperament or experience for the strategical political role of national chairman. They assert that the present campaign is one in which nothing should be left to chance and that it is the duty of the committee to impress this fact upon the president.

Penrose Is Suggested.

It is stated that Mr. Roosevelt's preference for Mr. Cortelyou is entirely sentimental, that he has said he would not insist upon his appointment if in the opinion of the national leaders it would jeopardize party interests. I am reliably informed that the national committee takes this extreme view and that it will do all in its power to bring about the selection as chairman of some man more closely in touch with the state leaders that would inspire a certainty of success in November.

In this connection there is much talk of Senator Penrose. He is the undoubted choice of the national leaders. It is, however, extremely doubtful whether Penrose could be induced to accept the place. At one time he would have done so. That was when Senators Quay, Platt, Foraker and other party wheel horses were urging his availability. Then the president thought it best to delay a decision. Later on he suggested Mr. Cortelyou. With Penrose the matter became a closed incident. He has made arrangements to take his usual annual outing in the Rocky mountains and the strenuous responsibilities of the national chairmanship have been eliminated from his personal program.

Gov. Robert LaFollette of Wisconsin is in Chicago prepared to make a fight for recognition by the national committee against the "stalwarts" of his state, among whom are Senators John C. Spooner and Joseph V. Quarles and Representative Joseph W. Babcock, chairman of the Republican congressional committee. Both sides have rival delegations contesting for seats in the convention and the LaFollette people have issued a preliminary statement of their position in the fight.

LaFollette Argument Ready.

In substance the document states that the "stalwart" faction could not have dominated the Wisconsin state convention without unseating all of the LaFollette delegates involved in contests. As the "stalwart" members of the state committee voted to seat two LaFollette delegations, which gave the LaFollette faction a majority of the delegates, though all others should be unseated, the governor's faction argue that their opponents have no legal leg left to stand on to justify their subsequent bolt from the convention.

"This is the second time the 'stalwarts' have bolted us and the last time they cost the Republican state ticket 20,000 votes," said a LaFollette man today. "If we had bolted it would have cost the ticket 150,000 votes. Had all the contested LaFollette delegates been unseated the 'stalwarts' would have had a majority and in no other way."

The Delaware contest will not occupy much time and it is safe to predict a victory for the Addicks faction.

CHURCH SURROUNDED BY WEEPING CROWDS

Beg Pastor's Son for News of Friends Who Were on Excursion Boat.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, June 15.—Heartrending scenes, in which the mothers, sisters, fathers and friends of those who had gone on the excursion joined, were witnessed at the St. Mark's church in Sixth avenue tonight as they gathered to learn the latest tidings of the disaster, and many were weeping and pleading with Charles A. Haas, the pastor's son, who remained behind, to tell them if their little ones were saved, or had gone to death.

Mothers carrying babies in their arms begged for news, only to be told that none was obtainable.

The excursion was the seventh annual outing of the Sunday school of the church, and was in charge of a committee headed by Miss Mary Abendschein.

At the church it was said that the Sunday school children who went to the excursion numbered about 500 and that 700 more tickets had been sold, so there could not have been more than 1,200 persons on board. ALEXANDER DODDS.

LOST SOME OF HER OWN.

Mrs. Gringle Says She Can Not Tell Connected Story of the Terrible Disaster.

NEW YORK, June 15.—(Special.)—Mrs. Kate Gringle gave this version of the harrowing story:

"The fire seemed to spring out of the forepart of the vessel, and the shout went around that the bow of the ship had taken fire. I could see the first evidence of it in the smoke which poured from the forward hold.

"I saw the captain, and heard him, too, shouting to the crew to man the fire hose, and he directed the efforts of his men in fighting the fire, which he told them was in the forward hold. I heard that distinctly. I was among the lot taken from the boat by a tug. I can't tell a connected story. I lost some of my own in the fire."

Hundreds Out of Work.

The management of the Dravosburg mines of the Pittsburgh Coal Company yesterday put into effect an order for one of the most complete shut-downs there for many years. All the men, with the exception of a few pumpers, pit boss and superintendent, have been thrown out of work. About 300 men are affected. No explanation for the shut-down is given.

RESORT TO EXILE NOW AT AN END

Men Still in Victor Bull Pen Will Be Prosecuted for Crime.

REFUSE TO LEAVE COLORADO

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

DENVER, June 15.—"The mines in the Cripple Creek district are opening, business of all kinds is resuming, conditions are normal and more men will be at work within the next three months than ever before in the history of the camp," said Gen. Sherman M. Bell, who was in Denver today, to attend a meeting of the military board.

"The mine owners and business men will see that affairs continue as they are at the present time. There will be few deportations from this time on, as we made a clean sweep of the undesirable characters. Those being held now have committed crimes and will be prosecuted."

"According to reports I have received," Gov. Peabody said, "it will not be necessary, in all probability, to keep the troops in the field very much longer. No more trouble is expected."

Labor Commissioner W. H. Montgomery today received the following telegram from Ralph M. Easley, secretary of the National Civic Federation, in regard to the present troubles in Colorado:

> Can't you get the governor or Gen. Bell to issue a statement clearly discriminating between the American Federation of Labor and socialistic organizations in the present matter?

> In reply to your telegram will say I am not fighting organized labor as such and never have been. The law-abiding citizens of Colorado have no fight on the American Federation of Labor or those affiliated with it. The Western Federation of Miners two years ago officially indorsed the principles of socialism and these principles, as well as coercion, intimidation, dynamiting and assassination are inimical to the best interests of any commonwealth.

ANTONITO, COL., June 15.—Thirty-six union miners and sympathizers deported from the Cripple Creek district were unloaded from the special train near the New Mixican line today, and were driven by the guard, under command of Lieut.-Col. Kennedy, over the border. They were warned not to return to Colorado. Nevertheless, after the departure of the troops, the deported men walked back to this town, five miles north of the line, where a meal was furnished them by citizens.

Two cans of beans and two loaves of bread were given each of the deported men from the quartermaster's supplies. Many of the men cast these provisions away.

Standing on the stone that marks the line between the state of Colorado and the territory of New Mexico, Charles Anderson raised half a loaf of bread aloft and shouted back at Gen. Bell's soldiers: "Give me liberty or give me death!" Another deported miner started to sing "Sweet Land of Liberty, of Thee I Sing." Others took up the words, and they continued to sing as they watched the soldiers and deputies board their train.

An hour later, when the special train pulled out of Antonito bearing the military party, the line of deported men could be seen not half a mile away, marching to town. They say they will now go to Denver and other points in Colorado.

BREAKFAST FOOD FREE.

The Live-on-Three-Cents-a-Day Man Beaten Out by New Haven Cereal Concern.

A New York man has figured out a way whereby one can live for three cents a day.

This looks like money in the bank, but as a matter of fact it's all to the bad when compared with the plan of the manufacturers of the succulent and nutritious health food—Ready Bits.

According to the health food company's proposition, you can live for nothing.

It takes a capital of 15 cents to start you off and sundry dollars to keep you going. But the dollars are to be expended for shoes, merchandise, hardware, etc., not for food.

Here is the way you work it:

With every 15-cent package of Ready Bits the purchaser receives three coupons. Each of these coupons is worth five cents and will be accepted for this amount by any one of a long list of merchants, shoe dealers, drygoods houses, hardware companies, etc., on every purchase of one dollar's worth of that company's goods.

Therefore, 95 cents and one Ready Bits coupon will be accepted by the druggist for one dollar's worth of medicine; one coupon and 95 cents will get you a full dollar's worth of hardware, and the last coupon with 95 cents a dollar's worth of drygoods.

So you get three dollar's worth of necessities for $2.85, thus getting back the 15 cents that constituted your original Ready Bits investment.

Then you try it again—buy a 15-cent package of Ready Bits and use the coupons as indicated.

In this way you can live—if you live on Ready Bits exclusively—without costing you a cent the year round.

This offer of the Ready Bits company is a surprisingly liberal one, and is attracting a great deal of attention among the grocers and others handling this class of goods, as well as among the consumers of cereals.

LARKIN CHARGES IRREGULARITIES

CONTROLLER'S HOT REPLY

Controller Larkin made the charge yesterday that the officials of the health bureau were using bond funds, voted by councils specifically for the suppression of smallpox, to pay the ordinary expenses of the bureau, and that clerks, sanitary policemen and laborers were put on the roll as quarantine guards. The controller produced a list of the names and amounts, signed by Superintendent Moore, to prove his assertion.

He showed that five acting sanitary policemen, whose salaries should be paid out of the regular appropriation of the health bureau, were being paid out of the bond fund, as were a clerk in the bureau of building inspection, two clerks in the office of the bureau of health, a washerwoman at the municipal hospital, who was put on the roll as a nurse, and a man employed as house cleaner there, who was also put on the roll as a nurse.

"They are loading up these people on the quarantine guard roll, so as to save the regular appropriation by paying them out of the bond fund," said Larkin. "The bond fund was not voted for this purpose, and it is my duty as controller to see that the expenditures of the city are legal and regular. I have held up the payroll for the health bureau until these irregularities are corrected.

"I have nothing to do with giving the health bureau or any other bureau money. That is for councils to do. No request was made to me for money. Elias John, Director Moore's chief clerk, saw my assistant, Mr. Morrow, about getting another bond issue. Morrow is clerk of the sinking fund commission, from which the other bond money was borrowed, and he knows all about the situation.

"No request has been made to me for money, and if there had been I could have done nothing. Councils make the appropriations and not the controller. All I have to do is to look after the payrolls and see that they are all right. This is what I have done and propose to continue to do.

"When the appropriations were made by councils this year the health bureau was given all it asked. I had nothing to do with fixing the appropriation for the health bureau. I was not present when the finance committee discussed the matter. Councils gave the bureau $230,000, and it had $60,000 or $75,000 left of the $300,000 emergency bond fund voted last year by councils for the suppression of the smallpox epidemic. There is no epidemic now that I know of, except an epidemic for bonds.

"How has this balance of $60,000 or $75,000 of the bond fund disappeared in the first three months of this fiscal year? It has gone just as I have said—by loading up the quarantine payroll charging it to men and women who are employed as clerks, sanitary policemen, washerwomen, cleaners and laborers. It is my duty to have these people put in their proper places. If they are needed and there is no authority for their employment, the health bureau should go to councils and ask for this authority.

"There is no smallpox epidemic. For the first three months of the last fiscal year—February, March and April—there were 285 cases of smallpox in the city. For the same period this year there were only 51 cases. A statement which I have just received from the bureau of health shows there were only 10 cases in May this year.

"Dr. Matson has seen fit to criticise me. Dr. Matson promised me last October that the smallpox epidemic would be gone in 60 days. So it was, and, I might add, so has the money. I have explained how and where it has gone. Dr. Matson says that I have nothing to do with running the health bureau. I agree with him on that; but he also says that I will be held responsible for the condition of affairs existing in the bureau. What inconsistency!"

MOLDERS WERE ASKED TO ACCEPT REDUCTION

Wage Committee Met Manufacturers, but Failed to Reach an Agreement.

A conference was held yesterday by representatives of the Molders' International union and the Manufacturers' association. The meeting was held in the headquarters of the Manufacturers' association in the Lewis block.

The molders' representatives demanded a renewal of last year's scale, but the manufacturers insisted upon a reduction of 10 per cent. The entire situation was discussed, but the meeting adjourned with a disagreement.

The committee representing the molders will call a convention of all lodges in the district to assemble and prepare what may be termed an ultimatum. The meeting will probably be held next Sunday. If the men are willing to accept a reduction, the manufacturers will sign the new scale, otherwise the men will probably be asked to work on the open shop basis.

The molders had considerable trouble with the manufacturers last year. They demanded an increase of 7½ to 15 per cent. They were given 5 per cent as a compromise, subject to what changes might be made at the annual meeting of the National Foundrymen's association. This body ratified the scale, which expires the last of this month.

POLICE BLOCKED A CLEVER SCHEME

Man Said to Have Passed Bogus Checks May Be Much-Sought-Swindler.

TRAPPED BY DETECTIVE COLE

Through the arrest yesterday of George W. Taylor the local authorities believe that they have captured the swindler who has been giving the police of several western cities all kinds of trouble for the past three years. The arrest took place yesterday morning in a downtown bank, and was the result of a tip received by Superintendent of Detectives McQuaide from a banker.

The scheme which Taylor is charged with working is daringly original and necessitates the establishing of friendly relations with banks, so that the danger of being arrested for passing bogus checks is afterward minimized. Taylor is credited with floating about $7,000 worth of worthless paper before the police caught him.

Last Monday Taylor called at the bank and told the cashier that in as much as the institution had been highly recommended to him, he wished to transfer $5,662 90 which he had on deposit in a Toledo bank to the local institution. The details were arranged and Taylor handed over a check for the amount. After securing a bunch of blank checks, he is alleged to have started out on a wholesale swindling tour.

Bank Officials Were Suspicious.

The people at the bank became suspicious of him and at once telegraphed the Toledo bank, only to find that Taylor's account there was mythical. The detective bureau was notified and Detectives Demmel and Cole sent out to investigate.

They went to the bank yesterday morning to get a look at Taylor, should he appear. While there a check for $100, signed by Taylor, was sent in for deposit by a Smithfield street department store. It was learned that Taylor had been to the store Tuesday afternoon and had purchased about $300 worth of goods. He left the check as an evidence of good faith, the balance to be paid when the goods were delivered the next day. At the store he said he lived at the Seventh Avenue hotel.

Detective Demmel stopped the delivery of the goods and went to the store to wait for Taylor, while Detective Cole stayed at the bank. A few minutes later Taylor went into the latter place and inquired about his account. He was told that the transfer had not been made, but was led to believe that everything was all right.

Drew a Check for $60.

He then arranged to draw $60, pending the arrival of his funds. He signed a check for the amount and was at once arrested.

The detectives later discovered that Taylor had given a woman living at 60 Craig street, Allegheny, a check for $900 and had also paid a bill for cab hire with a worthless check for $26. When locked up in Central police station Taylor refused to tell anything about himself, except to state that he was 23 years old and lived in Detroit.

Superintendent McQuaide learned last night that Taylor is likely the man that worked the same swindle in Toledo and Detroit. This morning Taylor will be photographed for the rogue's gallery, and the pictures sent to the police of other cities in an attempt to better identify him.

The conference was protracted, but the details were not dis-

STRANGE DEATH OF WORKMAN BY ACCIDENT

Electric Light Exploded Gasoline in Tanks—Other Deaths Reported to Coroner.

A gasoline explosion resulting from the breaking of an electric light globe cost the life of Charles H. Hardy, aged 28, colored, of 716 East Ohio street, Allegheny, in McKees Rocks hospital yesterday afternoon. Hardy was employed in the McKees Rocks plant of the Pressed Steel Car Company, and last Friday was put to work painting the inside of a steel tank which had formerly been filled with gasoline. A quantity of the fluid remained in the bottom of the tank.

To supply light so that he could see to work, a small incandescent light was placed in the tank. In moving about Hardy broke the light globe, and when the gasoline fumes came in contact with the sparks from the broken light an explosion followed. He was horribly burned about the head, face and arms.

R. T. Roberts, aged 62, of McKeesport, was struck and instantly killed by a construction train on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad at Christy park about 11 o'clock yesterday morning.

Arthur Pratt, aged 80, of Craft place, died suddenly yesterday of heart disease.

POLICE WILL ASK FOR NEW PAWNBROKER'S ORDINANCE

As the result of the decision of Judge Brown declaring the ordinance licensing pawnbrokers illegal, a new measure will be introduced into councils by Director Moore. The safety officials assert that unless they have control over the pawnbrokers they cannot prevent the "fence" system of disposing of stolen goods.

PONY RUNAWAY MAY KILL TWO

BABY ESCAPED UNINJURED

Frightened at the caprices of one of its stable companions, a diminutive pony driven to one of the little go-carts, ran off in Kennywood park last night, and in sight of hundreds of spectators, dashed the occupants, two women, a man and a babe, to the ground. The women were seriously hurt and may die. The injured:

MRS. EDWARD WILLIAMS, aged 25, of 3038 Thirty-eighth street, Pittsburgh. Skull fractured by being beaten in by pony's hoof. Recovery very doubtful.

MRS. MARY J. WILLIAMS, aged 80, mother-in-law of Mrs. Edward Williams. Left arm fractured, right thigh and left shoulder dislocated and suffering acutely from shock. Condition critical.

Edward Williams, accompanied by his wife, mother and 15-months-old son, hired a pony cart shortly after 7 o'clock last evening after having spent the day on the grounds. The whole party occupied one cart and had driven about half way around the course, when a pony drawing a cart in the rear became fractious, and rearing and bucking, crashed into the Williams cart. The latter's pony then became frightened and dashed off, regardless of efforts on the part of Mr. Williams to check him. Making a sharp turn, the occupants were thrown violently to the ground. The baby landed 25 feet away and escaped without a scratch. Mr. Williams sustained a few slight bruises. The younger Mrs. Williams was trampled under the horse's hoofs and had her skull kicked in in the frantic efforts of the animal to release himself from the entangled harness. Mrs. Mary Williams sustained her injuries from the fall.

After emergency attendance by Dr. Adam Orr, who was on the grounds, the two women were taken to the McKeesport hospital, where it was found necessary to trepan the skull of the young woman in an effort to save her life. Her condition was very grave at a late hour last night, while the elder Mrs. Williams was also in a critical condition, owing to her advanced years. Mr. Williams was able to go home and took the uninjured babe with him.

DEADLOCK ON ELECTION OF PRINCIPAL UNBROKEN

Directors of Mt. Albion School District Reach No Conclusion.

In a second effort to elect a principal and 39 teachers the directors of the Mt. Albion school district met last night in the McCandless school building, Fifty-second and Butler streets, and adjourned without even casting a ballot and without fixing any date for a future meeting. The board had met last week and adjourned after a deadlock had been effected by casting three votes for Miss Jennie Martin and three for W. F. Proudfit for principal. Mr. Proudfit is the incumbent.

When Chairman Archibald Miller called the meeting to order last night a motion was made by Director John Pritchard to re-elect all teachers, substitute teachers and the assistant principal before taking up candidates for principal, as a deadlock was evident. Director David Skeehan moved to amend the motion by electing the principal first. The chair held the amendment out of order, and the original motion was then put and lost. Mr. Skeehan then moved to elect a principal for three years, and the motion was lost by a vote of 3 to 3. A motion to adjourn was made, and Mr. Pritchard moved an amendment that the chair fix a specified time. The amendment was ruled out of order and the meeting adjourned.

Chairman Miller said last night that the majority of the board were against fixing a time, as they were somewhat hampered in discussing the candidates by the large attendance of spectators last night. A meeting would be called within 10 days, when the directors would probably not be embarrassed. It is thought that a compromise candidate will finally be selected, and among those mentioned is Miss Rose McCleary, who was deposed two years ago after a deadlock lasting 10 weeks and after 37 ballots had been taken, when Mr. Proudfit was chosen. Other possible candidates mentioned are Prof. McCullough of the South Side and Prof. Bakerof of Crafton. Miss McCleary, who will have strong support at the next meeting, had been principal of the school for over 20 years before her removal.

Well-Known Principal Re-Elected.

At a meeting of the school board of McKees Rocks, held last night, Prof. E. H. Powers, for 14 years principal of the schools, was re-elected for a three-year term. A corps of 18 teachers was re-elected, and to fill a vacancy Miss Mary Luther of McKees Rocks was elected.

INVEST YOUR MONEY WHERE THERE IS SOMETHING TO MAKE IT GROW

THE GREATEST SPOT IN THE WORLD FOR THE AMBITIOUS MAN IS

Economy City,

WHERE MILES OF SMOKELESS INDUSTRIES ARE BEING BUILT---WHERE THOUSANDS OF WORKMEN ARE BEING CROWDED INTO TRAINS BOUND FOR DISTANT POINTS OWING TO SCARCITY OF HOUSES.

"Where thousands of workmen are being crowded into trains bound for other points owing to scarcity of houses." If you want to be impressed with the most weighty point ever presented for any real estate investor's consideration, seek a position of vantage some evening when the whistles blow for quitting time at the American Bridge Company's colossal plant and watch the grand rush for trains, which carry countless numbers of workmen to their homes MILES AWAY FROM THEIR EMPLOYMENT. The wondrous scene will give you inspiration. It means more than you are likely to comprehend at first glance even now, when the rising city of Economy is but in its infancy, and 2,000 workmen are employed at the big works.

But wait. If present conditions show an unparalleled opportunity for making big money, what do you think the fruits of grasping this opportunity will be when the American Bridge Company's additional buildings are completed and from 8,000 to 10,000 workmen are employed? If money invested with the birth of such a great industrial city meets with a growth parallel with the city's growth, a fact which needs no dwelling upon, then you can see your original investment in Economy real estate double many times while the inevitable expansion is going on.

There are still some of the greatest money-making locations—those close to where the banks, department stores, and hotels will be built—to be had if you don't delay. An investment of from $625 to $1,250 here will work wonders. But the man who doesn't act with dispatch cannot expect to get these. Every day shows your opportunity for getting in on the real cream of the matchless proposition growing slimmer.

While the existing conditions at Economy City are sufficient argument to influence any man to invest his money there, yet they show but a fraction of what the entire grand proposition is. If the great smokeless industrial city depended upon the American Bridge Works alone, its future would still be wonderful, but it doesn't depend upon it alone. You will appreciate this when you realize that Economy is the only broad expanse of territory left on the valuable water fronts of the Pittsburgh district. Other great industries will be attracted to it as sure as flies are attracted to molasses. And there is enough of this land still available to make it possible to establish a city that will in not many years record a population of more than half that which was given to Pittsburgh at its last census.

If you want to buy in the splendid residential section we would advise Ohioview Avenue as the ideal spot. Of course there are many other locations which may appeal to you as being just as desirable (the entire property is as level as the Ohio river when it's as smooth as glass!) but then on Ohioview Avenue you get the beautiful view of the river and surrounding country.

Terms are 10 per cent down and balance in easy monthly payments thereafter. You can purchase by mail. Our system of giving information by mail makes selection as safe and easy as though you visited the property personally.

THOUSANDS SAW BUST UNVEILED

MANY PROMINENT SPEAKERS

Seldom in the history of Allegheny has there assembled such crowds as gathered yesterday afternoon to witness the unveiling of the monument erected by Andrew Carnegie in honor of the late Col. James Anderson, founder of the first free library on the North Side. From all parts of the city, and from all walks of life, the people went to contribute their token of respect to the man whose generosity, years ago, opened to the poor boys of the city the portals of literature and knowledge. Until recently but little known the memory of Col. Anderson has been immortalized by the great philanthropist whose retrospect turns fondly to the days, when, his labors over, he retired to a quiet corner of the old Anderson library, and fed his eager mind on the fruits of master intellects.

Before 2 o'clock more than 3,000 school children were drawn up in platoons extending along Montgomery avenue from Federal street to Sherman avenue, and from there south to Stockton avenue. These were under the direction of Prof. John Morrow, marshal of the division.

Grand Army Men in Line.

Grand Army posts, Nos. 128, 88 and 162; Allegheny lodge, No. 339, Benevolent and Protective Order Elks; Voegtley's cadets and the Second regiment, Boys' brigade, composed the first division, headed by the American Military band. These followed a guard of mounted police under Capt. James Wilson and 100 officers on foot, under command of Capt. James Agnew. The combined German Singing societies, under Marshal William Manning, were the second division and were followed by the school children.

The rear of the procession was made up of carriages, in which rode Mayor James G. Wyman, the other city officials and the members of councils. Miss Louise Adele Anderson, granddaughter of Col. Anderson, occupied a carriage with Mayor Wyman, Col. Samuel Harden Church, William N. Frew and Chairman John W. Robinson. John A. Fairman acted as chief marshal of the parade and Maj. H. K. Tyler was adjutant general. Before breaking ranks the procession marched past the reviewing stand at Ohio and Federal streets, in which were seated Mayor Wyman and his staff.

Exercises at the Monument.

The Rev. John A. Jayne opened the exercises with the invocation. A song by the German Singing societies was followed by the ceremony of formally unveiling the bust of Col. Anderson and the bronze figure of "Labor," which was done by Miss Anderson.

Mr. Frew was the first speaker and devoted but few words in formally presenting, in behalf of Mr. Carnegie, the monument to the city. He was followed by Mayor Wyman, Stephen G. Porter, Col. Samuel Harden Church, the Rev. Dr. J. Leonard Levy, Richard B. Scandrett and George D. Riddle.

Assistant Superintendent John Glenn had charge of the police, whose duty it was to keep the crowds behind the ropes drawn along Federal and Ohio streets. Through some misunderstanding the rope in Federal street was dropped and hundreds swarmed up the steps leading to the monument, and crowded into the seats on the stand behind. This was taken good-naturedly by the police and those who were taking part in the exercises, and not the slightest trouble followed. For almost an hour street car traffic along Federal and Ohio streets was stopped and no vehicles were allowed within a block on all sides of the Carnegie library corner.

A Revolutionary Warrior.

Col. James Anderson, whose munificence has been so gratefully remembered by Andrew Carnegie, was a native of Allegheny and an officer in the war of 1812. Being a man of literary tastes and some means he collected in his quieter years a magnificent library, and in the early 40s threw open the doors of this literary treasure house to the poor boys of the city. The library was first located at the southeast corner of Federal street and the Diamond, on the site of what is now the Second National bank. The first librarian was Mathias McGonnigle, father of Robert D. McGonnigle. In 1853 it was moved to 611 West Diamond street and Horatio Kelsey Tyler was made librarian. The latter won renown in the civil war and left the service with the title of major. He acted as adjutant general in the parade yesterday. With the outbreak of the war of the rebellion the library was closed and the books stored in the basement of city hall.

In 1865 the old Anderson library was incorporated with the Allegheny Library association, from which grew the present Citizens Free Library, now in the new High school annex in Arch street.

YOUNG DECLINES HONOR OF GOING TO ALASKA

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

WASHINGTON, June 15.—The investigation of charges filed against certain judges in Alaska will not be made by United States District Attorney James S. Young of Pittsburgh. A few weeks ago Mr. Young was selected for this mission by President Roosevelt and Attorney General Knox because the president wished a thorough examination of the facts by a man in whose judgment and integrity he had the fullest confidence.

Mr. Young was to start for Alaska as soon as he could arrange his affairs, but he has since declined the honor. He has written to Attorney General Knox stating that after considering the matter he has concluded that the investigation would require more time than he could spare from his duties at district attorney and asking to be releived of the assignment.

Mr. Knox has complied with this request and has appointed in Mr. Young's stead Judge William A. Day, assistant to the attorney general. Judge Day will start for Alaska the latter part of this month, and his work there will probably occupy several months. Although a Democrat, Judge Day enjoys the confidence of Attorney General Knox in a high degree. He is an expert of the department of justice on trusts and has taken an important part in the prosecutions under the anti-trust laws. He was formerly attorney for the inter-state commerce commission and is the man upon whom Mr. Knox's successor will rely to a great extent in dealing with infractions of the anti-trust laws.

HABEAS CORPUS FOR MOYER IS GRANTED

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

ST. LOUIS, MO., June 15.—United States Circuit Judge A. M. Thayer, sitting in chambers, has granted a writ of habeas corpus to have Charles H. Moyer, president of the Western Federation of Miners, brought before him on July 5. The writ is directed against Gov. J. H. Peabody of Colorado, Adjt.-Gen. Bell and Buckley Wells, another Colorado official. The three have been cited to appear with Moyer and show cause why Moyer is being restrained from his liberty by being confined in a stockade, better known as the "bull pen," at Telluride, Col.

The granting of the habeas corpus is the result of the war that has been going on between the miners' unions and Colorado officials for several months. Today Attorneys Hawkins and Richards of Denver arrived in St. Louis, and went direct to the federal building where for more than three hours they argued the case of Moyer before Judge Thayer.

GOULD DRIVES THE LAST SPIKE

NOT OPPOSING SENATOR KNOX

George J. Gould, head of the Gould system of railroads, drove at Mingo Junction, O., yesterday morning the spike that completed the connection of his western system with Pittsburgh. Then in a special train composed ofhis own private car, Missouri Pacific A 1, the private car Wabash 1 of President Joseph Ramsey, Jr., and the private car "Milan of the Wabash Pittsburgh line, he headed a party that traveled first over the whole line from the Wheeling & Lake Erie, across the Mingo bridge through the beautiful wooded country in West Virginia and Pennsylvania, and through great tunnels and across great bridges into the heart of Pittsburgh. The train emerged from the Mt. Washington tunnel into sight of the city amid the screaming of a thousand whistles on river craft, factories, mills, furances and stores and the enignes of other railroads. The practical completion of the work of four years of storm and stress was realized at last. The track shown in the sun from the Wabash lines in the west to the Pittsburgh passenger station.

With Mr. Gould were President E. T. Jeffrey of the Denver & Rio Grande railroad, another Gould line, and Benjamin Nicoll of the firm of B. Nicoll & Co., New York. These three gentlemen had come on from Washington to Wheeling over the Baltimore & Ohio Tuesday night and were joined at Wheeling yesterday morning by President Ramsey of the Wabash with a number of officials.

These included Chief Engineer W. S. Newhall of the Wabash, General Superintendent Robert Blickensderfer and Superintendent J. E. Taussig of the Wheeling & Lake Erie; General Counsel A. M. Neeper and Assistant Engineer J. W. Patterson, Jr., of the Wabash Pittsburgh terminal. The party was met in Pittsburgh by President J. W. Patterson of the Wabash Pittsburgh terminal; Col. W. D. Holliday, assistant general freight agent; Col. F. H. Tristram, assistant general passenger agent; George T. Barnsley, division engineer; Charles Hamilton, city passenger agent; N. P. Ramsey, Dayton, O.; D. H. Fenton, Washington, D. C.; H. B. McClellan, C. H. Latta and Edwin P. Benson, New York.

Accompanied by Presidents Ramsey and Paterson Mr. Gould walked yesterday afternoon over the greater part of the ground that is covered by the proposed extensions, including the South Side line and the line on Duquesne way. He was shown the methods by which the Wabash line will enter the freight centers. Mr. Gould and his party will remain in Pittsburgh until about noon today, and then go west over the new line to inspect the Wheeling & Lake Erie.

Positive denial was made by the railroad magnate yesterday of the reported import of his visit to President Roosevelt on Tuesday. It was alleged that he had gone there in order to express his disapproval of the selection of Attorney General P. C. Knox as senator. Mr. Gould said yesterday that his visit was entirely a social one, and that far from opposing Mr. Knox he believed him to be a man eminently qualified for the position.

Mr. Gould was the guest at dinner last evening of H. C. Frick, who was one of the strongest factors in obtaining the honor for Mr. Knox. He spent the night in his car, which was placed on a siding at Greentree.

On the train coming into Pittsburgh yesterday was Miss Kate Abraham, for 50 years a teacher in the public schools on the South Side. Miss Abraham was many years ago the teacher of President Ramsey and N. P. Ramsey of the Wabash. She returned from St. Louis on President Ramsey's car and the trip yesterday made her the first woman passenger over the new line to Pittsburgh.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

PHILADELPHIA, June 15.—Pittsburgh did not get going until the fourth inning this afternoon, but once they got started the Phillies could not stop them, and Clarke's men scored in every inning after the third, rolling up a total of 9 to 3.

The Phillies were in the lead until the fifth, but after that Leever did not allow another hit, and the only local man who reached first base in the last five innings was Lush on a fumble by Leach. This, by the way, was the only error charged against the champions.

Duggleby was found for 17 safe drives, but three of the errors behind him helped the visitors considerably getting men over the plate. The Phillies hit Leever rather freely as long as they were in the lead. A great throw to the plate by Beaumont in the first inning cut off Thomas, and it was not until the third that either side scored. In this inning Roth hit for two bases, took third on Duggleby's sacrifice and scored on Thomas' hit to Ritchey, the latter being a second too late with his throw to the plate.

In the fourth the Phillies found Leever for four hits, including a two-bagger by Hulswitt, which earned two runs. A fast double play by Wagner, Ritchey and Bransfield prevented more damage being done in this inning.

Pittsburgh's run getting started in the fourth, when Beaumont singled, took second on Clarke's sacrifice and scored on Wagner's single. The visitors tied the score in the fifth, making two runs on Leever's single, Leach's triple and Beaumont's single.

Wagner started the sixth with a fine drive to left for two sacks. Bransfield's fly caused Barry and Gleason to fall over each other, and "Kitty" got credit for a basehit. Wagner started for the plate and drew a wild throw from Gleason, allowing Bransfield to go to second. Sebring fouled out, but Ritchey brought Bransfield home with a single. Phelps and Leever also made hits in this inning, but with the bases full Leach hit into a double play.

In the seventh Clarke beat out a bunt. Wagner doubled and after Bransfield got a life on Roth's muff of a foul fly he made a terrific drive to the left field wall, sending Clarke and Wagner over the plate. Although this was the longest hit of the game, Bransfield only got two bases on it and was caught trying to make third.

One more was added in the eighth on Phelps' scratch hit, Leever's sacrifice, Leach's out and Beaumont's single. Wagner reached third on a wild throw by Wolverton in the ninth and scored on Bransfield's out. The batting of Beaumont and Wagner was terrific, but the entire Pittsburgh team took a hand in the batting matinee, each man getting at least one hit. The work of the Phillies' outfield and the playing of Wagner and Ritchey was the fielding features. The score:

McGinnity Seems Easy Now.

Boston Beat Colts Again.

BOSTON, June 15.—Chicago made three runs on five consecutive hits in the opening inning today, but Willis was highly effective thereafter. JEFFRIES IN BAD SHAPE.

Must Remain in Bed and Fight May Be Called Off.

HARBIN SPRINGS, CAL., June 15.—(Special.)—Jeffries' left knee was operated upon at noon today. A tablespoon and a half full of pus was removed. Jeffries will have to remain in bed for five or six weeks. At the expiration of that time he may be able to continue training. Dr. Devening, who performed the operation, was greatly surprised at the condition of the champion's knee when he got beneath the skin.

Unless the condition of Jeffries continues to improve steadily the fight will be declared off. The probable indefinite postponing of the battle is greatly worrying the champion, as he feels that the impression will go abroad that he is permanently out of the business. Aside from the knee trouble, Jeffries is in pretty fine shape. His forced rest put a good deal of weight on him, but he figures he can carry this additional beef without serious interference to his fighting qualities.

DENY THE REPORT.

Ed Barrows Will Not Be Replaced by a College Boy.

DETROIT, June 15.—When shown the statement that Manager Ed J. Barrow of the Detroit American league team was to be replaced by George Huff, graduate athletic manager of the University of Illinois, on Saturday next, Business Manager F. J. Navin of the Detroit club said:

"The report is entirely untrue. I never even heard of the man before, and I know that Mr. Yawkey, the owner of the team, does not know him. The report that Parker and Zangerle of the Illinois team are to sign with Detroit is equally untrue."

Would Not Stand Fool Play.

Umpire Donahue became disgusted with the Smoky City Giants' tactics in the tenth inning and awarded the game to P. A. C., 9 to 0, yesterday. P. A. C. hit in hard luck and were behind until the eighth, when Joe Steen hit over the middle field fence, bringing Jordan in ahead of him, tying the score. In the tenth Shettler's hit brought two runs over. The Giants, who had caused a lot of delay all through the game by dilatory tactics, then proceeded to make a farce of the game to prevent a P. A. C. victory. Score:

LAIN WITH DEAD WHILE YET ALIVE

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU.
Herald Building, Herald Square.
NEW YORK, June 15.

When an ambulance rolled up to the Alexander avenue police station the men in charge carried in the body of a gray-haired woman and added it to the row in the temporary morgue. Then they started with a lighter burden, a fair-haired young girl, wrapped in a gray blanket. The men were in haste to meet the work awaiting them and they laid the young girl at the end of the row, scarcely noticing her.

"I saw her hand move," said a woman standing by. At that moment the girl sat up.

"Take her out of this place, or she will be," said the woman who had first noticed the signs of life in the girl.

Fortunately, the latter was too dazed to notice the living and the dead, and when she was placed in a chair in the office outside she sat there without moving. She was conscious, however, and gave her name and address: Clara Hartman, 11 years of age, of 300 East Tenth street. Her mother and sister, she said, had been with her—where they were she did not know. She was absolutely apathetic, but when someone suggested getting her some whisky she feebly protested, "Oh, no; not that."

The crowd left her sitting white and alone, wrapped in her gray blanket, while the interest centered in the the newly arrived victims. Presently the girl became very ill. Someone noticed it. The authorities had her taken to Lincoln hospital, where she was convalescent tonight. She did not remember having been carried with the bodies in the ambulance.

"I wasn't dead, was I?" she asked vaguely. "But my mother and sister are, aren't they?"

Then she turned her white face away and sobbed.

IRISH LAD FAVORITE FOR THE BIG SUBURBAN

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, June 15.—A small field of the finest thoroughbreds will struggle tomorrow at Sheepshead bay for the "blue ribbon of the eastern turf"—the $20,000 suburban handicap, at one and a quarter miles. So evenly balanced are the chances of the most prominent candidates in the twenty-first running of this classic event that even the most expert opinions as to the probable result are valueless.

An adjustment of weights made for tomorrow's event will decide more equitably the merits of the first four horses in the Brooklyn handicap, won by The Picket. Confidence of the eastern turfmen is supreme in the belief that The Picket will be unable to repeat, and Irish Lad will go to the post the public favorite, as he was in the handicap.

Hermis, from the stable of Edward R. Thomas, is in grand form, as was demonstrated when he won the Brookdale at Gravesend yesterday, almost equaling the track record for one mile and a furlong. This victory cost the son of Hermence an added pound in his impost for the Suburban, but he will not feel the change, as he is a good weight carrier.

Proper, who finished third in the Brooklyn, having come from tenth place and appropriated the small end of that purse in front of the tired Hermis, will again carry the silk of W. B. Jennings of California. He will be ridden by George Odom instead of Lucien Lyne. His owner today expressed the belief that he will do better than third tomorrow. Proper's work in preparation for the Suburban has been excellent, although professional handicappers do not agree with the Jennings predictions.

Africander's chances are believed to be very slim. He won the Suburban last year on a muddy track. This year his form has not been so good at any time, and there is every indication that the race will be run over a fast track, so that the Deimel-Dwyer candidate's chances are not of the best. Maj. Daingerfield is another uncertain proposition. He has great speed at times, but is at his best in the mud. The probable starters are:

Horse.	Wgt.	Jockey.	Probable Odds.
Irish Lad.	127	Shaw.	5-2
Hermis.	126	Redfern.	4-1
Africander.	125	Bullman.	10

Proper.	110	Odom.	6
City Bank.	100	———.	25
Shorthose.	117	Lyne.	50

Several other good ones, including John A. Drake's Savable, are eligible and may be added tomorrow. Interest in the race is intense, and fully 60,000 persons are expected to visit the Sheepshead track.

WHOLE FAMILIES LOST IN DISASTER

HARD BATTLES FOR LIFE

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, June 15.—Many of those aboard the Slocum who had lost their dear ones, and, later, fathers of families who had come to search for wives and children among the long rows of dead at North Brothers Island and other places which had been turned into temporary morgues, were literally crazed, and in some instances became so violent in their grief that they had to be restrained by police and attendants.

Among these was Frederick Hoffman, a fireman attached to engine No. 25. Hoffman was found running back and forth along the shore of the sound at the foot of One Hundred and Thirty-eighth street an hour after the terrible fire started. He was hardly able to talk, but finally managed to say that his entire family, with the exception of his wife, had been lost. Those who died almost before his eyes were his mother, his sister-in-law and his two children.

"The fire started in the kitchen," he said, "and I and some other men who saw it grabbed up the buckets on deck and started to quench the flames. We formed in line and were passing the buckets filled with water to the men who were at the fire, when suddenly everybody on board seemed to realize at once that the boat was doomed, and the panic started.

"The scene that followed was simply awful, horrible! Hundreds of women and children were pushed into the water and drowned before our eyes. I tried to reach my mother and sister-in-law and the two children, but I was separated from them by that crowd of madmen, and no man on earth could have made his way through it.

"I went up to the captain and begged him to beach the boat, as did scores of others, but nothing was done in that way. Why it was not, I don't know; I only know that my two children are out there in that water dead, with my mother and my sister-in-law.

"We were forward on the upper deck. I took up the children and told the women to follow me.

"I went to where the crowd was thinnest and became separated from the others of our party.

"Women clawed at me with their nails in their frenzy and the clothing was torn from me, and the children were finally also torn from me.

"How I got ashore I don't know.

HIS GRANDMOTHER'S BODY

NEW YORK, June 15. — (Special.) — Charles Schwartz, aged 17, was saved, but he lost his mother and his grandmother, 68 years old. He says:

"When the fire started I was sitting with my mother and grandmother on the upper deck. My mother ran from me, saying she would look after herself and bidding me care for my grandmother.

"I carried my grandmother to the rail to await the approach of some boat, but suddenly the rail gave way and, with scores of others, we were dumped into the water. In the struggle of the mass who were fighting to keep afloat my grandmother was torn from me and drowned before I could reach her.

"I was taken ashore to North Brothers Island by a tug. As I was standing on the shore I saw a number of bodies floating toward me. Thereupon I undressed and swam out. Among the bodies I found that of my grandmother and brought it ashore."

WALTER TRAVIS TALKS.

Thinks American Golfers Superior to English—Was Not Treated Quite Fair.

LONDON, June 15.—Before leaving England for the United States today on the steamer Oceanic, Walter J. Travis, the American golf champion, said to a representative of the Associated Press:

"I am naturally pleased at the result of my trip. I did not expect to win the championship, especially as I was in very bad form prior to the contest. I have not yet made up my mind whether to come over next year and endeavor to retain the title. Some of the younger men ought to have a chance. I would like to see some of our leading professionals enter the open English championship. 'Willy' Anderson, Stewart Gardner and Auchterlonie are every bit as good as Vardon and Taylor and other British cracks. They have a greater number of professionals than we, but our best are equal to theirs. Our men would need, however, at least two or three months to get acquainted to the climate and changed conditions. When we saw Vardon playing on the other side a few years ago we thonught he was a marvel. Today Vardon and Taylor scarcely seem the same. The fact is that they have not improved and our men have. It is only a matter of time when the professional as well as the amateur championship will be won by Americans.

"There has been some talk about fouls. When I was playing Robb he shouted to my caddie to pick up a flag, instead of which the caddie picked up my ball. Robb could scarcely have claimed a foul under the circumstances. My caddie was provided by the club and did not know anything about the game. While I have been treated in the most hospitable manner, I must say that a man coming over to play for championships might expect to be furnished with a caddie who knew something about golf. The mistake I mentioned, even if a foul had been claimed, would only have meant the loss of one hole, and I scarcely think it would have altered the result of the match."

YOUTHFUL HERO TELLS OF HIS EXPERIENCES

NEW YORK, June 15.—John Tishner, 13 years old, of No. 404 Fifth street, a survivor, describes his experiences and his rescue as follows:

"I was down on the lower deck with Ida Wousky, 14 years old, who lives in the same house with me. We were eating ice cream when the flames burst right out near us. Everybody seemed to be yelling fire, and I saw a lot of women with their hair and dresses burning jump into the water long before any boats came near us.

"My friend, Ida Wousky, was going to faint, but I kicked her on her shins and waked her up. Then I got a lot of life preservers, most of them rotten, and after a long time I got one on Ida.

"The tugs were coming near us then and I told her to jump. She wouldn't jump and I pushed her over. Then I jumped in the water myself and I got hold of her hair and held her up until the tug came and we were pulled out.

"I saw a lot of girls that lived near me get life preservers and jump into the water long before the tugs came. They were all swimmers and got ashore. One of the girls I saw swim all the way with a baby.

"I guess I saw 50 babies in the water before the tugboats came, and the men and women were jumping in on top of them.

"When they got the tug to the New York shore a man took me in a buggy to the elevated station and I went home and told my mother that I wasn't drowned."

PUDDLERS ON STRIKE.

As the result of a reduction in wages from $5 to $4.50 a ton the entire puddling force of the Spang-Chalfant iron mills at Etna, numbering 250 men, went out on a strike yesterday afternoon, closing down the greater part of the mills. The other tonnage men formerly employed in the mills have been out on a strike for the past five months, owing to a cut of from 10 to 60 per cent below the amalgamated scale and the mills have been employing non-union labor. It is thought the puddlers' strike will aid the striking tonnage men.

The finishers at the mills were cut 20 per cent yesterday and joined the striking puddlers. Moorhead Brothers rolling mills of Sharpsburg have announced a 10 per cent cut which will make their price $4.50 and a strike is expected among the white puddlers.

CHARITABLE WORK DONE BY CHURCH

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, June 15.—St. Mark's German church, the Sunday school of which was almost wiped out by the awful disaster on the Gen. Slocum, is one of the strongest of the Protestant churches on the downtown East Side, and has a most interesting history.

It is situated at No. 323 Sixth street, in the heart of the downtown German district, and its membership consists largely of substantial German tradesmen and mechanics and their families. The church was established in the early 40s when the German residents of that section conceived the idea of founding a German school in their district. Eventually they decided that they needed a church rather than a school. The present church is the result.

At present connected with St. Mark's church there is a day school accommodating about 100 pupils. Besides the church has a Frauen verein, engaged in charitable work, a Mission verein and a Young Folk's league, the Luther liga.

As far back as 1897 the church boasted that during its 50 years of existence there had been within its portals 20,000 baptisms, 9,500 marriages, 5,000 funerals and over 4,000 confirmations. The present pastor is the Rev. George C. F. Haas.

The euchre yesterday afternoon was given without any special guest of honor, but was the first entertainment Mrs. Eaton and Mrs. Brown have given since their return. Twenty tables, at which six-hand euchre was the game, were placed in the spacious dining room of the club house, which was decorated with palms and large clusters of jacqueminot roses. Palms were also used in the large living room and on the wide verandas. A little daughter of Mrs. Brown, Miss Margaret Brown, and two friends, Miss Roberta McKay and Miss Louise Allderdice, assisted. LIKED THE ROMANCE.

Joseph Wharton Thurston Married to Miss Mary Parker Robinson.

PHILADELPHIA, June 15.—(Special.)—While Joseph Wharton, iron and steel magnate, and his amiable wife celebrated the 50th anniversary of their wedding at their country home, Ontalonna, on York road today, a well-known sprig of the Wharton family took a notion to start married life in a romantic way. This was Joseph Wharton Thurston, a nephew of Joseph Wharton, who without crash of wedding march or admiring friends to see, eloped to Camden with Miss Mary Parker Robinson, of Media, and was married before any member of either family suspected anything. The bride is a niece of former Congressman John B. Robinson. Thurston is in the iron and steel business in Pittsburgh, but he is well known in social circles all over the state. He gained fame as captain and fullback of about the best football team that Lehigh university ever turned out, and later acted as coach. Best of all it was an elopement surrounded by smiles. There was really no need for the young couple to wed secretly. In fact, Pittsburgh and Media would have turned out their most exclusive social lights to grace the occasion.

"Well they have not gone far," she said. "They will be here tomorrow. Why did they elope? Ask them," and she laughed again. "There was no reason for it. Perhaps they like the romance."

AMONG THE CLUBS

Graduated From Kindergarten College.

Fourteen young women were graduated yesterday afternoon from the Kindergarten college while certificates were given six others, who have completed the post-graduate course, and 12 certificates were granted for the completion of one year's study at the college. The commencement exercises were conducted in the lecture room of the Carnegie institute, which was filled with friends of the graduates, the managers of the Pittsburgh and Allegheny Free Kindergarten association and other patrons of the kindergarten work in this city. Miss Sara H. Killikelly, first vice president of the association, presided and seated upon the platform with her were Miss Georgia Allison, supervisor; Miss Elizabeth Culp, principal of the college, and Miss Ruth Tappan, a member of the faculty.

The principal address of the afternoon was delivered by Arthur A. Hamerschlag, director of the Carnegie Technical schools, who spoke on "Child Study." In part he said:

"One thousand years ago the child occupied about as much thought in the minds of his parents as today and it is only within the last few years that pedagogical study, with reference to the little child, has been taken up to any extent. It is a question what will be the ultimate outcome of this study and training, for in developing the child mind, you may be developing a leader in future years; for his is a fertile intellect, and a noble mind, as yet uncontaminated by training and surroundings.

"The science of the child mind and the science of the child heart, are the two principles of the kindergarten, and the way in which the foundations of mental and moral effect are laid determines the superstructure of the man. All children are at birth nearly equal. They first develop a capacity for pain. Then comes the improvement of the powers of perception. The child mind, when properly touched, produces a harmony and balance and results in a well-rounded intelligence and one capable of development through higher planes of education. Clay modeling, wood carving and the various forms of mind and hand work, develop some faculty and the child with a predisposition in some particular direction should be trained and developed in other ways, until he is sufficiently strong and well-balanced, mentally and physically, for specializing. For if the mind be not well-rounded, the result is a distorted specialist.

"The great problem of the future is not to train the masses, but to train teachers, who, through their work, will reach and develop the masses. The requisites for a good teacher are enthusiasm in her work, proficiency in her own specialty and an imagination, without which she lacks one of the most essential requirements of teaching."

Telegrams of congratulation were received and read from Miss Susan Blow of Cazanovia, N. Y., and Mrs. J. N. Crouse of Chicago. The singing of the students was a most interesting feature of the program, the songs being directed by Miss Alice K. Snider, who has charge of the music at the college, and who by request sang a couple of songs. The opening prayer was offered by the Rev. Robert J. Young.

The distribution of diplomas and certificates was made by Miss Killikelly. The graduates include Miss Maude Louisa Crawford, Miss Anna May Crowe, Miss Cornelia Katherine Ecke, Miss Florence Mary Elliott, Miss Grace Reese Everson, Miss Luella Lincoln Kennedy, Miss Alice Lee Lytle, Miss Louise Harrison MacMillan, Miss Anne Biddle McIlvaine, Miss Ida Swearingen McKenzie, Miss Nannie Eliza Peake, Miss Grace Ethel Robinson, Miss Mary Lewis Sharpe and Miss Penelope Parker Whitehead.

Post-graduates—Miss Alma Mabel Anthony, Miss Mary Agnes Behen, Miss Frances T. Gilliland, Miss Anna E. Jones, Miss Helen Patterson and Miss Jessie Sweitzer.

Juniors, the students of one year, to whom certificates were given—Miss Grace Alberta Armstrong, Miss Grace Elizabeth Conn, Miss Mazie Alta Cooper, Miss Lydia Kasparova, Mrs. Della B. Lee, Miss Jessie McKee, Miss Josephine Mechling, Miss Annabelle Sigler Mendenhall, Miss Gertrude Elizabeth Miles, Miss Bessie Phillips, Miss Stella M. Rockwood and Miss Florence Edna Rosenbaum.

Miss Lydia Kasparova, who received a certificate, is a Bohemian, who came from Europe last fall and has been in the college a year, studying the kindergarten work in order to work among the Slavs who are working in Western Pennsylvania. Her work, it is expected, will be located chiefly at Schoenville. During the past year she has been gaining practical experience with the kindergarten directors in the Carnahan Memorial in the West End, and in the Friendship school. All of the graduates, and those who received certificates yesterday, have positions, an exceptional situation.

MORGANTOWN, W. VA., June 15.—(Special.)—The most notable event in Morgantown society circles for a long time occurred this evening at the Presbyterian church, when Miss Mary Bannister was united in marriage to J. M. G. Brown.

$500 REWARD: FOR WOMEN WHO CANNOT BE CURED.

Backed up by over a third of a century of remarkable and uniform cures, a record such as no other remedy for the diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women ever attained, the proprietors of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription now feel fully warranted in offering to pay $500 in legal money of the United States, for any case of Leucorrhea, Female Weakness, Prolapsus, or Falling of Womb which they cannot cure. All they ask is a fair and reasonable trial of their means of cure.

The Vice-President Independent Order of Good Templars.

An experience which many women have was related by Miss Agnes Stebbings, of 231 East 30th Street, New York City, as follows: "I had very poor health for a year until life looked dark and dreary to me. Had headaches, backache, also pain, my sleep was broken and fitful. I longed for health. Tried several medicines but none were of any lasting benefit until I took Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I soon realized that I had found the right remedy. It helped nature to throw off the poisons that saturated the system, removed all pains and strengthened the digestive organs, and brought the roses of health back to my cheeks. This medicine if taken occasionally keeps the system in perfect condition, helping it to throw off the disease and consequences of exposure to dampness. I am pleased to give it my endorsement."

BRENNAN CASE WITH THE JURY

CAR WHEEL CONCERNS ANSWER

The defense in the case of James Brennan, charged with manslaughter for the death of Thomas Darby, finished yesterday afternoon and the jury retired at 5 o'clock. Brennan attempted to show by expert testimony that it was a physical impossibility for him to have inflicted the wound from which Darby died.

Dr. G. H. McGeary of Braddock testified that he had held the autopsy and had found a small wound a little less than an inch from the chest on the right arm which had evidently been made by a sharp instrument. The wound, which was about half an inch in length, paralleled the arm. The brachil artery had been split. The artery, preserved in alcohol, was offered in evidence. The physician said that on account of the nature of the wound, in his opinion, the wound could not have been inflicted by an opponent in a fight. Dr. J. H. Miller ad Dr. B. F. Price gave testimony of a similar character.

The proceedings were enlivened several times by tilts between the attorneys. Benjamin Locke, stenographer in the district attorney's office, testified that he had provided the defense and prosecution with copies of the testimony taken before the coroner, and after the record of the coronial investigation had been entered in evidence the defense closed.

Objections were offered by the prosecution to the coronial testimony and Judge Frazer ruled that it would be admitted only so far as it contradicted the evidence given by the same witnesses in the present trial.

John Brady pleaded guilty to a charge of larceny from the person and one of larceny. He was sent to the workhouse for eight months.

Will and Arch Showalter were convicted of entering a Baltimore & Ohio railroad car in Allegheny and stealing $560 worth of goods. T. J. Whalen and Mose Price, indicted with them, pleaded guilty a few days ago, but none of the quartet have yet been sentenced.

The Keystone Car Wheel Company and the National Car Wheel Company filed answer in the suit brought against them by Harry Brown, in which he seeks to break up the merger of the companies. They deny collusion between Charles V. Slocum and the National company, and it is also denied that a suit brought in New York state is for the purpose of defrauding the stockholders of the Keystone company.

In the suit of Sarah L. Hay against Bella Arrott and others, owners of the Arrott building, to recover damages for the death of the plaintiff's husband, killed last September by an elevator in the building, the deposition of Frederick P. Marquis, a traveling telegraph operator, has been filed. Marquis testified he was standing close to the elevator entrance on the fourth floor when the accident happened. He said the elevator stopped at that floor and the man who was killed (he did not know Hay) was leaving the elevator, following a few steps after a young man, who was also alighting. The elevator was started and the door closed simultaneously. Hay was caught about the shoulder by the door, and as the elevator car was ascending he was carried to the top of the door, where the ornamental ironwork forming the shaft bulged out, and he then fell down the shaft, the car passing him.

Grand Jury Returns.

The grand jury returned the following true bills: Felonious assault and battery, William Royster; assault and battery, Samuel Allen (2), John H. West, Walter Warllienz, John Warllienz, Charles McSherry, L. Rosenberg, E. Stayer, et al, Paul Feiko; conspiracy, H. W. Carroll, et al; embezzlement, Thomas McCurdy; entering a building with intent to commit a felony, Michael Coleman, J. F. Smith, John Fox, Tony Natlai; felony, Lindsey Cooper; larceny, William J. Gilsy, Louis Moidel, Charles Neely, Barbara Thornton, James Thomas; pointing firearms and carrying concealed weapons, Ezasaias Perry; receiving stolen goods, Vassell Bodish, James Bivo; misdemeanor, Thomas Beadling, John Drabick, Lewis Davis, Walter Findon, Nelson Roberts, Jacob Reifer, Wesley Smith.

In the suit of William Sutter against ex-Assistant Fire Chief James Stewart, an action for damages for personal injuries, the jury in common pleas court No. 2 yesterday gave the plaintiff $1,139. The verdict, however, is subject to an opinion as to whether the plaintiff has any right at all to recover. He was run down by the chief's rig which was responding to an alarm.

ANNUAL POLICE AUCTION WAS A GREAT SUCCESS

Bidding Was Lively and Purchasers Had Varied Stock to Select From.

About two wagonloads of miscellaneous loot, being an accumulation of confiscated or unredeemed goods, were sold at auction in Central police station yesterday afternoon by Police Clerk A. T. Karr. About 200 men and boys, most of them second-hand dealers, were present and the bidding was lively. A soap box full of scrap iron brought $1 25, while a section of lead pipe, along with the ruins of a destroyed slot machine, went for 60 cents. A doctor's medicine case was bought by a colored boy for 30 cents, and a junk dealer got an electric dynamo for $1 80.

An assortment of valises and suit cases brought about $20. The purchasers were not allowed to examine the goods before buying, and this led to considerable amusement. Dan Dwyer, formerly connected with the bureau of electricity, was present and proceeded to get mysterious about a suit case that was in the pile of loot. When it was put up for sale he immediately bid $2 for it.

Several other men felt certain that Dwyer knew what was in the case and wanted to get a good thing. One of them raised the bid 25 cents, and of course got the case. He smiled to Dwyer a superior sort of way, but the smile came off when he examined his purchase and found it to contain one door knob.

Among the articles sold were a set of harness, water cooler, six bottles of catsup, a shotgun, rifle, box of revolvers, police captain's uniform coat, piece of trolley wire, tools, clothing, watches, etc. A box containing about 200 knives and razors was bid in for $6, while a basket of envelopes, containing the uncalled effects of prisoners, brought $8 60. The purchaser of the envelopes found them to contain several knives, 20 cents in cash and an overdue pawn ticket. The sale netted the city $61 90.

Lesson of Civil War Finds Fruit in Loyalty to Union, Says Watterson.

VETERANS ELECT OFFICERS

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

NASHVILLE, TENN., June 15.—The principal features of today's gathering of the United Confederate Veterans were the election of officers and the laying of the corner stone of a monument to private soldiers of the confederacy in Centennial park.

The monument is the tribute of the Nashville veterans and the corner stone was laid under the direction of the Masonic fraternity. State Grand Master James L. Sloan presided and Henry Watterson of Louisville was the orator of the day. Mr. Watterson said in part:

We are here today to lay the foundation stone of a monument to the confederate dead. That monument, when it is completed, will forever mark, will keep forever watch and guard over the memory of brave men, who died fighting against the national government. Standing uncovered in the presence of Almighty God, proclaiming to the world the allegiance of the dead, signalizing the cause for which they died, renewing our fidelity to the sacred compact of brotherhood and soldiership, we are to reconcile this act of pious homage with perfect loyalty to the union, to the flag and to those of our countrymen who successfully fought against us.

If it was the will of God that there should be a new birth of freedom; if it was the will of God that government of the people by the people and for the people should not perish from the earth; then it was the will of God that there should be a mighty sacrifice; and let no man forget that the same God which struck down myriads of the best beloved north struck down myriads of the best beloved south; that the doctrine of secession was born at the north; that the sin of slavery, such as it may have been, belonged equally to both the north and the south, and that the tale of free, popular government is not yet told.

Millions of us detested slavery. Millions of us denied the doctrine of secession. We may not argue now who brought the battle on—it was battle—and the same Anglo-Saxon and Scotch-Irish blood which welled up in the north welled up in us; we fought, and we fought to a finish; there is no smell of treason on our garments; no taint of corruption in our blood. Grant was the first peacemaker. Lee gave himself up as hostage for the rest of us. Two confederate generals wear the blue, and the gray worships at its shrines, even as we worship this day, without so much as the suspicion of disloyalty; yes, with the encouragement and sympathy of every true soldier of the north.

Happy issue! Happy we who have lived to see it. Let us not wring our hearts by recalling the past—the drums and tramplings of the legions—nor the faces of the dead—but let us rather feel that they died not in vain. Let us rejoice that out of the wreck the south—and our beloved Tennessee—twin sister of my own beloved Kentucky—saved both her racehood and her manhood. Finally, let us resolve that if another day of travail should overtake the reunited union, the north shall find in the south a shield and a buckler alike against the organized corruption of mammon and the militant insanity of agrarianism, forbidding a second "irrepressible conflict," forbidding the threatened collision between capital and labor; forbidding it in the name of the constitution, which assures uniformity of laws; in the name of the government, which, whilst enforcing these laws, will mete out exact justice and compel equality of opportunity.

The veterans elected the following officers: Commander-in-chief, Lieut.-Gen. Stephen D. Lee, Columbus, Miss.; commander of the department of Northern Virginia, Gen. Irvine Walker, Greenville, S. C.; commander of the department of Tennessee, Gen. Clement A. Evans, Atlanta, Ga.; commander of the trans-Mississippi department, Gen. W. L. Cabell, Dallas, Tex.

Louisville was chosen as the next meeting place. A resolution favoring the erection at Richmond, Va., of a home for needy Confederate women was adopted.

The annual memorial service to the Confederate dead, which was inaugurated by the late Gen. John B. Gordon after the death of Miss Winnie Davis, was held today at the tabernacle. Mrs. Gordon, her daughters and several notable figures of the Confederacy had seats on the stage. Former Governor Thomas G. Jones of Montgomery, Ala., paid a high tribute in Gen. Gordon's memory.

DR. BOWMAN CHOSEN.

Elected to Professorship of Practical Theology of Lancaster Seminary.

The Rev. Dr. John C. Bowman of Lancaster, Pa., was elected professor of practical theology of the Lancaster Reformed Church seminary at the morning session of the Pittsburgh synod, held in Grace church yesterday.

Immediately after the opening of the session it became evident that Dr. Bowman was the most logical candidate, barring the question as to whether he would accept, as he recently resigned as professor of Greek exegesis of the seminary to take charge of a congregation at Easton, Pa. Letters from his friends were read declaring that in all probability he would accept this new and higher position. The deciding ballot resulted as follows: Dr. Bowman, 68; Dr. Paul Leinbach, 19; Dr. A. S. Weber, 1; Dr. D. B. Lady, 8; Dr. W. C. Schaffer, 9 votes. Dr. Bowman's election was then made unanimous.

The result was telegraphed to the Potomac and Eastern synods to be concurred in. These two synods are also holding elections, and their selections must be accepted by the local synod as well.

PRICE BROKE RECORDS.

Mess of Trout Caught by Mother and Son Valued by State at $650.

HARRISBURG, PA., June 15.—(Special.)—Mrs. Tebo, the Cameron county woman who was recently caught by a state fish warden with 30 short trout hid in the front of her shirtwaist and was sentenced to jail in default of $300 fine, has been released by friends paying her fine to the state department officers.

Mrs. Tebo's son, William Cought, who was caught at the same time with 35 short trout and committed to jail for 350 days because of his failure to pay a fine of $350, has also been released by paying the fine.

This mess of 65 fish cost mother and son $650, which is the largest fine ever paid to the department of fisheries, and probably is the highest price Pennsylvania trout has ever brought.

TUFTS TO BE HEAD OF PHILOSOPHY AT CHICAGO

CHICAGO, June 15.—Announcement has been made at the University of Chicago that Dean James R. Tufts is to succeed Dr. John Dewey, who resigned some time ago, as head of the department of philosophy. Prof. James Angell will be placed at the head of the department of psychology, which in the future is to be separated from that of philosophy.

Bottle Factories Continue Operating.

The movement to close all the bottle factories in the country on June 15 was a failure, as many are running. The manufacturers did not sign the agreement to close on that date and will continue operating their plants until the last of this month. Over 8,000 skilled workmen are engaged and three or four times that many are affected when the plants close.

Much Pittsburgh Coal Is Being Shipped to the Lakes

"The strike of the masters and pilots of the lakes," said one of the executive officials of the Pittsburgh Tterminal Railroad and Coal Company yesterday, "is at an end. "Our first shipments of coal to the lakes began June 8, and we have been able to move a large tonnage since the. I fact our line, the West Side Belt, is entirely clear of accumulated coal."

Within the past few days the company, which operates seven of the largest mines in this district, has given employment to many men. All of the properties are now going full force and the daily shipments to the three lake ports, Ashtabula Harbor, Cleveland and Lorain, amount to over 9,000 tons. The daily output of the mines is nearly 12,000 tons, with a maximum capacity of 18,000 tons.

Continuing the official said: "It is now up to the railroads to determine what kind of a lake season we will have. Cars at present are plentiful, and the roads are moving coal without any trouble. I believe the association of the masters and pilots will be a thing of the past after this season. Some of the strongest men have broken over and we are having little difficulty in chartering boats."

B. R. P. Officials are Active.

The executive officials of the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh railroad are showing considerable activity in getting over the line oftener than usual. Some importance was attached to the recent visit here of the chief engineer and a party of 12 Rochester capitalists. Yesterday President A. G. Yates, with a second party, was here presumably for the purpose of showing a number of business men the terminal facilities of the road at this point, as well as inspecting the main line and the new Indiana branch.

It was reported some time ago that the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh would shortly begin work on the construction of a line from Butler to New Castle. Surveys of the route were made some years ago and a part of the line was graded. It is said to be the intention of the Iselins, who have a controlling interest in the property, to eventually reach Lake Erie at a point between Cleveland and Buffalo.

With President Yates are W. J. Kelly, S. W. Wray, J. L. Kinsey, W. A. Linn and T. L. Stout of Philadelphia; A. E. Burnford of Wilkesbarre and H. G. Cobb of Boston.

Preparing for Loupurex.

Reservations for space on the Loupurex Limited of the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie were placed on sale yesterday morning in the city offices of the company, and George H. Thompson, city passenger agent, had the distinction of selling the first reservation. The total sale for the day was nine berths and over twice that many tickets.

The equipment for the new fair train was received over a month ago. The cars will likely be at the South Side terminals Saturday and will be opened for the public. The Loupurex will make its initial trip to St. Louis Sunday night at 9 p. m.

John P. Green Here.

John P. Green, first vice president of the Pennsylvania railroad, arrived in the city early yesterday morning, and accompanied by local officials, made an inspection of the Brilliant cut-off and the Scully yard of the Panhandle. He is on his way to Akron, O., where he will begin an inspection of the Cleveland, Akron & Columbus railroad.

Railroad Notes.

There was a report from Philadelphia yesterday to the effect that the Pennsylvania railroad would lay off more men. None of the officials here knew anything of such an order.

W. H. Eaton has been made chief clerk to the commercial agent of the Baltimore & Ohio at this place. A. J. Solligan becomes contracting agent.

General Superintendent J. B. Yohe has completed an inspection of the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie.

The Valley financial statement for April, 1904, as compared with April, 1903, is: Gross earnings, decrease, $38,420; expenses, increase, $67,146; net earnings, $105,566. For the four months ended with April 30, as compared with the same period of 1903, the figures were: Gross earnings, decrease, $76,177; operating expenses, increase, $157,444; net earnings, decrease, $233,621.

CARRIERS AND CLERKS FOR TWO POSTOFFICES

Postmasters Holliday and Grier Receive Welcome News That More Help Is Authorized.

Postmaster Grier of Allegheny, has secured six new letter carriers and the men will be put to work on July 1. Allegheny has been short of sufficient letter carriers for some time, and the service was badly affected. There is a large substitute-carriers' list in Allegheny and the postmaster will select six men and recommend them to the postoffice department. There is no doubt that the fourth assistant postmaster general, Bristow, will appoint the men selected by Mr. Grier.

Postmaster Grier yesterday received from Washington authority empowering him to add two new clerks to the present postoffice force. The men will go to work on July 1 at a salary of $600 a year.

Postmaster Holliday of Pittsburgh, was authorized to put 12 additional clerks to work in his office and an additional clerk in the Hazelwood branch office. The postmaster has appointed the following at $600 a year: C. A. Bruce, L. J. Trusedale, J. T. Thomas, John F. Kirby, William Jackson, A. L. Jahn, E. E. Fouse, William F. Hare, J. G. Evans, Jr., Harry A. Hall, Edward A. Young, C. J. Conway and E. L. Spriggs.

NEWLIN TURNED DOWN.

Supreme Court Refuses to Allow Attorney to Interfere With Judges' Salary Act.

PHILADELPHIA, June 15.—The state supreme court, after an all-day consultation in this city, convened in open session at 4:15 this afternoon.

The court refused to permit J. W. M. Newlin, an attorney of this city, to intervene in the judges' salary act litigation. Mr. Newlin sought to have the act tested by the higher court in an appeal from the Dauphin county court, which declared it constitutional. The lower court refused to permit Mr. Newlin to intervene for the purpose of taking an appeal, and the decision today does not pass upon the act in any way.

State Treasurer Mathues has appealed from the decision of the Dauphin county court in the litigation, and the supreme court will probably pass upon its constitutionality at its next session in October at Pittsburgh.

Among the opinions handed down were the following: Friends' estate, O. C., Allegheny, decree affirmed; La Porte vs. Pittsburgh & Lake Erie Railroad Company, C. P., Fayette, judgment affirmed; commonwealth vs. Kovovic, O. and T., Washington, judgment affirmed, etc.; Wineberg vs. borough of Dubois, C. P., Clearfield, judgment reversed, with a venire facias de novo; Chase vs. Clearfield Lumber Company, Limited, C. P., Clearfield, judgment reversed, with a venire facias de novo; Grace Coolbroth et al. vs. Pennsylvania Railroad Company, C. P., Clearfield, judgment reversed and judgment entered on verdict for plaintiff; commonwealth vs. Williams, O. and T., Clearfield, judgment affirmed; Confer vs. Pennsylvania Railroad Company, C. P., Center, judgment reversed; Lodge vs. United Gas Improvement Company, C. P., Dauphin, judgment affirmed; Lyons vs. Philadelphia & Reading railroad C. P., Dauphin, judgment affirmed.

MANY IN LINE FOR LAND OF CHIPPEWAS

CASS LAKE, MINN., June 15.—One hundred and ten weary seekers for land lined up before the United States land office here today before the doors of the office were open, in order to file on government lands within the confines of the Chippewa reservation. Among the number were four women who bravely withstood the all-night vigil. The first man to file was Daniel Caldwell, who got 160 acres located 16 miles southeast of the village of North Come.

Heavy Penalty for Wifebeater.

Julius Biofksi of 1812 Larkins alley was fined $50 and costs and sentenced to serve 30 days in the workhouse by Magistrate Vitchestain yesterday morning. Biofski, half a dozen witnesses declared, frequently beat his wife with a blacksnake whip and also failed to provide properly for her and their three children.

LARGEST SINCE '92.

A Grand Rapids Furniture House Receives a Record-Breaking Check from an Allegheny Dealer.

GRAND RAPIDS, June 15.—It is the unspoken belief with the great furniture manufacturers here that business is dull in the east, but there is at least one house that holds no such opinion. At one of the local banks today the K. P. & W. Furniture Company deposited a check from Allegheny, Pa., for $32,600, the attached signature being that of B. White, one of the Smoky City's best known and most progressive furniture and carpet houses.

The K. P. & W. people say that this check is for the largest amount of money ever received by a Grand Rapids furniture manufacturer for a single purchase of goods from any concern in Western Pennsylvania—in fact, that this amount is the largest received from any house in the entire country since 1892.

Manufacturers everywhere, as well as the world in general, are wont to look to Pittsburgh for the remarkable, but the unusual White purchase, coming as it does when there is no business to brag about throughout the east, was a genuine surprise, and is probably more talked about today than the scorching weather.

ESCAPED FROM ROPE.

A Negro Woman Flees from Lynchers Only to Be Fatally Wounded by Bullets.

LEBANON JUNCTION, KY., June 15.—Mrs. Maria Thompson, colored, who last night killed John Irwin, a wealthy white farmer, was taken from the jail today and hanged to a tree in the jail yard.

She weighed 255 pounds and the rope broke. As she ran away, the mob fired a fusillade after her until she fell and was left for dead. The officers, however, found signs of life and removed the woman to a physician's office, where it was found that she had been shot in several places and could not recover.

Irwin had reproved Mrs. Thompson's boy, who worked for him. Afterward Mrs. Thompson came into Irwin' melon patch and slashed Irwin until he was dead.

WALL STREET DISAPPOINTED WITH SOUTHERN PAC. PLAN

By JOHN O. BAGLIN, Financial Editor.

The eastern stock market opened firm and higher yesterday, and for half an hour it looked as if the upward movement would make further progress. Then the announcement was made of a proposed plan for financing the debt and additional improvements of Southern Pacific. Wall street professed keen disappointment over the proposition, and this feeling found expression in sales by traders, which depressed the entire market. Everything sold off, and with the exception of Union Pacific closed at declines ranging from small fractions to 1⅛ per cent. Union Pacific, which would be the chief beneficiary from the proposed financiering, advanced sharply to 88¾, and closed at 87½, a net gain of 1¼ per cent.

Official details regarding the Southern Pacific plan were not forthcoming, but rumor was more explicit than usual on such occasions, and there were sufficient grounds for accepting the current reports. According to the latter the directors of Southern Pacific will call a special meeting of the stockholders and ask for an authorization of $100,000,000 7 per cent preferred stock. Of this total it is proposed to issue $40,000,000 at par, the holders of the common stock being privileged to subscribe at that price in the proportion of 20 per cent of their present holdings. The proceeds of the sale will wipe out $30,000,000 floating debt and leave $10,000,000 cash for additional improvements. Of this floating debt it is estimated that Union Pacific, which controls Southern Pacific, has advanced between $15,000,000 and $18,000,000, and the payment of this sum in cash, together with the subscription rights which Union Pacific will have on its holdings of $90,000,000 Southern Pacific common stock, will place Union Pacific in a strong financial position, and possibly enable it to increase its present rate of dividend. It was this view which was responsible for the advance in Union Pacific stock.

Wall street professed not only disappointment, but criticised the plan as unsound and extravagant. As compared with some recent financiering, however, the proposition is eminently sound, and is much more equitable to holders of Southern Pacific common stock than any which has recently been carried out, save possibly the financiering of the Pennsylvania railroad, which almost invariably gives holders of the stock the benefit, if any, in the raising of new capital. The recent practice has been to convert a stock liability into a mortgage liability by substituting bonds for stock, or to issue collateral trust bonds at a low rate of interest, but issued in such ratio as to constitute a very high charge ahead of stock. Illustration of this kind of financiering is furnished by United States Steel in converting preferred stock into bonds, and by the Northern Securities Company when it financed the Burlington by issuing $200 worth of 4 per cent bonds for $100 worth of 6 per cent common stock. Where neither of these two methods has been adopted, it has been customary to call in the services of an underwriting syndicate, which bought bonds at discounts ranging from 5 to 20 per cent and absorbed all the profits, in which neither common nor preferred stockholders were permitted to participate. A recent transaction of this kind in Pittsburgh might be cited in illustration. In the case of Southern Pacific, according to the plan outlined, the holder of the common stock is given the opportunity to take the place usually occupied by the underwriting syndicate, and in the case of Southern Pacific itself, the company receives a hundred cents on the dollar. So far as the proposition deferring dividends on the common stock is concerned, the $30,000,000 floating debt would have to be taken care of anyway, while the raising of $10,000,000 cash is accomplished without discount or bankers' profits being paid to anyone outside the company. The addition of new securities to an already congested market cannot be cited as a bull argument, but the proposed method is certainly less bearish than any of the numerous recent ones which have been tried and found wanting.

There was a very large increase in the volume of trading, but the bulk of it was confined to Union and Southern Pacific. The latter opened at 48 and advanced to 48⅝, but later broke to 45¾, closing at 45⅞. Union Pacific also opened higher at 86⅝, rallied to 88⅛, reacted to 87½, and again rallied to 88¾, closing at 87½ bid. It is probable that additional details will cause Wall street to take a more favorable view of the situation. Atchison, St. Paul, Missouri Pacific and Louisville & Nashville all advanced fractionally at the opening, but subsequently lost all the gain and closed at losses ranging from fractions to 1 per cent. Pennsylvania sold at 115½ to 115¾ at the opening, but declined to 114¾. The tractions were less active and closed ¾ to 1⅛ per cent lower for the day. U. S. Steel preferred rallied to 55 and closed at 54½, and Amalgamated Copper after opening at 50, declined to 49¼. General Electric was quoted ex-dividend and ex-rights. It opened at 152, advanced to 153, and closed at 151. The tone of the general market at the close was rather heavy.

An incident of the money market was the transfer of $2,130,000 from the subtreasury at New York to San Francisco. Call loan rates closed easy and unchanged at 1@1¼ per cent.

On the Pittsburgh stock exchange there was hardly enough trading to establish a market. The only important decline was in Westinghouse Electric, which sold off to 77¼. Pittsburgh Coal was a fraction higher for the preferred, while the steel stocks closed fractionally lower.

FEATURES OF THE DAY.

IN PITTSBURGH.

IN WALL STREET.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

There was hardly enough business transacted yesterday to establish a market for local stocks. Prices were irregular. The strongest stock was Peoples Natural Gas and Pipage, which advanced to 20½ bid, and was offered at 23. The last public sale was at 19½. The other natural gas stocks were quiet and unchanged. The weakest stock was Westinghouse Electric, which declined to 77¼, and closed at 77¼ bid. The coal stocks were a little firmer, River Coal preferred closing at 21 bid and Pittsburgh Coal preferred selling at 55¼.

The 50 shares Union Switch and Signal sold for account of whom it may concern, brought 62, the same as the last regular transaction.

The firmness of Pittsburgh Coal was based upon the resumption of shipments to lake ports. The largest single shipment in three years was made last week, and from now on increasing activity will be seen in this department of the trade.

The official statements show that the national banks of Pittsburgh now hold $2,120,000 government deposits. This is a decrease of $700,000 compared with the holdings on the 28th of last March, and a decrease of $1,634,000 from the total on January 22 last, when the banks held $3,754,000 government deposits, the largest ever reported by the local institutions.

In common with the national banks in other cities, those of Pittsburgh have been increasing their circulation. The total now amounts to $10,935,797, an increase of $420,390 compared with March 28, and an increase of $2,887,000 compared with June 9, 1903.

The authorized capital of Southern Pacific is $200,000,000, practically all of which is outstanding. Its gross earnings have steadily increased from 66 millions in 1900 to 90 millions last year, and for the current fiscal year will probably exceed 93 millions. In 1902 its surplus earnings applicable to dividends on the common stock were $10,500,000, and last year surplus earnings approximated $9,000,000. The surplus for the current year ending June 30 will likely exceed $10,000,000. If the $40,000,000 new 7 per cent preferred is issued in accordance with the rumored plan yesterday, the new charge ahead of the common stock would amount to $2,800,000 per annum. If the earnings are as large as in 1902, the surplus remaining would be nearly equivalent to 4 per cent on the outstanding common stock. If the subscription rights are for 20 per cent of the present holdings of common stock, and if the new preferred stock should sell at 140, the net result would be equivalent to 8 per cent on the present common stock. In the New York curb market yesterday 2½ per cent was bid for the new Southern Pacific rights, but the street estimated them as worth between 5 and 8 per cent.

The Sloss-Sheffield Steel and Iron Company reports for the quarter ended May 31, profits from operating of $278,485, a decrease of $372,233; surplus earnings, $104,485, a decrease of $329,495.

Directors of the Pittsburgh, Virginia & Charleston Railroad Company decided to call a meeting of stockholders June 29 to vote on the proposition to absorb the Monongahela Railroad Company.

The foreign trade statement for May showed the large falling off in exports of domestic products partly mitigated by the total export figures, but an accompanying increase in the imports reduced the trade balance in our favor for the month to $9,293,847, as compared with $21,894,454 for May of last year. A transfer through the sub-treasury by telegraph of $2,130,000 to San Francisco is believed to represent the proceeds of the Japanese loan to pay for Japanese government purchases on the Pacific coast. Bankers connected with the loan are emphatic in the assertion that not one dollar of the proceeds of the loan is destined to find its way back to Japan.

The directors of the Minneapolis & St. Louis have decided to pass the dividend on the common stock and have declared the regular semi-annual dividend of 2½ per cent on the preferred. The preferred dividend is payable July 15.

American Type Founders' Company have declared the regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent on the preferred stock and 1 per cent on the common, payable July 15 to stockholders of record July 11, 1904.

Otis Elevator directors have declared the regular quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent on the preferred stock. The preferred dividend is payable July 15 to stockholders of record June 30.

Sloss-Sheffield directors have declared the regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent on the preferred stock. The dividend is payable July 1.

Texas Central directors have declared a semi-annual dividend of 2½ per cent on the preferred and 2½ per cent on the common stock. Both dividends are payable July 15.

The American Telephone and Telegraph Company has declared a quarterly dividend of 1½ and an extra dividend of ¾ per cent.

The Virginia-Carolina Chemical directors have declared the regular quarterly dividend of 2 per cent on the preferred stock, payable July 15.

The process of arbitraging money between New York banks and trust companies, rendered possible by the latter's payment of liberal interest on deposits, will probably be stopped, in view of the attention attracted to it. Quite as ingenious a scheme for "working" the trust companies, however, has been put in operation. The process consists of depositing money at interest with a trust company and then using the trust company's certificates of deposit to borrow more cheaply elsewhere. It is needless to say that with call money rates at 1¼ per cent there is a profit in the operation for every one except the trust company. It is clear that the trust companies will have to alter their policy on the matter of paying liberal interest on deposits, if it results in financial operations of this kind.

NEWS FROM THE MINES.

Foreclosure on the Iron Mask mine at Rossland, B. C., has been perfected by D. C. Corbin of Spokane, as trustee for the various interests. He has final title. The Iron Mask company, of which Mr. Corbin was a heavy stockholder, was indebted to him under mortgage for about $50,000.

Two good ledges of free milling ore are reported to have been discovered in the vicinity of Sullivan lake, Idaho, and as a result a number of people have left Newport, Wash., to prospect in the vicinity of the new field.

The visit of M. M. Johnson, field manager for Samuel Newhouse, to the new discoveries at Mountain City, Nev., will probably culminate in the purchase by Mr. Newhouse and local associates of the Greenback and Kunz Boys group in that camp. The consideration will approximate $150,000.

McCullough & Co. are leasing in the 420 east level of the East Notaway mine, in Russell district, and they shipped a lot of 7,250 pounds last week to the sampling works which brought them values of nearly six ounces of gold to the ton. These ores came out of the winze, and they are also upraising from the 555-foot level to connect.

Eastern owners have started operations on the Gold Nugget property, in Illinois Central district, and operations are being carried on under the management of A. C. King of Idaho Springs, with John Bray as foreman. The water has been lowered in the main shaft, which has a depth of 250 feet, and the work of drifting west is beig carried on at a depth of 200 feet for the purpose of exploring that portion of the territory owned by the easterners. There is a good shaft building and equipment on the property.

The Chemung-Belmot property in Lake district, Colorado, has been taken hold of under a lease and bond by the Central Bonding Company, in which eastern parties are interested. Black Hawk parties are the owners of this group, which is estimated to have produced over $250,000 during its past operations, the milling ores of recent years running from two to three and one-half ounces gold to the cord, with the smelting product ranging between $40 to $125 per ton. The property is equipped with a first-class plant of machinery and top buildings, and during the past month the company has been busy repairing the shaft wherever necessary from top to bottom, a depth of 620 feet, and now intends to sink the main shaft an additional depth of 200 feet, as well as extend the lower west level, as but little work has been done in the bottom level. N. G. Mitchell is in charge of the operations, and it is expected that with greater depth on this property the lessees will open up the mine in first-class shape and soon have a regular shipping proposition.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC INFLUENCED MARKET

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, June 15.—The Herald says in its issue this morning:

News that the Southern Pacific company directors had decided upon a financial plan to raise $40,000,000 in cash to pay off its floating debt and provide funds for further improvements was the dominating factor in the stock market yesterday. Professional sentiment apparently was not very favorably impressed with the scheme, the details of which were, however, not officially announced. In a general way it was known that at a meeting of the directors of the company yesterday it was decided to recommend to the stockholders for approval the authorization of a preferred stock issue amounting to $100,000,000.

Of this amount $40,000,000 was within a month or two to be offered to the stockholders at par and would bear interest at the rate of 7 per cent. The news, judging from its effect on the stock market, was interpreted as being a favorable factor in the affairs of Union Pacific, but quite the contrary in Southern Pacific. Its effect on the general market was to check the rising tendency which the market had undoubtedly displayed at the outset.

By the sale of the $40,000,000 7 per cent preferred stock enough cash will be supplied to pay off its floating indebtedness, which amounts to approximately $30,000,000, and at the same time give it $10,000,000 for contemplated improvements and financial necessities. With these debts paid, the company, it is pointed out, will be in a position to command a better credit than if it approached its bondholders with a request to accept a lower interest-bearing obligation in its present condition. Much interest was created in the financial scheme, however, on account of the fact that the company proposed to finance its debt by means of a 7 per cent preferred stock.

The effect of the news was very disturbing to the speculation for the advance. The floatation of $40,000,000 of this stock in the future was looked upon as a check to any further advance, and traders rushed to sell. In the meantime Union Pacific was thought to be benefited by the financial plan, while Southern Pacific suffered. This, however, was the stamp of opinion placed by the professional element, which seemed to be highly confused at first as to the manner in which to take the plan.

MILK DEALERS PROSECUTED.

Seven Discharged Upon Payment of the Costs of the Suits.

The following dealers charged by Samuel Adler, city milk inspector, with selling adulterated milk were given a hearing yesterday afternoon by Alderman Groetzinger and discharged on payment of the costs: M. Moran, 2210 Penn avenue; F. Turner, 2534 Penn avenue; J. Peak, 2117 Webster avenue; Hunziker Bros., Rebecca and Black streets; J. B. Schultz, 2526 Josephine street; J. Shortinch, 71 Twenty-seventh street, and B. Deffacia, 807 Webster avenue.

The decision in the case of F. L. Seabright of Houston, Pa., charged with the same offense, was reserved until next Saturday. Seabright is alleged to have shipped adulterated milk to Pittsburgh storekeepers, some of whom have been prosecuted for having it for sale.

Taking Exams for High School.

Candidates for admission to the Pittsburgh high schools began their examinations in the ward school buildings yesterday morning. There are 1,315 public school and 123 private school pupils taking the examinations, which yesterday consisted of grammar and orthography. Today algebra and composition will be the subjects and tomorrow arithmetic.

Foreign Money Markets.

LONDON, June 15.—Money, 2¼@2½ per cent; the rate of discount for short bills is 2⅛@2¼ per cent; the rate of discount for three months' bills is 2¼ per cent. Rates for money were fairly steady in the market today and considerable sums changed hands for meeting calls. Discounts were easy. Business on the stock exchange was quiet. The tone generally was good, under the lead of consols and on easier monetary conditions. Home rails were fairly firm. Americans opened firm, improved fractionally, were in fair request and closed with a good tone. The feature of foreigners was the demand for Japanese securities.

There is now $200,000,000 of Southern Pacific common stock outstanding.

PHILADELPHIA, PA., June 15.—The annual meetings of the directors of the Philadelphia & Reading railroad and the Philadelphia & Reading Coal and Iron Company were held today. The system is established and in operation with working plants on over 100 ocean steamships, and is also used by leading navies of the world. Marconi Messages are received by the Western Union and Postal Telegraph Companies at their 50,000 offices, and the Company's revenues from actual commercial traffic during 1903 increased 700 per cent over those of 1902. It is the greatest discovery the world has ever seen, and will exceed the telephone, telegraph and electric light in usefulness and general application. The Marconi System is indorsed by the press of the world, by Andrew Carnegie, Edison and many others of equal prominence. There is no preferred stock, no bonds, every stockholder being on an equal basis. The stock of the British Marconi Company, which was put out at $5, has since sold at $22 a share on the London Stock Exchange, an advance of 340%, a striking instance of its great value as an investment. Furnace Operator Turns Away 30,000-Ton Order at Present Price.

GENERAL STEEL MARKET NEWS

Lack of business just now, but no lack of confidence in the immediate future characterize the iron and steel markets. This was shown strikingly one day during this week when orders for about 30,000 tons of foundry iron were refused by a well-known Pittsburgh furnace operator on the ground that it is better not to tie up his capacity at the present range of prices. The purchaser wishes to buy northern pig at something less than $12 a ton. The offer did not tempt the operator.

An order for 12,000 tons of No. 3 foundry and gray forge for cast iron pipe was closed in this city this week. The iron is all southern and the prices are about the same as have ruled on those grades for some time past.

Revised prices quoted on the northern irons at the valley furnaces range about $12 25 to $12 55 for Bessemer, $11 90 to $12 35 for No. 2 foundry, $11 50 for gray forge, and $12 to $12 50 for chilled basic.

In the various finished lines conditions remain about as they were. The sheet, tube and wire demand continues excellent. Structural is in considerable demand. There is some demand for plates on account of the new business which the steel car companies have obtained recently. Rails are far behind the demand of the past few years, with no indications of the present year averaging well.

The coke situation is much the same as that with pig iron. A large number of the ovens are going out, on the principle that it is better not to operate now than to make contracts at the present prices for future delivery. The operators are confident that a short time will bring higher prices, which will prove the wisdom of their course. For furnace coke prices below $1 50 are mentioned. The choicest grades of 72-hour Connellsville foundry coke still bring $2 50 to the consumer, but less select coke can be had at a lower price.

The Hardware Market.

The hardware business continues active, orders coming in freely from salesmen, and good orders continuing to come in direct from customers. A considerable improvement is noted in builders' hardware, brought about doubtless by better weather conditions. Nails and wire continue to move out freely, much new construction demanding a great many nails, and better weather conditions permitting farmers and other fence-makers to use considerable wire. Season goods, such as refrigerators, screens, poultry wire, lawn mowers, ice cream freezers, and goods of like kind are going out freely. Business in bicycle lines continues good. A good business also continues in paints, colors and varnishes, also in window glass. Specifications for the last are better than for some time past, the trade feeling that the shutdowns in the various glass houses are going to leave stocks in a very light condition, and to make the sizes, in a very short while, very hard to get. Prices in a general way continue firm, prospects being that there will not be much change in the near future. The Bindley Hardware Company furnishes the following quotations:

Columbus pocket knives, discount 35 per cent; Albion hatchets, discount 50 per cent; Bindley canal shovels, $6 50 a dozen; Great Western files, discount 70 and 10 per cent; sheet iron, base No. 26, $2 85 a 100 lbs.; galvanized sheet iron, discount 70 and 10 per cent; sash weights, a ton, $27; window glass, L. DECLINED TO FORCE SALES AT SACRIFICE

There Is No Chance of the Demoralization of the Iron Market.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, June 15.—The Iron Age will tomorrow say:

The announcement that the troubles in lake navigation are over is likely to have little effect upon the iron trade, since the practical holding up of shipments thus far this season has caused only occasional embarrassment to the furnaces. The majority of the large ore selling firms have declined to force sales at a sacrifice below the figures named earlier in the season, and there is no chance of demoralization in that direction. Resistance in that quarter and among coke makers discourages any attempts on the part of merchant furnaces who do not control their own material to resume and takes the snap out of those who would like to keep running.

From the producers' side, the course of the market will depend upon the attitude of the southern makers. The large interests apparently are determined to stay the downward tendency, but the smaller interests are taking what business is going at lower and lower prices. There are some good-sized orders in the market, among them one lot of 12,000 tons by a western pipe maker and upward of 30,000 tons by a large agricultural implement consolidation.

There have been further sales of small lots of southern iron for export, but so far as we can learn only shipments to Mediterranean ports net approximately home prices. Still the movement is in the right direction. What evidence there is bearing on the consumption of foundry iron is not particularly encouraging, so that there must either by a further sharp restriction of output or a yielding in prices temporarily, without regard to cost. The yards of smelters are, however, bare all over the country.

In the steel rail trade two fair-sized sales have been made lately. One is for 20,000 tons for delivery at Galveston, the business being taken by an eastern mill in competition with foreign rails, which, however, had little chance. The other is a lot of 10,000 tons for the extension into British Columbia of an American line. It was taken by a western mill.

The outlook for rail tonnage for the balance of the year is not encouraging. The principal mills, however, are fairly well taken care of for the summer.

A moderate amount of tonnage has been placed in structural material, but on the whole the demand thus far this season, notably in the central west, has been distinctly discouraging.

The plate trade continues dull, with only an occasional order of any magnitude. In the lighter lines there has been no material change.

The Drygoods Market.

NEW YORK, June 15.—In drygoods no sudden activity has sprung up as a result of the price revision announced yesterday, but the prices on certain lines, it is believed, will lead to comparatively free buying once confidence is restored, and it is assured that the level will not go any lower.

Dalai Lama Ready to Flee.

GYANTSE, THIBET, June 15.—The British have captured a lama, who had just arrived in this vicinity from Lassa. He declares that the Dalai Lama has made preparation for flight to China in the event of Lassa being threatened.

EGG MARKET STRONG; ORANGES ARE HIGHER

Produce Trade Feels Half-Holiday Move—New Berry Crop Has Arrived.

The egg market in Pittsburgh is ruling very firm at present. As usual during the warm weather season, good stock gets scarce and fancy stock commands high prices accordingly. Storage buyers have made themselves felt a good deal lately, and this is another element that must be considered in accounting for the strong market. The best stock is coming from the northwest principally. Dealers say that losses in candling are now almost double what they were a few weeks ago. There is no change in butter nor in cheese.

Groceries are moving along about the same as usual. One firm reported yesterday the receipt of advices to the effect that from present indications canned peaches will cost 35 cents more per dozen this fall than one year ago. New mackerel is moving out freely and is in fair demand. Refined oil has been reduced a half cent.

The Wednesday half-holiday that went into effect in the East End yesterday made itself felt in the produce business. Trade was lighters, though general demand was fair. Beans and tomatoes are reduced. Oranges have advanced, owing to present scarcity. In about a week, Mediterranean and sweets will be on the market, but at present there are few oranges offering. Two cars of Texas peaches came in yesterday and the stock was very good with low prices. No change is reported in the potato situation. Green corn is wanted more and more and watermelons are moving better. Strawberries are rather slow, but new Columbiana county (O.) stock arrived yesterday and was of good quality.

Receipts of hay, grain and millfeed are very light at present and dealers are apparently not pressing their stock for sale. One car of No. 1 timothy hay on the Baltimore & Ohio offered yesterday at $15; there was a bid of $12 on No. 1 mixed and a car of good No. 2 timothy offered at $14; No. 2 oats is offering at 47½c while a car of yellow ear corn on the Baltimore & Ohio offered yesterday at 59c. Corn is not wanted now. Very little feed is to be had and is still commanding full prices.

HAY, GRAIN AND FEED.

Receipts bulletined: Pennsylvania, 10 cars hay, 7 cars oats, 2 cars corn, 1 car straw, 1 car rye and straw; Pittsburgh & Lake Erie, 1 car hay, 1 car oats; Baltimore & Ohio, 4 cars hay, 2 cars corn, 2 cars corn and oats, 3 cars oats.

Dealers charge an advance of 5c a bushel on grain and $3 00 a ton on hay and millfeed from warehouse in less than carload lots.

NEW YORK, June 15.—The market for coffee futures opened steady at a decline of 10 points under moderate liquidation in sympathy with easier European cables and rather larger primary receipts. EXPORT IMPROVEMENTS HELP GRAIN MARKET

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

CHICAGO, June 15.—Improvement in export demand caused firmness in wheat today, the July delivery closing with a gain of ⅛@¼c. Corn is up ¼@⅜c. Oats were off ⅛c. Provisions are unchanged to 5c higher.

For the first half of the session sentiment in the wheat pit was bearish and prices were a trifle lower than yesterday's closing figures. Under the influence of a severe decline at Liverpool initial quotations here for July were down ⅛@¼c to ¼@⅜c, at 84½@84⅝c. During the early hours the volume of trading was small. On account of heavy rains in the southwest, which will interfere with harvest operations, there was lack of selling pressure, offerings being about commensurate with a light demand. Shorts were the best buyers in the day's trading. As the session advanced the market became firmer on bullish crop reports from Roumania and on small primary receipts in the southwest.

A good export demand was the chief feature, however, that added strength to the situation during the last part of the day. The tone at the close was firm. After selling at 85⅛c, July closed at 85c. Primary receipts were 255,100 bushels, compared with 311,300 bushels a year ago. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 163 cars, against 137 cars last week and 268 cars a year ago.

A general commission house demand, with only moderate offerings, caused firmness in corn. Excessive rains in sections of the corn belt and small local and primary receipts were the main incentives to buyers. The market closed near the high point. July opened a shade lower to a shade higher at 48⅜@48½c, sold between 48⅜@48⅞c and closed at 48¾c. Local receipts were 279 cars, with 21 of contract grade.

Oats were steady, with the trade almost entirely in the September option. Firmness of corn was the chief supporting influence. Small local receipts were a minor bull factor. July opened ⅛c lower at 39½c, ranged between 39¼@39⅝c, closing at 39⅜c. Local receipts were 114 cars.

Provisions were easy at the start, due to liberal receipts of hogs and to lower prices at the yards, but sentiment soon changed to firmness on active demand from shorts. Most of the gain was subsequently lost on heavy selling by packers. The market closed at about yesterday's final figures, September pork being up 5s at $12 65. Lard was unchanged at $6 90 and ribs were up 2½c at $7 35. Estimated receipts for tomorrow: Wheat, 56 cars; corn, 319 cars; oats, 96 cars; hogs, 36,000 head.

SHEA HOMESTEAD BRINGS $30,000

Fine Allegheny Residence Sold. Exchange Deal Made Involving $25,000.

BROKERS AND HOSPITAL SITE

There has been an active demand recently for Allegheny property, and the sales of the past 10 days have attracted no small amount of notice. Another important transaction on that side of the river came to light yesterday. J. C. Dight, the real estate broker, sold his residence at the northeast corner of Fayette and Fulton streets, Fifth ward, for $30,000. The purchaser is William Park of Rochester, Pa., who will occupy the place in the near future.

The property is known as the old Shea homestead, and is one of the choicest as well as one of the best known residences in Allegheny. The lot is 120x120 feet and is excellently situated. The house is of brick and contains 18 rooms, with reception room and first-class interior work. It is understood that other property was given as part payment and the balance was paid in cash. The price at which the property is reported sold makes a rate of about $250 a front foot.

Hartman, Schauer & Co., Fourth avenue, closed an exchange deal yesterday involving about $25,000 in property and money. The firm sold for Henry Hartman to C. P. Matheson four two-story brick houses in Pearl street, near Liberty avenue, for which a residence at Huey and Olive streets, McKeesport was turned over by Mr. Matheson. The Pearl street property is 60x132 feet and was held at $11,000. The McKeesport holdings are 60x100 feet and the improvements consist of a 12-room reception hall brick house. The latter property was held at $12,500, the difference being in cash. Mr. Matheson will, it is understood, exchange the Pearl street houses for a residence property in the near future.

Many Sales Offered.

In speaking of the report yesterday that the George W. Schmidt property at Center and Aiken avenues might be purchased for the new Homeopathic hospital, Dr. J. H. McClelland said: "The Schmidt place is one of several properties that have been offered to us since our purchase of the Brown residence. Real estate brokers are approaching us with many offers, some of which are first-rate locations for a hospital, but as yet no purchase aside from that of the Point Breeze property has been made, and there will be no further dealings unless it can be made very clear that some other site is better than the one we have now.

"The proposed institution is connected in no way with the one in Second avenue. The hospital is a distinct proposition. It will be in charge of an organization entirely independent of the old institution, though many connected with the Second avenue hospital are projecting the one with East End. It is necessary because of the charter of limitations."

J. C. Dight will build three 10-room reception hall brick houses, to cost $5,500 each on three lots 120x120 feet, which he has just purchased from W. D. Updegraph and Dr. W. A. Stewart.

Building permits were issued yesterday to A. M. Speer for a two-story brick dwelling on Forbes street, Twenty-second ward, to cost $13,000; Jacob Minsinger two two-story frame buildings on Southern avenue, Thirty-second ward, to cost $3,800; William Owen one-story frame dwelling on Wyandotte street, Fourteenth ward, to cost $1,500; Michael Szykowski three-story brick dwelling on Sarah street, Twenty-ninth ward, to cost $3,000; Mrs. Elizabeth Anderson, two-story frame dwelling on Butler street, Eighteenth ward, to cost $1,800, and David Moore, two two-story brick veneered dwellings on Snowden street, Thirty-seventh ward, to cost $3,500.

SHOT DOWN A GRADE.

Knoxville Car Becomes Uncontrollable and Two Persons Are Injured.

A Knoxville car became uncontrollable while descending Knox avenue, Knoxville, at 11 o'clock yesterday morning and, shooting down the steep hillside at a terrific pace, jumped the track at Bausman street, where it mounted the brick sidewalk and ran almost to the rear yard of Frederick Schwartz's grocery.

Two passengers were injured, while eight suffered from slight bruises and shock. J. P. Brown of Mt. Vernon, O., was cut about the head and face by broken glass and his wife was badly cut and bruised. They were taken to the residence of a relative in a carriage after having their injuries attended to by a physician. Dr. Isaac King attended to the other passengers, in the grocery store, and all were later able to return to their homes.

Two cases of typhoid fever and five of diphtheria were reported yesterday.

He has employed detectives to guard him. He is a brother-in-law of A. McCoy of the McCoy bank, which failed recently.

BIG SPRAGUE COMING.

Famous Tow-Boat Will Lie Here During Summer—Traffic Is Very Slow.

The big Sprague is now on the way to Pittsburgh with a fleet of 20 empty coal boats and 10 empty barges. She has passed Cincinnati and is making good time, but it is doubtful whether the boat can get here unless higher water comes very soon. The Sprague has not been seen in this city since her initial trip down river about two years ago. She will lie here through the entire summer and will take a big tow out with the opening of the fall season.

Since leaving here the Sprague has demonstrated her ability to handle enormous fleets, having recently taken the tow of 56 pieces from Louisville to New Orleans very successfully. It is probable that the boat will get no farther than Point Pleasant for a time, but will pull into the harbor here as soon as the water is high enough.

Capt. John Klein said yesterday that he had never before seen general navigation in this district at such a standstill during the month of June. Boats are tied up all along the river and business is very quiet aside from that of the packet lines and the excursion steamers. Water is still at a good stage for this kind of trade, and business is even reported improving. All packets are running regularly and excursion men are encouraged over the run at present, notwithstanding the poor prospects for higher water.

GREAT SALE OF TICKETS.

The sale of seats for the Elks' annual minstrel show at the Nixon theater this evening has exceeded all expectations. It is thought that the audience will be the largest that ever attended an entertainment of this kind hereabout. Rehearsals have gone steadily forward since Mr. Dunlevy assumed the direction of the entertainers, and the acts have been brought to a degree of perfection seldom attained. The vocalists are in particularly good form and promise some surprises. The bag-punching act of "Dal" Jeffries, which will be a feature of the show, is said to be the most remarkable exhibition of the kind ever seen here.

A Good Producer Drilled in the Littleton District

In the Littleton district, Wetzel county, West Virginia, the South Penn Oil Company's second test on the E. Whitlatch farm is making a good record. For the first 21 hours after it was drilled into the Gordon pay the well produced 400 barrels, and when last heard from was holding up strong. On the adjoining farm the Philadelphia Company's No. 1 on the J. K. Anderson farm is holding up at 190 barrels, and the South Penn No. 1 on the E. Whitlatch farm at 100 barrels a day. The last named well is several months old and has never been below 100 barrels a day. In the same district the South Penn has drilled its test on the Lindsay Gray farm into the Gordon and the hole has filled up 1,000 feet with fluid. In the Smithfield district the South Penn has drilled its No. 49 on the Blackshere-Wells farm into the top of the Big Injun, but has developed no oil or gas.

On the east side of the Folsom district, Harrison county, the South Penn has drilled its test on the J. & R. Grubb farm to a depth of 3,167 feet and found nothing but a very strong gas pressure. In the same district the same company has drilled its test on the Hays-Higgins farm 32 feet into the Gordon and has developed no oil or gas. The same company has drilled No. 4 on the Fox-Robinson farm 14 feet into the Gordon and has a show of oil. In the Pine Grove extension the South Penn has drilled No. 4 on the Morton Dulaney farm 32 feet into the stray and the well produced 12 barrels the first 24 hours. In the north end of the Gordon development in Marshall county, the South Penn has given its No. 1 on the F. E. Wyat farm a 20-quart shot and the well responded by producing 770 barrels the ensuing 18 hours. In the Folsom district, Harrison county, the same company has shot its No. 5 on the M. P. Dye farm and increased its production to 175 barrels a day.

In the Folsom district the South Penn company's Nos. 3 and 4 on the C. E. Robinson farm are producing 100 and 140 barrels a day, respectively. No. 2 Jesse Ashcroft is holding up at 100 barrels and No. 1 S. A. Cavalier at 135 barrels a day. In the Salem district No. 2 on the G. E. West farm is holding up at 130 barrels a day. The South Penn has drilled its second test on the J. R. Dennison farm 11 feet into the Gordon and has developed no oil or gas.

In the Big Injun development, near Wick, Tyler county, Bartlett, Riddle & Brown have drilled in their second test on the Delana Ankrom farm and have a show for a small well. The showing is rather a surprise, for the reason that No. 1 on this farm is a very fine producer. When drilled in some weeks ago it started at about 400 barrels a day and is still holding up at 200 barrels a day, as shown by the last reported gauge. In the same district the Carter Oil Company has drilled in its second test on the A. D. Ankrom farm, and unless it improves with deeper drilling will make a very light producer. Near Stewart Station, in the same county, D. F. Bartlett & Co.'s second test on the J. R. Bowles farm has been drilled through the Keener sand and is producing 10 barrels a day. In the Bonds Creek district, Ritchie county, the Carter Oil Company has drilled its No. 3 on the Douglass reserve into the Keener sand and has a show for a 200-barrel producer. No. 2 on this lease is holding up at 110 barrels a day. Near Milton, Cabell county, the Harshbarger Oil and Gas Company's No. 2 on the Harshbarger farm is now producing less than 200 barrels a day. Nos. 1 and 2 on the E. W. Beckett farm have a combined production of 120 barrels a day. No other wells in this district have a production of 50 barrels a day.

On the Ohio side, in the new development northwest of Woodsfield, Monroe county, John M. Patterson & Co. have drilled their test on the McFadden heirs' farm, located northwest of developments, into the top of the Keener, and the well is showing for a good producer. Drilling has been suspended to erect tankage and move back the boiler. It will then be drilled deeper. In the Jackson Ridge district the Mars Drilling Company has completed its second test on the A. H. McCammon farm and has a show for an 8-barrel producer in the Keener sand. In the same district Stuart & Young have drilled in their test on the John Glasser farm and have a show for an 8 or 10 barrel pumper in the Keener.

In the new development west of Empire, Jefferson county, A. L. Lowry & Co. have given their No. 1 on the John R. Winn farm a shot and have increased its production from 35 to 110 barrels a day. South of Knoxville, in the same county, the Safe Oil Company has completed its No. 5 on the Cooper heirs' farm and has a show for a very light pumper. In the Plum run district, Harrison county, the National Oil Company of Titusville has completed its No. 8 on the Jane L. Clark farm and has a show for a 15-barrel pumper. North of Marietta, Washington county, Berry Bros. have completed a test on the James C. Hanna farm and have a show for a 10-barrel pumper in the Macksburg 500-foot sand.

The Bakerstown Oil Company has made a good third-sand strike on the Charles Crawford farm, located about a mile west of Bakerstown station on the Pittsburgh & Western railroad. This is the second test on the farm; the first was [illegible] light well. When No. 2 was drilled [illegible] day it struck [illegible] and began to spray [illegible] the first 24 hours. [illegible] erect more [illegible] drilled deeper [illegible] production. [illegible] Ohio river, [illegible] Finnegan has drilled his second test on the [illegible] Calhoon farm [illegible] showing of [illegible] then tested [illegible] small producer [illegible] ago. KNOX READY TO LEAVE CABINET

Attorney General Is Expected to Turn Over Portfolio to Moody Today.

DAYTON IN LINE FOR NAVY

The Pittsburgh Gazette Bureau.
Room 10, Postal Building.
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 15.

Attorney General Knox did not resign his cabinet position today as he has not yet received from Gov. Pennypacker his commission as United States senator. As soon as it arrives Mr. Knox will tender his resignation to the president. Today he was very busy clearing up matters that are hanging fire in the department and being called to the White House for a conference with the president. Letters and telegrams of congratulations have been pouring in upon Mr. Knox by the thousands and his clerks are kept busy acknowledging them.

The question of Mr. Knox's successor having been settled by the announced intention of the president to hand the law department over to Secretary Moody of the navy department, speculation as to who will succeed Mr. Moody is still going on. As announced in The Gazette yesterday, it is reported on what appears to be good authority that the place has been offered to Representative A. G. Dayton of West Virginia, and that Mr. Dayton is now considering the matter with his political friends at home.

CONGRESSMAN A. G. DAYTON, of West Virginia, who may be the next secretary of the navy.

But there are many who believe that Judge Darling, the present assistant secretary of the navy, and Representative Metcalf of California, both have a good show for the navy portfolio. Mr. Metcalf is understood to have been offered the department of commerce and labor, but his friends say that he would much prefer to be secretary of the navy, and that while he may decline the former, he would certainly accept the latter if offered him. It is believed that soon after Mr. Knox resigns the president will announce his choice for secretary of the navy. L. W. STRAYER.

KNOX'S COMMISSION SIGNED BY GOVERNOR

HARRISBURG, June 15.—(Special.)—Attorney General Knox's commission as United States senator for the unexpired term of the late Senator Quay was signed today by Gov. Pennypacker and Secretary of the Commonwealth Fuller and sent to Mr. Knox at Washington with formal notice of his appointment. The wording of the commission follows that issued to Senator Quay when appointed by Gov. Stone after the legislative deadlock in 1899, and sets forth that Mr. Knox is to serve as United States senator from Pennsylvania until the next meeting of the legislature.

FIGHTING THE SALOONS.

Temperance People of East Liverpool Parade the School Children Through Town.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., June 15.—(Special.)—The contest between the temperance and saloon elements has become so spirited that it is hard to tell when the town will again settle down to legitimate business.

This afternoon a parade of school children, arranged by the temperance people, took place. On Friday night the temperance young men of the town will have a demonstration, to end with a meeting in the opera house. For election day, Saturday, the temperance people have hired every band and carriage in the city.

MYSTIFYING MINNEHAHA.

Many Attractions Secured for the Building Trades Council Carnival.

The Building Trades council closed a contract yesterday with "Minnehaha," a mystifying creation in human form. Thomas Connolly, chairman of the arrangement committee, said yesterday the only attractions arranged for the carnival are what is known to the showmen as "repeaters." When a person sees the act they are so interested they return to see it again.

The Wabash park is being fitted up with surface sewers, so the rain will leave the ground as fast as it falls. With the thick covering of cinders and tan bark the ground cannot get muddy. By next week the fence and the entrance structure will be completed.

NEGROES CAUSE RIOT AT TOBACCO FACTORY

LOUISVILLE, June 15.—A riot broke out at the plant of the Continental Tobacco Company today, when 200 striking negroes attempted to prevent 500 negro women employed at the plant from going to work. Police, commanded by Chief Gunther, quelled the mob, but were compelled to resort to the use of clubs and revolvers. For a time it looked as if serious results would follow, but the negroes were finally driven away and the plant was surrounded by a squad of police. Five rioters were arrested.

Melodrama at the Bijou.

"The Road to Ruin," an exceptionally fine sensational melodrama, will be the offering at the Bijou theater next week, beginning with a bargain matinee Monday. The piece requires a whole carload of scenery and electrical effects. The production is well staged and well acted. Joe Gans, champion lightweight pugilist, will be an extra feature, and one nobody can afford to miss. Gans will spar three rounds at every performance and will meet all comers.

Must Not Bet on the Game.

Barney McCaffery of Mt. Washington, John Jones of the East End and Thomas Ford of Beltzhoover were arrested yesterday on Wood street on a charge of gambling. Complaints have been made to Director Moore that men congregate in the vicinity and bet money on the ball game and the director gave orders to break up the practice.

Four Policemen Suspended.

BANDIT DEMANDS GREATER RANSOM

WANTS AMERICAN GUARANTY

Greatly to the disappointment of this government a hitch has occurred in the negotiations for the release of Ion Perdicaris, the wealthy American, and Cromwell Varley, his British stepson, held for ransom in Morocco. Secretary Hay was today advised by Consul Gummere at Tangier, that Raisuli, their captor, had met the sultan's assent to his previous demands by an extortionate increase of the political feature of the ransom.

He still demands only $55,000, but instead of a single district in which he and his band of thieves may be permitted to rob and pillage unmolested, he calls for four districts and further stipulates that all his tribesmen now imprisoned by the Moroccan authorities be freed and their cells filled with his enemies, some of whom are now government officeholders. All this sweeping demand is climaxed by the statement that before the captives are released the United States and Great Britain must give more guarantee that the sultan will carry out his pledges to Raisuli.

The alternative he offers is the death of the captives. Secretary Hay had already instructed Consul Gummere to emphatically inform the sultan that the United States could offer no guarantee, that although it was desired to save the life of Mr. Perdicaris, national honor would not permit such assurances which could not fail to be a stimulus to brigandage and blackmail the world around.

The situation still remains to be handled between the sultan and Raisuli. Rear Admiral Chadwick, with the seven American warships in the South Atlantic, and European squadrons will remain at Tangier. Whatever the reports which have been circulated about the presence of these ships having a bad effect may be, the state department feels they are doing much good. The British minister at Tangier believes so too.

No landing of marines is now in contemplation. The opinion of officials here is that Raisuli, when he sees that he cannot get all that he demands, will take what he can get. As the case drags on the opinion here grows that there is more politics in the situation than at first appeared, and it seems more likely every day that the partition of Morocco will be hastened.

M'KENNA IN CONFERENCE ON PORTO RICAN AFFAIRS

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

WASHINGTON, June 15.—Charles F. McKenna of Pittsburgh, recently appointed United States district judge for Porto Rico, was at the White House today to talk with the president regarding affairs in the island, and to meet Beckman Winthrop, who has just been appointed governor of Porto Rico. Adolph G. Wolf of Washington, who has the appointment as insular judge for Porto Rico, and Frederick Degetau, commissioner from the island to congress, were also present.

There was a thorough discussion of matters relating to the government of the Porto Ricans. Gov. Winthrop will take his office on July 4 and Judge Wolf and Mr. Degetau will accompany him from New York, sailing on June 28. Judge McKenna will leave for Porto Rico on July 15. He returned this evening to Pittsburgh. L. W. STRAYER.

Parthenon Literary Society Is Easy Victor—Old Faculty Is Re-Elected.

MORGANTOWN, W. VA., June 15.—(Special.)—The board of regents of the West Virginia university today elected Prof. Ross Spence acting dean of the school of music in the place of Sydney Lloyd Wrightson, who resigned. All the members of the faculty were re-elected. Company D won the competition company drill of the cadet corps. The literary contest between the Parthenon and Columbian literary societies for the regents prizes resulted in a sweeping victory for the Parthenon society, which was represented by Miss Ella Utt, declamation; G. W. Hawkins, essayist, and Clyde F. Amos, orator.

The state geological commission, which is an adjunct of the West Virginia university, today elected George P. Grimsley of Washburn college assistant geologist and R. C. Benner of the University of Wisconsin assistant chemist.

REICHSTAG VOTES MONEY FOR WEST AFRICA ROAD

BERLIN, June 15.—The reichstag today passed a bill providing for the building of the Togoland (German West Africa) railroad, at the expense of the imperial treasury, instead of through a colonial loan guaranteed by the empire, as the government originally proposed. The house voted $750,000 as the first installment for the railroad and also passed a bill giving the imperial guarantee of the interest on the capital for a railroad in East Africa, from Dar-Es-Salaam to Morgoro. Both roads are intended to promote cotton growing.

MUST DIE FOR CRIME.

HARRISBURG, PA., June 15.—(Special.)—Reno Dardaia, who killed Thomas St. Clair at Imperial, Allegheny county, in the heat of passion last December and was recently convicted of first degree murder at Pittsburgh before Judge Kennedy, was refused a commutation of sentence to life imprisonment today by the board of pardons.

James Francis Burke, who appeared before the board in behalf of Dardaia, said that, while possibly there may have been sufficient testimony in the case to justify the court in finding a verdict of first degree murder, there were about it several features which would more than justify a commutation of sentence.

John Murray of Venango county, serving two years in the western penitentiary for larceny, was recommended for a pardon. August Troutwein of Armstrong county, under sentence of death for murder, was refused a commutation of sentence to life imprisonment.

The case of the five Schulykill county convicts, who are serving a 10-year sentence for a crime of which Dennis Grummel, another convict, alleges they are innocent, was continued until the September meeting of the board in order to allow counsel for the prisoners to secure testimony to corroborate Grummel's statement.

GOT MONEY ON THE SIDE.

MILWAUKEE, June 15.—State Insurance Commissioner Zeno M. Host was examined today before Court Commissioner Wolleager under the "discovery" statute, the proceedings being in connection with the suit of the Prudential Life Insurance Company against the state insurance commissioner for alleged overcharges of fees for examining the affairs of the insurance company. The amount exacted is alleged to have been $21,624.

The statement of State Insurance Commissioner Host showed that state officers under salary from the state, among them Attorney General L. M.
